Gamecocks have beat up are themselves. And Clemson of course.

So, with less than a full month left before kickoff, I say this: 2005 is going to be another exciting year for Gamecock football. The drama has never been higher on the field and off it. Fans should expect the unexpected. Many things will fly this fall, such as visors, vulgar language, excuses and maybe even the football.

Spurrier should strap in for a wild ride, as his former opponents look to take out years of repressed anger on the man who used to run the score up on them. In fact, the scoreboard might look more like a speedometer on the autobahn than anything else.

Just remember, loyal Gamecock fans, you can't say I didn't warn you.

■ GREATS

was named to the Hula Bowl in 2002.

The NFL didn't come knocking on draft day, but a free-agent contract with the Baltimore Ravens allowed Brewer a short professional career. The Ravens sent Brewer to NFL Europe in hopes he would be ready for the next season.

"I was with the Baltimore Ravens for the preseason until the last cut," Brewer said. "Ended up going to Europe to the Rein Fire and got traded to Berlin for the last four games. And Berlin won the World Bowl."

Brewer has settled down in Columbia with his wife and started a business. But even with his passion for the game, Brewer says he wouldn't change a thing.

"I met my wife here, I have tons of friends now," Brewer said. "I have no regrets of what I did. I had great time. That's pretty much all you can ask for."
