

LIGHT CAROLINA

With exams around the corner, it would be easy for the Carolina community to forget about the world around us. But most of the 280 student organizations are participating in community service during the holiday season. Each group alone has the opportunity to make a difference. But when each group joins together, USC has the opportunity to see just how much we Light Carolina.

Light Carolina is an effort to get all organizations involved in community service. It is also an opportunity to unite campus groups that otherwise wouldn't have much contact. During the annual University Tree Lighting Ceremony at 6 p.m. Dec. 6 on the Horseshoe, all groups will see how much Carolina has done has one.

If your group does not have a project yet, don't worry. The five sponsoring groups want you to join in. Not only USC's 280 student organizations are eligible. Residence halls, classes, departments and individuals can also become part of Light Carolina. If your group already has a project, e-mail gcked@sc.edu. Include your group's name, project, and contact name and number. If you need a project, call the contact person in the list below.

There are drop boxes in Student Media on the third floor of the Russell House for children's books for the Literacy Council, boxes at Student Government for toys and boxes in Residence Halls for clothes and can goods.

For more information, call the Office of Community Service, Student Government or The Gamecock.

Light Carolina is a work in progress that we hope will continue and grow each year. Thank you for making it possible.
