The Ambassador from the Republic of China will visit the Carolina campus Monday and Tuesday. Students in the law school, members of the International Relations Club, and members of IS 204 will have an opportunity to meet Dr. and Mrs. Tingfu F. Tsiang, when he addresses the class and campus organizations.

Arriving in Columbia Sunday afternoon, Dr. Tsiang will also address the University Faculty Club and the Columbia Kiwanis Club at luncheon meetings.

From August, 1947, through July, 1962, Dr. Tsiang represented the Republic of China to the UN General Assembly. He also served as a delegate to the Security Council for his country. Since November, 1961, he has been ambassador to the United States.

Dr. Tsiang did undergraduate work at Oberlin College and received his Ph.D. from Columbia University. After his return to China in 1923, he taught history at Nankai and Tsinghua Universities.

Prior to World War II, Dr. Tsiang was Chinese Ambassador to the Soviet Union. During World War II he served as Director of Political Affairs under President Chiang Kai-Shek. During the post-war period, Dr. Tsiang acted as Director-General of Relief and Rehabilitation.

Among the published works of Ambassador Tsiang are Modern China, A History and Selected Diplomatic Documents of China.

Dr. Richard L. Walker will act as the ambassador's host during his visit to the Carolina Campus.

Registrar Forsees Increased Enrolment

Predictions of an unprecedented fall enrollment growth at USC were bolstered by the announcement of a 15.7 per cent increase in applications for admission, indications that many applicants are more highly qualified than in the past, and a new academic regulation on scholarship standing.

A March 1 report by Dr. Rollin E. Godfrey, director of admissions and registration at the University, shows that 2,063 potential students have applied for September admission, an increase of 15.7 per cent over a year ago.

Dr. Godfrey said he has "a distinct impression that our applicants this year have higher scores on the College Boards, although there has been no actual count."

He said the University "is decidedly heartened by indications there will be further increase this year in the number of superior students applying, and the obvious improvement in the high school preparation of the applicants.

"For example, applications from 20 or more semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship competition are already on hand."

USC President Thomas F. Jones said recently that "postwar babies" now in high schools "will deluge colleges in the next two years." He said the number of university and college applicants can be expected to rise because of reduction in secondary school drop-outs and an increase in the percentage of high school students seeking to enter college.

At that time, Dr. Jones also said the percentage of South Carolina students in higher education who attend the University of South Carolina has increased and can be expected to rise further.

Law Senator's Bill Designed For Gamecock 'Investigation'

No Honesty Here, Says Davenport

A law student who learned the principles of honesty at the University of Virginia said Wednesday that apparently there is no honor system at Carolina.

Demby Davenport, student senator and native of Greer, S. C., told The Gamecock, "Some people walk around the University lifting other people's property. There's just a little bit too much thieving going on around here. I have to lock my car all the time. You name it, they'll take it."

No Honor System

Commenting on the bill he introduced in Student Senate concerning alleged misappropriation of funds by members of The Gamecock staff, Davenport said, "I've always been at schools where there was an honor system. There seems to be no honor system here at Carolina."

Davenport was an undergraduate at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, which, he said, was "founded on what is known as the honor system."

In explaining his action in the open session of Senate, Davenport said, "My motion was for the sole purpose of giving their (a Senate subcommittee's) findings to an administrative body of the University composed mostly of the faculty, much to my disappointment."

"An Assumption"

He admitted the whole question of misappropriation of funds for the Miss Carolina Contest sponsored by The Gamecock is "an assumption. I just made a motion that this alleged misappropriation be investigated."

Davenport said also that he has not been at the University "very long," and that he was not familiar with the operation of the campus newspaper.

When asked where he received his information concerning the alleged misappropriation, Davenport said, "You'll have to check with Todd Wilson on that. I don't know myself what authority I might or might not have to make a statement." President of the Student Body Todd Wilson was not available for comment.

Newspaper Questioned Once Again

The Student Senate, after closing its doors to the public at last week's meeting, once again allowed the news media to sit in on its session.

A bill calling for the transfer of The Gamecock funds, which was presented at the secret session, was kept in committee.

The resolution resulted from a report from the Committee on Monetary Affairs saying that there was a mishandling of funds collected from the "Miss Carolina" contest.

"Lack Of Honor"

Another resolution in conjunction with the first proposed bill, was presented by Sen. Demby Davenport. Before stating his bill, Davenport said that at Carolina "there is little student government" and "lack of honor" in the Carolina Community.

Sen. Davenport proposed that the findings of the monetary committee be turned over to the Disciplinary Committee. He urged that the matter be investigated further and those responsible for "his 'flagrant abuse of responsibility' be removed from the staff."

This motion was also sent to committee for further study.

Dr. Guilds, a native of Columbia and son of a former president of Columbia College, was born on the "C" Square campus. He received his high school diploma from Columbia High School.

Dr. Guilds went to Wofford for his B.A. in English. His college career was interrupted by World War II.

Academic Atmosphere

After receiving his degree from Wofford, the new department head worked for about two months at Dan River Mills; however, he soon learned that he was not satisfied away from an academic atmosphere and he enrolled in the graduate school at Duke University. He received his M.A. and doctorate from Duke.

Dr. Guilds taught at Duke, Clemson and East Central State College of Oklahoma before joining the English faculty at Texas Technological College at Lubbock in 1956. In 1961 he became the head of the English Department at Texas Tech, directing more than 70 faculty members and serving a student body of 12,000.

He is author of several papers concerning the works of Poe, Hawthorne and Simms. In 1960 he was a visiting lecturer at the University of Damascus under a Smith-Mundt grant. His The Concept of Man in Hemingway's Fiction, was published in Arabic in Damascus.

His current research includes preparation of a critical edition of the short stories of William Gilmore Simms and a book-length monograph on Nathaniel Hawthorne.

Final Bills

The third motion passed, presented by Sen. Sara Najjar, called for a television room to be established in South Dorm. This room would be open only to residents of the hall.

Sen. Perry Moses' motion asked for a stipend for the student body president of $325 beginning in the academic year of September, 1964. This was unanimously passed.

Frosh Leader Announces Class Dance, Meeting

BY SIG HUITT
Chief Reporter

Freshmen will be feted next Friday evening to the first freshman class dance in recent history, announces Bill Youngblood, class president.

Sponsored by the class in conjunction with the Student Union Committee, the event will be held from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. in Russell House's main cafeteria.

Music will be provided by "The Swinging Four" featuring "Peaches" on the vocals. Also, an extra attraction will be "Zolley" doing his limbo act.

Admission is one I.D. card per couple and dress will be informal. Preceding the dance on Wednesday, a class meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in the Russell House assembly room.

"The purpose of the meeting is to acquaint the class with the work of the new freshman council," relates Pres. Youngblood.

One project of the council is an evaluation of the orientation program presented to incoming students at the beginning of each semester. The council's report will be submitted to the Student Senate in the spring.

"In the past, the officers held more or less honorary positions, and the classes lacked unity," said the president. "This year has been just a start in efforts to pull the class members closer together."
