Dispensary Beats Druggist Average

Filled Prescriptions Reach 5200 In 1940

The student health dispensary is doing a big business—bigger in fact, than the average American drug store. During the school year 1939-40, the dispensary, a part of the pharmacy school, filled 5,200 prescriptions as compared with an average of 4,593 for the drug stores of the nation in the year 1939.

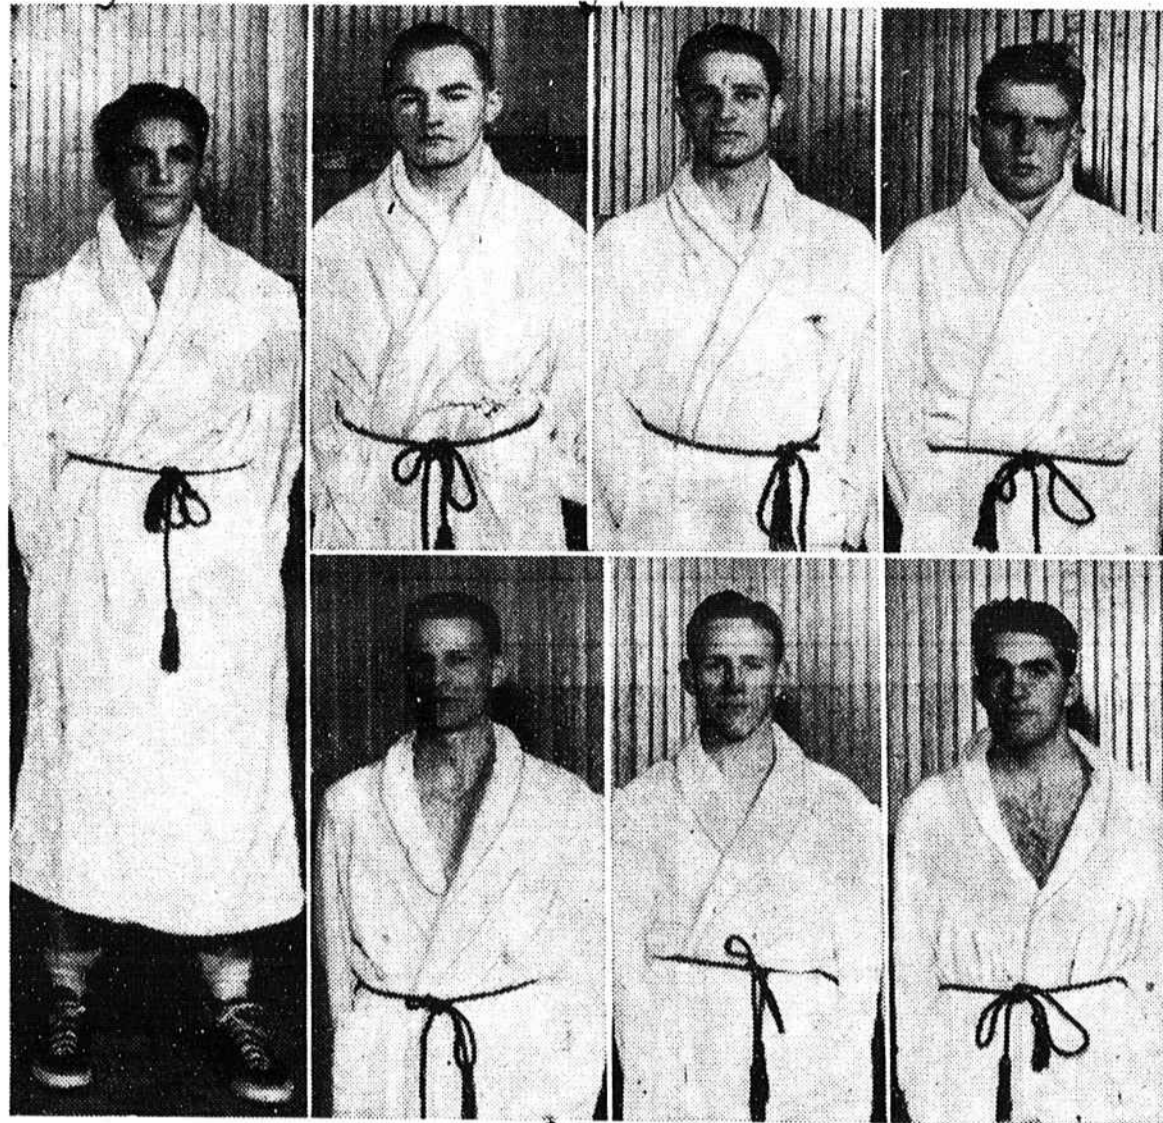

Professor Robert W. Morrison, registered pharmacist and director of the dispensary, said that it served the double purpose of supplying medicine for the infirmary and giving pharmacy students the practical experience they need. Only seniors are allowed to work there; however, and a registered pharmacist is always in charge.

