Dying Eggs

KARA STOVALL The Gamecock

near the port city of Dubrovnik. The plane's middle was burned.

Croatian police and U.S. soldiers were searching for bodies and survivors. Four bodies — three men and a woman — had been recovered by midnight, Croatian Prime Minister Zlatko Matesa told Croatian state TV.

A woman found alive at the scene died as a NATO helicopter carried her to a Dubrovnik hospital, flying through heavy rains and high winds.

Dubrovnik hospital doctors said they remained on full alert to treat survivors, but there was no word early Thursday whether anyone else had lived through the crash.

Brown, 54, had been traveling in the region with about a dozen top American executives exploring business possibilities in the Balkans. Pentagon officials in Washington said that 27 passengers and a crew of six were on board the flight to Dubrovnik.

The plane took off from Tuzla, Bosnia-Herzegovina, headquarters for U.S. soldiers with the NATO-led peace mission. A senior defense official in Washington said there were no indications of hostile action against the plane.

"We've got a pretty clear air picture in that area," the official said. "Early indications are it has more to do with tough weather and a tough approach."

Helicopters searching for Brown's plane turned around in heavy fog, but more than 100 special Croatian police managed to reach the hill, known locally as Sveti Ivan, or St. John.

Maj. Bryan Holt of U.S. European Command in Stuttgart, Germany, said a U.S. search-and-rescue team was at the scene, about an hour's walk from the village.

Brown's aircraft disappeared from radar screens at 2:52 p.m. (7:52 a.m. EST) between the tiny island of Kalamota, a few miles southwest of Dubrovnik, and the Cilipi airport, Croatian security sources said. Visibility in the area was no more than 100 yards, they said.

The plane was a T-43 — the military version of a Boeing 737. According to the Air Force public affairs office, it was the same plane used earlier this week in Bosnia by Defense Secretary William Perry and for the recent trip to the Balkans by First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton and her daughter, Chelsea.

The plane was last inspected and cleared for service in June 1995 at Ramstein Air Base, Germany. It came off the Boeing line in 1973.

Officials said the plane approached the airport from Kalamota. Its path to Dubrovnik took it over Zupski Bay, and it apparently crashed into the hill as it crossed over land on the south side of the bay. The airport, 10 miles from Dubrovnik, lies just over the hill.

The airport is situated in mountainous terrain about three miles inland from the Adriatic Sea. Planes usually approach it from over the water to avoid the mountains inland, but the approach from the sea is tricky as well. Before landing, planes encounter hills 300 to 600 feet high before a quick descent to the sole two-mile-long runway.

The HINA news agency said Prime Minister Zlatko Matesa of Croatia and U.S. Ambassador Peter Galbraith, who had been in Dubrovnik to welcome Brown, were touring the crash site.

Brown, who had planned to spend three days in Bosnia and Croatia, had said he was "really exhilarated" by his Wednesday visit to Bosnia: He brought hamburgers to U.S. troops in Tuzla, saw the fruits of peacekeeping and the potential for reconstruction.

Brown praised the soldiers, saying that without the U.S.-led NATO force, people wouldn't be returning to their homes, families would not be reunited, and meetings between former enemies would not be taking place.

"So all of the United States says thanks to all of you."

After lunch, he left for the airport and took off for Dubrovnik.

Correction

In yesterday's story, "Students breakfast with Palms," sophomore Lekisha Middleton's name was misspelled.

We give new meaning to the word "suite."
