Lawrence Fuller, Laurens Alumnus, Promoted In Army

1914 Graduate Advanced From Major To Lt. Col. At Charleston Hospital

Dr. Lawrence S. (Dick) Fuller, '14A, originally of Laurens, was promoted from major to lieutenant colonel on November 9, according to officials at Stark General Hospital, Charleston, where Colonel Fuller is now stationed.

Colonel Fuller was graduated from the University of South Carolina with a B.S. degree and from Johns Hopkins Medical school with an M.D. degree. He also studied at the University of Paris.

He practiced medicine in Paris, France, for about 20 years, serving also as chief of medical services for the American hospital there. He was knighted by the French government for his services.

Colonel Fuller returned to America shortly before the fall of France and entered the army on April 1, 1941, with the rank of major.

Marine's Letter Describe Battles

"Tojo's Rats" Is Name For Japs In Solomons

Marines on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons refer to Japanese soldiers still on the island as "Tojo's Rats", and are "putting out plenty of lead poison to exterminate them", according to a recent letter from Capt. Rex Williams of the Marines.

Captain Williams, a 1939 graduate of the University of South Carolina, is from Hardeeville. One of the most brilliant boxers in the University's history, he punched his way to the Southern Conference middleweight crown in 1938.

Captain Williams said he had a Japanese sword as a memento of the Solomons fighting.

Student Director Now At McCormick

The Rev. Claude Evans, director of Wesley Foundation Sunday School for Methodist students at the University and Columbia College, has accepted the pastorate of the Methodist church at McCormick.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans left Columbia Wednesday, November 25, and he immediately took over his duties as pastor of the McCormick Methodist church and two smaller country churches.

Mr. Evans had been formerly Assistant pastor at the Washington Street Methodist church and director of the young people's department.

As yet, no one has been selected to take his place in Columbia.

Lieutenant Holloway Is Added To NROTC's Staff

A new officer, Lt. (j.g.) C. E. Holloway, USNR, has been stationed at the Naval ROTC unit at the University.

Alumnus Now Serves As Editor Of Publication

John R. Callahan, assistant editor of "Chemical & Metallurgical Engineering", has just been elected president of the Junior Chemical Engineers of New York, an organization founded in 1937 for young chemical engineers and industrial chemists located in and near the metropolitan New York area.

Mr. Callahan, who was Secretary-Treasurer of the organization in 1941, is also active in the American Institute of Chemical Engineers and is a member of the American Chemical Society.

Before joining the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. in 1941, Mr. Callahan had been affiliated as plant and research chemist with the General Chemical Co. in Delaware, California and New York. He has written a number of articles on chemistry.

Mr. Callahan obtained his degree of B.S. in Chemistry from the University of South Carolina in 1933. His chief hobbies consist of mineralogy and the geology of the San Juan country of southeast Utah.

Former Professor Stationed Nearby

Psychologist Serves In Jackson Induction Spot

First Lieut. Merrick Kershaw Walsh, '24A, '25G, former professor of psychology at the University, is now stationed at Fort Jackson as a psychologist at the recruiting and induction station.

Lieutenant Walsh was commissioned from civilian life on October 4 and went to Fort Leavenworth, Kans. for a special training course under the direction of the adjutant general's office in Washington. He was one of 85 psychologists from all over the country who were chosen to attend this school, which was the first of its kind to be held in the United States.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Walsh, the former Miss Genevieve McCaw, '30J, of Columbia, live with their two young sons at 1809 Devine street, Columbia.
