TEACHING continued from page 1

Other students said they use information they learned in their professor's classroom in other classes.

"You know you learned something when you use knowledge from one class to answer a question on another professor's test," said Amy Bigham when speaking about Professor Harry Sapienza.

Many Mortar Board members also mentioned their professor's dedication to teaching, a dedication that went beyond the classroom. This dedication includes Professor William Bearden teaching style of beginning and ending each class by asking, "What can I do for you?" Professors continued to show their dedication to teaching during the awards ceremony as one even performed a harmonic duet with one of his current students; Burritt and Liniger played "Amazing Grace" for the audience.

According to Steve Mann, recipient of the 1995 Amoco Outstanding Teacher Award, excellent teachers are those who love their career. They are the ones who are happy to go to work on a cold, rainy Monday.

Mann told Mortar Board members that they should model their own career moves after the faculty members they honored.

"What distinguishes these teachers is their passion for their work," said Mann. "They are a great example to follow when you think about your own career. Find what you truly like to do and throw yourself into it."

ving in a suspicious manner. Suspect car left the premises, then returned a short time later, to park illegally in the lot. Six subjects exited the car, and four suspects acted as lookouts while the other two kicked out the passenger-side window of a parked car and entered the vehicle. All suspects then returned to the suspect vehicle and left the premises. A University patrol car attempted a traffic stop, but the suspect vehicle refused to stop at first. All suspects were taken into custody, but only one was transported to Richland County Detention Center; the others were juveniles.

Larceny of a wallet, Douglas. Victim reported that unknown persons removed their wallet from an unsecured location. Total loss: $40

Grand larceny auto (attempted), conspiracy, possession of tools of a crime, S-12 Lot. Complainant, a student, observed and was able to videotape the suspects breaking into a parked vehicle. Complainant then called University Police with a full description of the suspects and their vehicle. Suspect vehicle was located a short time later by a patrol car and a traffic stop was performed. Suspects verbally admitted to committing the crime and were taken into custody. A subsequent search of the vehicle revealed screwdrivers and other tools typically used in autobreakings, as well as a Colt .45 handgun in the trunk.

Larceny of necklace, Columbia Hall. Victim reported that unknown persons removed a rope-wound gold necklace. Total loss: $400.

Friday, Nov. 10
Malicious injury to personal property, S-6 Lot. Victim reported that unknown persons used an unknown object to break the victim's vehicle windshield. Estimated loss: $500.

Larceny of microphone, Gambrell. Victim reported that unknown persons removed a wireless microphone from an unsecured location. Estimated loss: $285

Malicious injury to personal property, S-18 Lot. Victim reported that unknown persons smashed in the driver's-side vent window. Estimated loss: $150

Thursday, Nov. 9
Autobreaking, larceny of a stereo, S-22 Lot. Victim reported that unknown persons smashed the rear driver's-side window and removed a CD player, an amplifier and other electronic equipment from the vehicle. Estimated loss: $730.

Larceny of a textbook, recovery, P.E. Center front desk. Victim reported that unknown persons had removed a textbook from the unsecured front desk. Textbook was later recovered when a subject attempted to sell it to Addams Bookstore.

Auto tampering, larceny from auto (attempted), unlawful possession of firearm, S-8 Lot. Arresting officer observed suspect vehicle enter the lot and park in an empty space next to another vehicle. Subjects then exited their vehicle and walked around the lot in a suspicious manner, crouching down so as not to be seen, and trying to pull the handles of several vehicles as they went.

Subjects then re-entered their vehicle and left the scene. A traffic stop was then performed, and the subjects were frisked, revealing that one subject was in possession of several rounds of .38-caliber ammunition. A further search of the suspect vehicle revealed one pistol each in the front and back seats.

Wednesday, Nov. 8
Assault and battery, 700 Bull St. Victim reported that suspect did physically and verbally harass the victim after an argument over a parking space.

Larceny of a wallet, recovery, Leconte. Victim reported that unknown persons removed her wallet from an unsecured location on the second floor. Wallet was later recovered in a first-floor restroom. Total loss: $35.

