S.C. to celebrate Archaeology Week

STAFF REPORT

South Carolina's rich Colonial past will be celebrated throughout the state during the fifth annual South Carolina Archaeology Week Sept. 28-Oct. 5. Coordinated by the SC Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology at USC, more than 30 programs in 25 locations will be featured. Activities such as canoe trips, open excavations, tours and demonstrations will take place during the week and continue through October. Colonial archaeology is an important theme, because it is the study of our own society, state archaeologist and director of the S.C. Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology Bruce Rippeteau said. "South Carolina has an extremely rich archaeological record for the Colonial period. These sites are a priceless part of our cultural heritage," he said. "They help us understand the roots of many of the challenges and opportunities currently facing our society." The statewide kick-off will be held in conjunction with the Maritime Archaeology Public Conference Sept. 28 at Fort Jackson on James Island in Charleston. After a 9 a.m. ceremony, the public is invited to attend the day-long conference featuring professional underwater archaeologists and hobby divers. An oyster roast and shrimp boil will follow the conference. Archaeology week activities will culminate Oct. 5 with the ninth-annual Archaeology Field Day at Sadlers Creek

State Park, near Anderson. Highlights will include demonstrations of prehistoric and historic technologies, performances by the Catawba Indian Nation, a New World Food Festival, shell engraving, storytelling, Native American beadwork, pottery making, artifact identification and a homemade barbecue. Those people arriving Oct. 4 can participate in a Lantern Tour of the Island of the Past. They will be able to "meet" prehistoric people and historic characters from Colonial and Civil War times. For more information and to receive a S.C. Archaeology Week Calendar or Events booklet, call Nena Powell Rice at the SC. Institute of Archaeology at 777-8170.

GREENBACKS

continued from page 1 of scholarship support. All candidates for the scholarships are nominated by their college or university. Information about the scholarship at USC can be obtained by contacting the Fellowship office. The USC deadline is October 22, 1996 in the Fellowship Office. For more information, contact Novella Beskid at 777-0958 or Doug Meade at 777-6183.

continued from page 1 Student Government, Patrick Wright. Senate Pro Tempore Darcie Shively announced her resignation after several years of Student Government service. Shively's announcement of resignation prompted several mentions of thanks for her leadership. It also prompted accusations of apathy from one senator to the others. "You're not really doing anything," Sen. Gene Willis told the members of Senate on Wednesday. "With [Darcie] leaving, we're really not going to have any leadership — that bothers me. We haven't seen any bills — and that bothers me," Willis said. SG vice president Jamel Franklin again emphasized the importance of the job of senator. "When we are elected, we must be responsible, and be responsible in attendance to meetings, especially," Franklin said. "We must come together and realize that we have a common goal — that is, to serve the students," Franklin concluded.

"Wright does admit, however, that the parking lot by Business Administration needs more lighting. As for the call boxes, Wright said, "Where there is new construction, there are also new call boxes."

to reflect the lights inside and make the garage brighter. Wright does admit, however, that the parking lot by Business Administration needs more lighting. As for the call boxes, Wright said, "Where there is new construction, there are also new call boxes." In addition to the goals that Wright promised to fulfill, he worked during the summer with College Club Systems Inc. on implementing a system in which students can access their e-mail over the phone lines.

Wright will find out more about this system next semester and hopes to have it implemented either late next semester or by the fall of 1997.

He has also worked to get an 800-number installed for TIPS. "That should be up and running next semester," Wright said.

Wright is currently working to get the hours extended on the Shuttlecock, USC's student transportation system.

His hope is that the buses will be able to run until 8 or 9 p.m., so people with late classes have transportation.

In addition, the president is trying to find a corporate sponsor for the buses to help defray the cost of extended hours.

A personal project of Wright's was to create a cabinet position for Spiritual Affairs. The goal of this new position is to bring the various religious organizations on campus closer in communications with each other.

"It gives them a voice, and it's good for the campus, too," Wright said.
