the area. Fees can range from $100 to $500 per semester.

Newberry has few fraternities and sororities, but 25 percent of the students are involved in Greek life. Each organization has a designated floor in the residence halls, with two organizations having privately owned houses.

Auburn has 30 fraternities and 18 sororities, with 22 percent of the student body in Greek organizations. Sorority members live in dorms on assigned floors, while most fraternity members live on designated off-campus streets. Fees range from $300 to $900 per semester depending on the choice of residence.

TUITION

Tuition at the schools surveyed in Measuring Up varied depending on whether they were public or private and whether the cost was for in-state or out-of-state students.

The highest tuition overall was at the two private schools surveyed. Vanderbilt was highest at $12,182 per semester, regardless of residency status. Fifty percent of Vanderbilt's students receive financial aid.

Newberry, the other private school surveyed, was second at $6,397 per semester, regardless of in-state or out-of-state status. However, more than 90 percent of Vanderbilt students receive financial aid.

Georgia was the most expensive public school, at $5,814 per semester for out-of-state students and $3,900 per semester for in-state students. About half of Georgia's students receive financial aid.

For Gena, the connection a member made was with a poster of a dancer. The girl told Walling that she was a dancer from New York. The poster, however, belonged to a roommate of Gena's.

After leaving the church, Gena said she stayed away from any religion.

"I didn't want to hear anything about God," she said, "and certainly not anything about Christ."

A little more than two years ago, Walling returned to the Methodist church.

USC's tuition of $4,039 for out-of-state students and $1,598 for in-state students was about average for public schools. Seventy percent of USC students receive financial aid.

ATHLETICS

When game attendance and renovations are taken into consideration, USC and Florida are tied for tops.

An average of 84,000 Gator fans crowded every football game in 1994, putting Florida's attendance in the top five nationwide. Gamecock attendance ranked 12th in the nation, with an average of 70,470 fans per game.

But pigskin to the side, Arkansas basketball fans deserve kudos for "maxing out" Bud Walton Arena when the former NCAA champions were in the house. The arena seats 19,200, but an average of 20,059 fans came to each game during the 1994-95 season.

USC and Florida athletics facilities are being renovated and expanded to accommodate volleyball, soccer and other sports.

S.C. State and Newberry deserve the spirit awards, considering they're both smaller schools. SCSU is in the final stages of expanding Bulldog Stadium to 22,800 seats, while Newberry draws about 4,000 fans per game to its 5,400-seat stadium.

But baseball doesn't seem to be a top priority at either school. Two seasons ago, SCSU cancelled its program. At Newberry, fans have access to a 200-seat stadium, but for the best seats in the house, many bring lawn chairs.

She said she was baptized as a Methodist as a show of faith.

"The Shandon church's views were that only if you are baptized with their church will you be saved," she said.

Anyone who they think they, or a friend, might be involved in a cult can call the Counseling and Human Development Center at 777-5223 or the Office of Student Affairs at 777-4172.

The Gamecock was unable to interview church leaders as of press time.

HEALTH CARE

With access to women's care, orthopedics, dermatology, mental health and nutrition clinics, students at Florida are probably the healthiest in the survey.

Even if that's not entirely true, Florida students overall seemed pleased with the low-cost services at the university and the accessibility of dental care at Shands Teaching Hospital, where UF medical students also attend classes.

Student health fees are $4.32 per credit hour per semester, birth control pills cost between $3.50 and $8.50 per pack, and flu shots are $10.

This semester, the university offered free HIV tests to students, while USC charged $10 for the lab fee.

Florida's student health center is staffed by seven physicians, six physician assistants, nine nurse practitioners and 22 registered nurses who serve 120,000 outpatient visits per year.

Clemson's fees and services are higher than most of the schools in our survey.

At the beginning of each semester, full-time students are charged $95. Birth control pills are $12 to $14 per pack, and confidential HIV tests cost between $12 and $15.

Newberry's health services are personalized by nurse Susan Hayes.

Hayes has provided full-time, on-call care to students for the past 16 years. She administers immunizations and first aid and drives students to a local doctor's office when they need more specialized care.

When students are too ill to come to her office, Hayes makes dorm calls. Because Newberry is a Lutheran school, she isn't allowed to distribute birth control pills.

GRADUATION

At USC, all graduation candidates are invited to participate without having to wake up early for a ceremony.

And unlike other schools in the survey, all Carolina candidates are awarded their diplomas on stage.

In the May 12 ceremony, 1,533 graduates will begin their march at 3 p.m., and May 13, 1,360 more candidates will receive their degrees beginning at 10:30 a.m.

A 50-piece orchestra will provide background music for the ceremonies.

Diane Sanderson, assistant to the registrar, said each of the ceremonies will last about 90 minutes.

Gov. David Beasley will speak at the May 12 ceremony, and chemist Carl Djerassi will speak May 13.

At Arkansas and Georgia, students are asked to stand and be recognized with fellow candidates in their area of study. Degree candidates usually receive their degrees in separate college ceremonies after the general commencement.

All Georgia candidates who want to walk across stage, including those for summer and fall 1994 and winter and spring 1995, must wait until the June 17 ceremony.

Shirley Farmer, UGA's assistant registrar, said only candidates with 4.0 GPAs are recognized individually during the ceremony.
