

Honor Code Signers Meet

The signers of the Honor Code will meet in the Chapel Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock, Bill Overton, chairman of the Honor Council, announced yesterday.

At the meeting matters of importance will be brought up, and each signer of the code will be given opportunity to bring matters concerning the system before the group. All members are urged to attend since this will be the only meeting of the signers of the code this semester.

The Alaska fur seal herd which in 1910 contained only 130,000 animals now has a total of 1,839,119 seals. The increase of 149,000 in the last year is said by the bureau of fisheries to indicate continued satisfactory growth of the herd.

P. C. Coach Thanks USC

The following is a letter received by Stokes Davis, president of the student body, from Walter Johnson, Presbyterian College coach, expressing his appreciation for the goblets presented him at the Carolina-Presbyterian game by the University of South Carolina.

"I want to express to you and to the student body of the University of South Carolina my sincere thanks and gratitude for the wonderful expressions and presentation that you afforded me last Saturday.

"It was such a wonderful and unusual event that I really could not express myself over the microphone as I would have liked to.

"Such a thing as this brings the colleges and coaches together in better understanding and cooperation and tends to increase sportsmanship and fellowship between the various institutions of South Carolina.

"At your next student body meeting I would like for you to thank the students for the beautiful pitcher, goblets, and tray. Mrs. Johnson joins me in saying that we shall enjoy using them and shall always think of the thoughtfulness and kindness of the Carolina student body. I wish for you and your fellow-students every success during your college careers.

"Again thanking you from the bottom of my heart for your wonderful gift, I am always a friend of Carolina and its students."

Sincerely yours,
Walter Johnson,
Athletic director
Presbyterian College.

News Oddities

MAKE MINE VANILLA

This story contains neither when, where, why, who, nor what, nor is it labeled a news story. It merely happened in one of the classrooms on the University campus.

Professor, upon entering room in Davis College:

"Class, order, please."

One bright boy in the back of the room spoke up:

"Thanks, I'll take a Coca-Cola."

UP FROM DIXIE

When the University band arrived at their headquarters in Washington last week, the boys came close to rebelling. As they stood in front of the hotel, they sent up a chorus of boos. Their director was puzzled. Finally he discovered the cause of the uproar. The band was staying at the Lee House and on the corner across the street was the SHERMAN apartment house.

NAVY BLUE AND GOLD

Edward L. Cook, a freshman at the University, recently received from the United States Navy a medal earned by him while he was enlisted during the past four years.

On one side of the emblem are the words "Edward Lee Cook, 1937," while the other side bears the inscription "Obedience, fidelity, and zeal."

HOLD THAT TURKEY!

From New York we learn that the W. P. A. has added another project—in turkey carving. The head of the house will be able to receive expert instruction in just how to handle the famous bird. Well, that's part of it, anyway. Cooking, proper table setting and other matters of table etiquette are also taught.

RUBIN GIVES VIEWS

Speaking to members of the Euphrasian literary society Tuesday before Thanksgiving holidays, H. A. Rubin, former member of the society, advocated an abandonment of the isolation policy of the United States in the China-Japan struggle.

Rubin told those present that America should take an active stand to see that the cause of democracy should not perish in China because of Japan's domination.

MEETINGS ON MONDAY

The University Block "C" Club will meet in Davis College Monday night at 8:30. A full attendance is urged by Mr. Harth.

The Board of Publications will meet Monday night at 8 in the Extension Building. Members of The Gamecock staff are invited to attend at 8:30.

PROFESSOR COKER BROADCASTS

Complying with a request from the State Forestry Commission, professor W. C. Coker gave an address last Wednesday over radio station W. I. S. in observance of Conservation Week. The subject of his address was "Trees and Shrubs Native to South Carolina."

HAVE YOU LOST SOMETHING?

A belt, pair of gloves, cap, pair of glasses, a watch, and a tie clasp still remain unclaimed at the post office. Mrs. Nannie Moon, postmistress, requests that the finders of these articles come and get them because she doesn't believe they will be claimed.

ART STUDENT HONORED

Reuben, it is remembered, received in the art department has been invited by the national art association with headquarters in Richmond, Va., to submit several of his drawings to a national contest. He has been asked also to write a short sketch of his life telling why he became interested in becoming an artist and what he hopes to accomplish.

Reuben, it is remembered, received prizes for his work at the State fair.

SCHOOL OF THE AIR

John Masfield, England's poet laureate, was described as a 20th century Chaucer by Professor George Wauchope of the University in a talk on the poet over the School of the Air last week.

Dr. Wauchope added that it was the poem "Parliament of Birds" which awakened Masfield's genius.

