SGA committee to study security

By JOHN SHARKEY
 Gamecock Staff Writer

A special Student Government Association (SGA) committee investigating safety problems in the Bates House area will meet tonight. Sam Kaplan, committee chairman, said that the committee will try to work out alternative plans to insure the safety of students using the ramp.

FIVE STUDENTS have been robbed in the Bates House area since the dormitories opened. The robberies have occurred primarily at night and have always involved a single student being surrounded by a group of youths who have demanded the student's wallet.

Kaplan said that one of the suggestions under consideration will be student patrols. Students with walkie-talkies would patrol the area in pairs. Another suggestion is to have a similar patrol on the Bates West roof.

Kaplan said the committee will be working with campus security personnel and that a representative from the campus police will be on the committee.

Kaplan said, "Some people are afraid, but more are irritated or aggravated than scared right now."

TERRY FEHELEY, Bates House president and a member of the SGA committee, believes that a student patrol will only alleviate the problem temporarily.

"It's all right now because a lot of people are interested," Feheley said. He thinks it would be difficult to get students to patrol every night until the end of the semester.

Feheley said that more lights are needed in the ramp area particularly because there will soon be more hours of darkness.

A memorandum from George A. Key, director of Public Safety, Security and Communications, was sent to residents of Bates House, Bates West and Cliff Apartments. The memorandum suggested some safety precautions.

Key urged all students not to walk alone anywhere on campus at night. He also said that walking security personnel patrols are being doubled temporarily. He said that a gate will be installed on the stairs leading to the triangular athletic fields so that they cannot be used as an escape exit after 7 p.m.
