Clariosophic Has Spring Election

Gene Griffith has been re-elected president of Clariosophic Society for the spring semester.

Other officers are Joseph Roof, vice president; Thomas Smith, critic; Gene Platt, secretary; Claude Hudson, treasurer; William Rogers, sergeant at arms; and Samuel B. Bongiorno, publicity director and representative to board of publications.

New plans for expansion and programs were suggested.

An initiating address will be made at the February 6 meeting at 7:00 P.M., and the spring program will be announced by the critic.

Leading Protestant Convocations during the week will be the Rev. Joe Matthews of Austin, Texas. Father Edward R. Doyle of New Orleans, Louisiana, will head Catholic Convocations.

Rabbi Padoll has occupied the pulpit of the Congregation Beth Elohim Temple since June, 1961. During the preceding four years, he was associated with the Temple Ohabei Shalom in Brookline, Mass.

After receiving his B.A. degree at the University of Cincinnati in 1951, Rabbi Padoll attended the Hebrew Union College and Jewish Institute of Religion in Cincinnati.

The Rabbi is a member of the USO Board of Directors and is associated with the Academy of Religion and Mental Health.

He acted as advisor to the National Federation of Temple College Youth for the four-year duration of the organization. He has also completed a course in Pastoral Psychiatry at Bellevue Hospital in New York City.

Pre-Registration Shortens Enrollment Procedure

Students Scheduled Heaviest On Monday

BY JO ANN COKER

A five-day pre-registration period ends today at Carolina with the majority of the 6,050 students who plan to return for spring semester having enrolled.

Pre-registration enabled many continuing students to enroll in spring semester classes in advance of regular registration January 29. Classes were maintained during the period, but students were to complete the procedure during free time and scheduled hours when faculty members were available.

New Gamecock Staff Named

Doug Gray, journalism junior, has been named editor of the "Gamecock" for the spring semester. Joan Wolcott, a sophomore in journalism, will act as managing editor. Seniors Bob Hill and Murray Coker were named business manager and advertising manager, respectively.

Other staff officers announced at the "Gamecock" banquet last night are: Jo Ann Coker and Pat Peden, news editors; Blanding Clarkson and Fred Schumpert, sports editors; Rosemary Hankins, feature editor; Cloudy Hardy, society editor; Gail Broughton, campus editor; Jimmy Pressley, circulation manager; Sherry Rottman, exchange editor; and Emily Redding, business secretary.

Howard Hellams, outgoing editor, presided at the banquet which was held at the Capital Club. Guest speaker was Mr. John E. Montgomery, editor of "The Columbia Record."

Gray was immediate past managing editor and past sports editor of the paper. He was president of Pi Kappa Phi and is currently junior class president, secretary of KSK and a member of Student Senate.

Student Dance Scheduled

All-white entertainment will perform at the next Student Senate dance, February 3, at Township Auditorium from 8 to 12 p.m.

Featured on the program will be the Mar-Keys, Dion, and the Dovells. The Mar-Keys will provide the music for dancing and the Dovells and Dion adding vocal entertainment.

The Mar-Keys are an eight-piece band with two vocalists. Their latest hit is an instrumental, "Last Night." The Dovells are a relatively new group consisting of five members. They hail from Philadelphia and currently rate on the Hit Parade with their recording, "The Bristol Stomp." Dion, formerly with the Belmonts, is now recording on his own, and his two big records are "Run Around Sue" and "The Wanderer."

Admission will be by I. D. card, and date tickets will be available for $1.00 each. They will be on sale February 1, 2, and 3 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the downstairs Russell House Lobby.

Dress for the dance will be casual. Faculty members will serve as chaperones for the event.

One disadvantage of the system came to light when it was discovered that students were cutting classes in order to register for courses, time, and professors they wanted.

Student Opinion

Student opinion seems to be that "pre-registration was a good idea"; an idea not entirely shared by the faculty, who suffered under a double load of registration and classes.

Dr. Rollin E. Godfrey, director of admissions and registration, said disadvantages of USC pre-registration are that students don't have sufficient time with their advisors, and the tension students feel about getting into classes is too great.

