

Whitesell To Give Guignard Lecture Tonight In Chapel

The second Guignard lecture will be given tonight at 8 p.m. in the university chapel by Dr. J. Edwin Whitesell of the university English department. The lecture is free and the public is invited to attend. The lecture, which will concern Chaucer's continued greatness in the world today, is open to the public.

In the first Guignard lecture Tuesday night, Dr. Whitesell emphasized the importance of Geoffrey Chaucer, father of English poetry, to his own contemporaries. "Fourteenth century England was much more closely akin to 20th century American than any century since then," Dr. Whitesell said.

"Like our own, Chaucer's age was an ebullient one, an age of unrest and uncertainty, but withal an age of optimism and hope. The very foundations of the earth were being shaken: science, religion, economics, the social order, even man's pattern of thinking, were undergoing rigid analysis. But there was a feeling that this unrest would lead to something great and exciting."

After tracing the historical background, Dr. Whitesell described Chaucer's technique in portrayal of character through careful epithets, telling phrases and "candid camera shots."

"Chaucer gave to his own and succeeding generations a kind of dialogue which is certainly the best in English literature," he said. "As a dramatist he showed his ability to seize upon important and significant details in plot."

Chaucer borrowed his plots without apology from many sources, adding conversation and pathos, and emphasizing character. "Among the outstanding assets in Chaucer's ability to create living characters were his keen mind and observant eye. He had always been profoundly concerned with persons in the world about him. . . . It is posterity's good fortune that his lifework threw him into intimate contact with many kinds of men and women."

As humorous satirist, Chaucer has no superior in English literature, Dr. Whitesell said.

The address was illustrated with quotations from Chaucer's works in modern English.

Increase In Carolina Fees Is Announced

Room fees, university fees, and summer school fees have been increased, the Treasurer's Office announced this week. The changes will go into effect beginning with the summer session.

The room fee, previously $40.00, has been raised to $50.00 plus a room deposit fee of $15.00. Room deposit fees are not applied on room accounts but are automatically transferred from year to year until the end of the period of residence, at which time they are refunded provided the resident is not indebted to the university for damage to his quarters or equipment.

An increase from $51.00 to $57.50 has been made in the university fee. This fee is used for the maintenance of buildings and plant. It provides funds for the various student organizations and activities and covers the student medical service. A small increase has also been made in course fees for those taking only two courses.

Summer school course fees have been increased from $5.00 per semester hour of credit to $7.50 per hour of credit.

Other summer school fees which have been increased are: a small increase in the audit fee (for any person not enrolled for credits), cap and gown fees and equivalency examination fees.

Summer school room fees have been raised from $20.50 to $25.50.
