Abel, who is part of the uniformed car and foot patrols, said he prefers working for USC. "I'd already worked for them for two years as a reserve officer," he said. "It's kind of like a small town; it's quieter than a big town, but it still has some of the big town problems."

"It gives you a little more freedom. The possibility for advancement or promotion, I feel, is pretty good."

The lower pay didn't deter Abel. "As a whole, we get paid bottom of the barrel," he said. "It doesn't really bother me that much because this is where I want to be."

"I'm not in it for the money. I enjoy helping people."

University in Ohio.

"I wanted to do translations because my future objective is to join government...to work for foreign affairs of my country," Missihoun said.

He plans to work for the Organization of African Unity, which requires a knowledge of more than one language.

Missihoun stresses to people he comes in contact with to "broaden your horizons."

"People that don't travel are narrow minded," he said.

In a world of so many different people and cultures, traveling is the only way to experience them.

Of the countries Missihoun has traveled to, he prefers Portugal. "The people are very warm and they act a lot like the African people," he said.

According to his students, Missihoun is a hard-working teacher.

"Honore is an asset to USC because he doesn't just teach; he tries to get to know and help his students the best way he can," Jackson said.

ROBERT WALTON The Gamecock
Jamel Franklin was hoisted onto the shoulders of his supporters after being elected the new SG vice president during the runoff.

- The SG vice president's main job is to be the head of the SG Senate, and Franklin said that would be his first priority.
- "I'm going to immediately focus on the duties of being vice president. I think the vice president's first official activity is to contact the new senators, congratulate them and encourage them to prepare for the task before us as new members of Student Government."

Briefs

Clothesline Project begins

The second annual Clothesline Project is a visual display honoring women who have survived intimate violence. Women are invited to design T-shirts that reflect their feelings about their experiences. Each shirt will be on display during Women's History Month in March. Women interested in participating should attend a shirt-making session in Russell House from 7-9 p.m. today in room 305. Counselors will be available for assistance at each session. Call Kim Sheffield at 777-8248 for more information. The project is sponsored by Sexual Assault Services, Rape Crisis Network and Sistercare.

Leadership Fitness Series Workshop to be held today

"Men vs. Women's Style of Leadership" is the topic of a leadership workshop today at 4 p.m. on Russell House 303. The presenters are Sarah Huntington and Jeff Smith. They will compare leadership styles of men and women and will offer tips on communication between the genders.

Mock interviews on Wednesday

Mock Interview Sessions will be held on Wednesday at 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. on the sixth floor of the BA building in the University Career Center. Those interested in participating should sign up in the Campus Activity Center by today.

Academic Skills program scheduled for Wednesday

A workshop titled "Learning Styles" is set for Wednesday at 8:00 p.m. in Russell House room 309. Participants will hear about their individual learning styles.

Discussion Panel on Youth Crime and Violence to be held tomorrow

The College of Criminal Justice and the SC Chapter of the National Association of Blacks in Criminal Justice is sponsoring a discussion entitled "At-Risk African-American Youth" Wednesday at 6:00 p.m. in Calcott Auditorium. The guest speaker is Dr. Glover Hopson, Director of the Black Male Conference. Call Dr. Andrew Chishom at 777-0695 for information.