By using the five-day procedure, the confusion of registering large numbers of students in one day was lessened, according to Dr. Godfrey.

Closer Association

It is hoped that a closer association of students and faculty advisors was achieved, since registration materials were obtained from advisors.

The "check station," where each student's materials are examined for accuracy and completeness, and checking approval of materials by the dean of each student's school were eliminated this semester.

Identification card photographs have also been eliminated because of delays caused by machine breakdowns, cost of making the photographs, and problems of distribution outweigh the use of the photograph.

Favors Good Students

Pre-registration favors the good student who habitually passes all courses, according to Dr. Godfrey. Disadvantages of the procedure result when a student fails a prerequisite course after he has enrolled for the succeeding course.

Course failures can greatly complicate arrangement of student and class schedules when large numbers of students are involved, as in freshman classes.

Planning for the pre-registration process has been going on for more than a year, Dr. Godfrey said. Initial plans were made in September, 1960, and were revised and refined after each succeeding registration period.

"Pre-registration procedure is another step in a continuing attempt to improve the complicated process of enrolling the University's thousands of students for classes," said Dr. Godfrey.

Heaviest pre-registration was Monday, with a lull during the middle of the week, and heavier crowds later.

DON'T FENCE ME IN

Even pre-registration didn't eliminate some of the long lines and "mobbing" that occurred in various campus buildings during the week. Faculty members had a double load of classes and scheduling.

USC Awarded Science Grant

A National Science Foundation (NSF) grant of $85,400 to the University will support next summer's mathematics institute at the University, NSF announced recently.

The grant to USC is the largest of four in South Carolina.

National Science Foundation

awards the grants to aid high school and college teachers of science, mathematics and engineering to return to school for a new view of the subject matter they teach.

The summer mathematics institute at USC is distinctive in the state because participants may elect to attend a series of coordinated summer institutes leading to a specified goal such as the degree of master of mathematics, or attend only a single "unitary" summer session like those at other South Carolina colleges.

About 20,500 high school teachers and 2,000 college professors will be aided by the $26.4 million in NSF grants awarded for 475 institutes next summer.

Intelligent Faith Week Begins Soon

Intelligent Faith Week, formerly Religious Emphasis Week, will be held on campus February 5-9.

If any organization or group would like a guest speaker, one can be obtained by writing to Box 425, campus mail. The name of the organization, the place and time when it will meet (including an alternate time if possible), and the person responsible for the meeting should be given.

The sponsors of Intelligent Faith Week will be glad to supply a speaker to anyone interested, but they must be contacted immediately. The schedule is now being drawn up. If the group or organization waits too long, a speaker may not be available.

Intelligent Faith Week, an annual event at the University, brings many outstanding religious speakers to the campus. Special events during the week include lectures, dorm devotions, and question and answer periods with the religious authorities.

Final Exam Schedule

DATE	9:00 A.M.	2:00 P.M.
January 17, Wed.	English Group and 12 TThS	9 MWF
18, Thurs.	Psychology Group and 2 TTh	11 MWF
19, Fri.	Mathematics Group and 3 MWF	10 MWF
20, Sat.	Economics Group and 1 MWF	9 TThS
22, Mon.	History Group and 4 MWF	10 TThS
23, Tues.	Language Group and 3 TThS	11 TThS
24, Wed.	Biology Group and All other regularly scheduled classes	12 MWF
25, Thurs.	8 MWF	8 TThS
26, Fri.	2 MWF	Makeup Exam Period

- If the above schedule results in any conflict, it may be resolved as most convenient for the professor and student involved.
- Examinations for classes not scheduled above, classes that meet once a week, and/or night classes will be scheduled by Department Heads or Deans concerned during the regular examination period, excluding Sunday.
- Many students will fail courses this semester which are pre requisite to second semester courses for which they will have pre-registered. It is important, therefore, that final grades in all such courses be posted in the usual manner as quickly as possible in order that such students may meet the deadline date for changes in schedule next semester.
