

KD'S ENTERTAIN

White Rose Ball Tonite

Kappa Delta sorority will entertain with its White Rose Ball tonight in the Jefferson Hotel ballroom between the hours of 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. Tony Torre and his band will play for the event.

The KD's will feature green and white, their sorority colors, in the decorations of the ballroom. Green and white streamers will deck the ceiling and the badge of Kappa Delta will be silhouetted in a large center mirror.

Kappa Delta members will enter the ballroom for the grand march through a diamond-shaped arch of white roses and greenery.

The dance, which is cabaret style, will be chaperoned by Dr. and Mrs. Milledge Seigler.

Members of Kappa Delta and their dates will be entertained with a drop-in at the home of Mary Moore Milling prior to the dance.

KAPPA DELTA OFFICERS . . .

COLUMBIA'S MILITARY MUSIC

Fort Jackson's Fish Toot Well

By Bob Grosse
Music Analyst

What does a fish really do out of water? To find out, I recently made some inquiries about Columbia's military twin, Fort Jackson.

The Fort Jackson military band which to the casual observer resembles a well-organized military unit is actually a happily undisciplined group of displaced musicians. The men of this outfit are refugees from many of the nation's top dance bands and represent some of the finest music schools in America.

Some of the better-known musicians who have passed through "the Fort" in recent years are Louis Smith, the young trumpeter who is doing so well replacing the late Clifford Brown on the Max Roach Quintet; Rufus Jones, for several years drummer with Lionel Hampton; and Paul Horne, alto sax player who joined Chico Hamilton's new group just last month.

In Well-Known Bands

The names of many more of the Jackson alumni are not so well-known, but the bands they are playing are. There are Jackson men with Hal McIntyre, Buddy Morrow, Ray McKinley, and Dizzy Gillespie.

On the legitimate side of the musical world, there are men at Fort Jackson who have studied at music schools like Eastman, the Cincinnati conservatory, Oberlin, and Juillard, and who have performed with the Atlanta Symphony, the National Art Gallery Orchestra, the Cleveland Symphony and the Robert Shaw Choral.

As you may imagine, the daily routine of military life with its continual drilling, incessant instructions, and 5 a.m. reveille is not the healthiest atmosphere for musical inspiration. One private, a former bass player with the Memphis Symphony, lamented to me, "I've been here for eight weeks and they haven't let me touch a bass yet."

Create Own Amusement

But the Jackson bandmen manage to create their own amusement. At night and on week ends, after the parades and drills of the routine day are over, the band barracks sounds like a music conservatory.

They have other ways of expressing their feelings, and the talent to do so quite well. At a formal division review, for example, the band will strike up a march like "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and play lustily while six hornmen in the rear are walling on some Dixieland.

At rehearsals, they will trade parts so that when the unsuspecting first sergeant gives the downbeat, the trombones squeal the piccolo parts while the clarinets honk along with the tubas.

Once, a visiting colonel decided that he would like to lead the band. He was handed the score to Sousa's "The Thunderer" and stepped pompously to the podium.

He stepped down a few minutes later embarrassed and completely flustered because the band had played a Strauss waltz.

The Last Chorus

Some encouraging signs: The Student Council has formed a committee to investigate the possibility of starting a concert series on the Carolina campus . . . Many, many Carolina students at Tuesday night's concert by the Pittsburgh Symphony.

Friends of Woody Herman will be glad to know that he will be encoring here Monday night at the new Jewish Youth Center on Tremholm Road.

Lent Music

Radio Station WUSC is presenting a series of religious music for the Lenten season. These programs will be each Wednesday at 11:00 p.m. and Sunday at 10:00 a.m. The schedule for these programs is:

March 10 and 13: Palestrina, "Missa Papae Marcelli" and Cherubini, "Requiem"; March 17 and 20: Schubert, "Requiem Mass"; March 24 and 27: Beethoven, "Missa Solemnis"; March 31 and April 3: Bach, "Mass in B Minor"; April 7 and 10: Brahms, "A German Requiem"; and April 14 and 17: Handel, "The Messiah."

GRADUATING ENGINEERS

Research, development, and production activities at Northrop Aircraft, Inc., in Southern California, create a continuous demand for young men who wish to build a permanent career in engineering and science. In addition to a diversified production program in its several plants, Northrop is engaged in many vitally important, classified projects necessary to our country's defense.

If your training qualifies you for positions in the categories listed below . . . if you want to settle in the Los Angeles area and work in Northrop's new multi-million-dollar engineering center . . . if you want to build a successful career in one of America's foremost research, development and production organizations . . . if you want to enjoy many outstanding benefits that are unexcelled in the industry, including Company-paid life, health, and accident insurance, two weeks and two days annual vacation plus an extra week at Christmas, both with full pay . . . if you want to work where your ability will be continually encouraged . . . please contact your school's placement office and make an appointment for an interview with one of Northrop's representatives.

THESE FIELDS OFFER CHALLENGING OPPORTUNITIES

AERONAUTICAL ENGINEERING • MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING • ELECTRONIC ENGINEERING • CHEMISTRY
PHYSICS • MATHEMATICS • CIVIL ENGINEERING

Campus interviews will be conducted by Mr. Bob Kealhofer, Engineering Personnel Representative of Northrop Aircraft, Inc., on Friday, March 8th, at University of South Carolina Engineering Placement Office.
