HOSPICE continued from page 1

"They're crucial to us."

To get involved, intensive training is required. Hospice philosophy and history, death, loss, grief and staff backgrounds are discussed at these sessions. Also, communication and active listening skills are required for job applicants.

Training will be at 10 a.m. Saturday at 6300 St. Andrews Road. For more information, call Kellie West at 798-6605. Hospice will take a group with as few as five people if necessary. To get more people, Hospice will work around schedules.

"Many of the volunteers had experience from a family member. We're not just looking for free help," said Leslie

Swift, a registered nurse at Hospice.

Ridgeway resident Nancy Finley's mother is under the wing of Hospice.

"A social worker, volunteer and a nurse come to my home once a week, and they take care of my mother," Finley said. "Leslie Swift is wonderful, and I don't know what I would do without her. They've been life laborers for me since July or August of 1994. I'm able to go out and shop with their help. They really help me to cope with this."

Hospice volunteers follow a patient's family for 13 months after a death. They do bereavement work to help families deal with death and to give them additional support.