Professor Morrison said the dispensary also supplies all liniments, antiseptics, and other medical preparations to the university athletic association at a price much cheaper than could be obtained elsewhere.

Since 1937, the dispensary has practically doubled its work each year. Figures obtained for the period of September 15, 1940 to February 25, 1941 indicate that the increase will continue.

Since September 15, Carolina and faculty members have consumed 25,000 aspirin tablets, 125 dozen bot-

Duke Scholarships Are Now Available For USC Students

Thirteen Cash Awards Are Given; Graduate Research Work Stressed

Dr. Reed Smith has received a communication from Frank C. Brown, chairman of the English department of Duke University announcing scholarships to students of the University of South Carolina as well as other southern institutions. The department offers at least 13 scholarships to interested students.

Three new scholarships for graduate study in English will be available for the first time in 1941. Stipend of $800 is offered, less $300 tuition fee. No teaching duties are required.

Awards will be made on the basis of scholastic record, intellectual and personal considerations for careers in scholarship. Students are expected to continue their work for three years. Renewal of tenure after the first year of graduate study at Johns Hopkins university will be dependent on maintenance of high standard of work.

Since the founder of Johns Hopkins refrained from prescribing the course of study to be included in its program, the trustees and faculty are free to undertake experiments unique in America.

Emphasis is laid on graduate study and research. Attempts are made to adopt the best practices of the European universities to the needs of a democratic society.

In addition to the new scholarships, two Johnston awards with stipends of $1,500 each for post-doctorate study and research in any department of the university are offered. Fifty university scholarships which carry a remission of tuition in any department will also be awarded.

All applications must be on file in the registrar's office of Duke university by March 1. Awards will be announced on April 1.

Professor Morrison said the dispensary also supplies all liniments, antiseptics, and other medical preparations to the university athletic association at a price much cheaper than could be obtained elsewhere.

ROTC Gets Chance To Show Gun Skill

Rifle Range Just Built For Use In Gym Balcony

Members of the Naval ROTC now have a place to demonstrate their skill with small bore arms. A modern rifle range has been constructed in the balcony of the gym, and the prospective naval officers spend their spare time mastering the art of blazing away at the 10 ring.

All shooting is done according to Government Regulations. Official 50 foot National Rifle Association Targets are used. The naval marksmen shoot with .22 caliber, Springfield rifles, using slings and target ammunition.

Reservists who shoot the highest score in the standing, kneeling, sitting and prone positions will be eligible for the university Naval ROTC Rifle Team.

This team will compete with other collegiate military rifle teams for the Hearst Trophy Award given each year by the National Rifle Association to the team that shoots the highest score in the United States.

Total of 1740 Students Are In USC Says Chase

Second semester registration at Carolina totaled 1740 students, John A. Chase, Jr., dean of administration, announced this week. This is a decline of 146 from the first semester mark.

The school of arts and science leads with 764 students, with commerce second with 400. Other schools are as follows: education, 88; engineering, 183; journalism, 78; pharmacy, 63; law, 107, and graduate, 57.

"South Carolina" traces the history of the Palmetto State, with all its contradictions and charm, to the problems of the present day. The Up-country and the Low-country and the more recently developed central section around the capitol is described. Calhoun, Robert Hayne, William Gilmore Simms, Andrew Jackson, Moses Lindo, "Pitchfork Ben" Tillman, and more recently, Julia Peterkin, Hervey Allen and other interesting South Carolinians—vital figures in the State's history—are integrated into the story.

"Through the Years in Old Winnsboro" was written by Katherine Theus Obear, who came to Winnsboro in 1855, a child of three. Her father was a New England Episcopal minister who came to South Carolina for his health. He was also a teacher, as was his wife, his sister-in-law, and his daughter Katherine.

Miss Obear's book proved that she is keenly alive to the problems of today. She writes with charm, vigor, and conversational intimacy. She loves interesting places and interesting people, good books, dogs and cats.

The book is not filled with ordered statistics, or academic conclusion, but is the story of Winnsboro and her people. It is as Southern as the "cotton boll" and as American as a family reunion. It has been largely from the small town that we have derived those combined qualities which we call the American way of life.
