and has served to identify several bugs that need to be worked out in the system.

"I think it would free up some of the advisement time for more high quality discussions between the student and the faculty member," Miller said. "It would provide more instantaneous accurate information so that when you sit down with your adviser you don't sit 20 minutes looking through a catalogue, you are able to spend 20 minutes talking about what it is that you want to do."

DARS is expected to be combined with Visual Information Processing (VIP) in two or three years.

The forums are the first in a series of events aimed at getting better publicity for student government and to show that

"Student Government actually can do something."

"I think some of the things we do are not seen by the student body or they are internal corrections," Stauffer said. "If students complain, they need to have a voice for their complaints. We are the loudspeaker for that voice."

Student Government also plans to pressure the state legislature next semester with everything from "a muffin with a little card in it to a full fledged lobbyist packet" to encourage legislators to not cut the university's budget or raise the higher education's price index.

"I think it is time for us to take a more active role in student life, listen to concerns and try to voice them," Stauffer said. "You can go along walking around campus, walking down Greene Street and grumble all you want, but we are finally giving you a place to say something that will make change happen. [Students] should be there for that."

Manhunt is on for intended '20th hijacker'

BY PETE YOST AND MELISSA EDDY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A Yemeni man who tried but failed repeatedly to get into the United States was supposed to be the 20th hijacker on Sept. 11, the FBI said. The man is now the focus of a worldwide manhunt.

Ramzi Omar, also known as Ramsi Binalshibh, is thought to have intended to be part of the hijacking team that commandeered United Airlines Flight 93, which crashed in southwestern Pennsylvania.

He was never able to enter the country, despite three attempts by Mohamed Atta, the suspected ringleader of the 19 hijackers, to get him into the country before

Sept. 11, FBI Director Robert Mueller said Wednesday.

"We believe he was the 20th hijacker," he said. The FBI director said the teams that hijacked and crashed four commercial airliners had five members each except the United flight that crashed in a Pennsylvania field while on a flight path to Washington.

Mueller's assertion about Binalshibh marks a change from earlier suggestions by federal authorities that a man arrested in Minnesota, Zacarias Moussaoui, might have been the 20th hijacker.

Justice Department and FBI officials wouldn't comment about Mueller's remarks.

A month ago, Vice President Dick Cheney said Moussaoui, who was taken into custody the month before the hijackings, might have been intended as part of the terrorist crew that commandeered Flight 93.

Mueller said there was no information on the computer seized from Moussaoui that links him to the Sept. 11 attacks. That prompted officials to consider other suspects as the 20th hijacker, officials said.

At a security conference in Germany on Wednesday, FBI official Michael Rolince said: "As an investigator, I'm convinced there were supposed to be five people on this plane. ... Whoever that fifth person was is probably still alive."

"Clearly, we are looking into the pool of people who crossed paths with the hijackers" to find the 20th hijacker, said Rolince, FBI section leader for international terrorism.

U.S. officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said information recently obtained from Osama bin Laden operatives now in custody has helped provide a clearer picture of the hijacking plot and plans for follow-up attacks.

German authorities have issued international arrest warrants for three suspected accomplices of the hijackers: Binalshibh; Said Bahaji, a German national; and Zakariya Essabar of Morocco. All three left Hamburg shortly before the Sept. 11 attacks.

Attorney General John Ashcroft has said the three had extensive connections to Atta and Marwan Al-Shehhi, the suspected pilots of the hijacked planes that crashed into the World Trade Center in New York City, and Ziad Jarrah, suspected of flying the plane that crashed in Pennsylvania.