Autobreaking, larceny of stereo, 1200 Wheat St. Victim reported that unknown persons forced the lock on the sliding rear window of his car and subsequently removed a post-factory stereo system from the dashboard. Estimated loss: $475.

Judicial Board examines consequences in drug use case

For the most part, George had enjoyed academic and social success during his first year of college, completing the year with an enviable GPA and a number of new friends. Life seemed relatively problem-free; however, looks can be, and often are, deceiving.

While it seemed that George had the world at his feet, it began to crumble before his eyes. A medical injury had put his athletic career on hold, his parents were in the midst of divorce and each was experiencing financial problems. The quick chain of events caught the sophomore off guard, but this was only the beginning of his worries.

Halfway through the semester, residents in the hall noticed a change in his behavior and a new circle of friends. On weekends, strange odors came from his dorm room. Eventually, one resident became concerned and spoke with the resident adviser. Observing the same thing, the RA notified the residence hall director, who, in turn, explained the situation to the USC Police Department.

The USCPD immediately executed a search warrant for drugs and paraphernalia. Arriving to find police in the midst of the search, George attempted to run but was captured. Police found a strong box full of money, eight bags of marijuana and a drug scale in the suspect's closet. George was taken to Columbia City Jail because he had violated state law as well as university policy.

Accepting responsibility for the charges, George opted to have the case heard by the campus Judicial Board, where he was represented by a Columbia attorney.

Because of the mitigating circumstances of the case, he was found in violation of the Conduct Code's drug policy and obligated to complete the following sanctions:

- n Suspension from the university for a year;
- n Upon return, disciplinary probation for a year; and
- n Permanent denial of on-campus housing.

Because of the serious nature of the offense, the student would be allowed to return provided that no evidence of further drug involvement was discovered and the student enrolled in a drug counseling program and arranged to meet with staff of the Office of Student Development on a bi-weekly basis for the first semester of the student's return to campus.

This is a sample case that came before the campus Judicial Board to give students an idea of what the judicial discipline process is like. There are no absolute punishments for an infraction.

BLOOD DRIVE continued from page 1

WCOS on Wednesday, and WNOK on Thursday with free Blood Battle T-shirts, free pizza from Little Caesars, drawings for a $200 gift certificate from Schubach Jewelers, free Nikes from Todd and

Moore, and a lot more giveaways. For those who cringe at the thought of giving blood, SCAMP the bear, the American Red Cross mascot, will be searching the cameras for donors and explaining the endless need for blood.

SCAMP reminds everyone, "this is a win-win situation for all, so give blood and be a winner."

Do you know where the accent goes?

Resume

Although the placement of the accent is no longer important, the content of your (rez ü mā) most definitely is.

The Garnet & Black Quarterly is in need of advertising account executives for the remainder of the school year.

Account executives will work 15-20 hours a week making their own schedules. Not only can you develop and improve your sales skills, you will also have the opportunity to work with the layout and design of magazine advertisements. The staff is comprised completely of students just like you.

To apply, simply come up to the advertising office on the fourth floor of the Russell House. Applications will be accepted there on a rolling basis.

No prior experience is necessary, our accent is on enthusiasm.

If there are any questions, call Douglas Habgood at 777-4249.

No. Come on. No. Please. No. What's wrong? Nothing. Then come on. No. It'll be great. No. I know you want to. No, I don't. Yes, you do. No. Well, I do. Please stop it. I know you'll like it. No. Come on. I said No. Do you love me? I don't know. I love you. Please don't. Why not? I just don't want to. I bought you dinner, didn't I? Please stop. Come on, just this once. No. But I need it. Don't. Come on. No. Please. No. What's wrong. Nothing. Then come on. No. It'll be great. Please stop. I know you need it too. Don't. Come on. I said No. But I love you. Stop. I gotta have it. I don't want to. Why not? I just don't. Are you frigid? No. You gotta loosen up. Don't. It'll be good. No it wont. Please. Don't. But I need it. No. I need it bad. Stop it. I know you want it. No. Dont. Come on. No. What's wrong? Nothing. Then come on. No. It'll be great. Stop. I really need it. Stop. You have to. Stop. No, you stop. No. Take your clothes off. No. Shut up and do it. NOW.