ETHER ENGINEER

R. D. Lambert, Jr., honor graduate from the electrical engineering school of the University of South Carolina last year, is now operating engineer in charge of controls for station WIS, Columbia.

NEW STYLE IN PETS

The University biology department has just the thing to give her for Christmas—a rare spotted salamander, technical name is Ambystoma maculatum. The adult is rarely seen because of its secretive habits.

ART EXHIBITION OPENS MONDAY

First of four art exhibits sponsored by the University Art department and shown in the design room on the second floor of Flinn Hall opened on Monday of this week.

The exhibit consists of twelve prints of reproductions by famous contemporary artists. The use of these prints was made possible by the Living American Art Association, Inc. There will be four of these exhibits during the year, this one being the first of the series.

The design room is open every afternoon from 12 noon, until 5.

Frosh Pugs Have Team

Lampad fraternity, athletic organization on the University of South Carolina campus, will sponsor a freshman boxing team this year, it was announced yesterday.

Members of the club, which is a service group, will act as coaches of the team. Frank Jenkins, Rex Williams, and Rhea Haskell will be the active coaches. Jenkins and Williams wore national title contenders last year, and Haskell a member of the boxing squad.

It is the first time that such a move has been made toward a freshman boxing team. Boxing has become increasingly popular at Carolina in the last year, and the freshman team will supply varsity material which before has been available only from the ranks of the intra-mural boxing contestants.

Matches will be arranged with other colleges in South Carolina to give the freshmen experience and poise in the ring.

Lampad fraternity is also furnishing the officials for the intra-mural football games now in progress at Carolina.

Pi K A Wins Good Game

Two pushovers and one tight struggle featured the first week of intra-mural football at the University of South Carolina.

Pi Kappa Alpha vs. Ten. 1, 2, 3. Sammie Daniel led the Pi Kappa Alpha team to a decisive victory over tenements 1, 2, and 3 team by a score of 19-0. Despite good defensive play by the tenement men, Collier and Brockington, frat men Daniel and Rollins refused to be stopped.

Ten. 16 and 18 vs. DeSaussure. Tenements 16 and 18 found little difficulty in trouncing DeSaussure 37-0. In fact, the lead was so unquestionable that the game was cut short by several minutes. To Mr. Clarence Kibler goes much of the credit for the landslide.

Sigma Nu vs. Ten. 25.

Despite a display of superior offense of mostly McMillan and Spigner, the Sigma Nu's had to take advantage of a break in the middle of the last quarter to defeat tenement 25 by a 2-0 count. The Sigma's blocked a tenement punt behind the goal that a tenement recovered, thus chalking up two points for the frat men.

GAMECOCKS PLAY AT ORANGEBURG

The University of South Carolina has signed a contract with the commissioners of the Orangeburg fair to play a football game with "some worthy opponent" at both the 1938 and 1939 fairs. This will fill the blank created by the refusal of Citadel, Carolina's traditional rival on this date, to play at the fair.

The teams have not been selected. The contract does not call for the same team for both years.

This method produces a well felted, flexible mass resembling cotton batting but possessing the chemical characteristics inherent in glass. The Navy requires peculiar characteristics in insulating materials and the so-called Navy wool was developed to meet this demand.

Pyrex glass is important because of its high resistance to heat, and is extensively used in laboratory apparatus. The evolution of a beaker from the first gather to the finished product is shown, as well as Pyrex bottles used in packaging delicate medicinal products, assorted thermometer tubing, Erlenmeyer flasks, a Petri dish and test tubes.

Service Club Meets

On December 1, the Carolina Christian Service Club had as their guests a group of students from the Columbia Bible College who presented a missionary program.

The program included a talk given by Kathryn Danforth on missions; a duet by Misses Gibson and Davis; and a personal testimony by Will Norton which climaxed the evening.

licity chairman for the South Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs.

"Through adequate publicity the club women of South Carolina can accomplish much valuable work," Mrs. Drake said in explaining the formation of the course by pointing to the realization that the clubs of the state were doing such excellent work that it should be widely circulated.

Mrs. Carrie McC. Patrick, of the Anderson Independent, said that club women were obligated to co-operate with the news organs; and Mrs. A. F. Spigner, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs, emphasized the need of personality in publicity chairmen.

McDavid Horton, managing editor of the State, Floyd Rogers, WIS news commentator, and George A. Buchanan, Jr., editor of the Columbia Record, addressed the gathering at the afternoon and night sessions. The University Players also presented a one-act play with Dorothy Koger and Alfred Browning assuming the roles.
