Lydia Float Takes First Place

The Lydia Cotton Mill float took first place in the Greater Clinton Christmas parade. The elaborate float consisted of a large gear symbolizing production for peace. A large golden liberty bell was on the rear, and a number of attractive Lydia young ladies added to the beauty of the float.

Mrs. Ione Wallace designed the prize-winning float, and she was assisted in preparations by mill carpenters and electricians and many volunteers from the village.

Christmas Time

Once again the Christmas season is right upon us, the time when our thoughts turn to joyous greetings and pleasant associations with our families and friends. It is a time when we should consider the many blessings we have received and to give thanks for being a citizen of these United States, one of the few free countries left in the world. We should resolve to do everything in our power to protect this heritage in the future by fulfilling all of our responsibilities as a good citizen.

We wish to express our gratitude to you for your fellowship and cooperation during the past year. We all have faced many and varied problems together and this fine spirit of working together has made the solutions easier, and has been accompanied with the pride of accomplishment.

Let us all thank God at this time for our many blessings and pray that peace may be established once again throughout the world.

A Very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to each of you and your families.

Christmas Thoughts

No one could tell me where my Soul might be. I searched for God, but He eluded me: I sought my Brother out,—and found all three.—Ernest Crosby.

Keep your heart free from hate, your mind from worry. Live simply; expect little; give much; fill your life with love; scatter sunshine. Forget self. Think of others, and do as you would be done by.—Major Edward Bowes.

Hope, like a gleaming candle's light, adorns and cheers our way; still, as darker grows the night, emits a brighter light.—Oliver Goldsmith.

The hills ahead look hard and steep and high, And often we behold them with a sigh; But as we near them level grows the road. We find on every slope, with every load, the climb is not so steep, the top so far. The hills ahead look harder than they are.—Douglas Malloch.

If the joy of life is in little things taken on the run. Let us run if we must — even the sands do that — but let us keep our hearts young and our eyes open that nothing worth our while shall escape us. And everything is worth our while if we only grasp it and its significance.—Victor Cherbuliez.

All higher motives, ideals, conceptions, sentiments in a man are of no account if they do not come forward to strengthen him for the better discharge of the duties which fall upon him in the ordinary course of life.—Henry Ward Beecher.

fruit juice and passed dainty favors around. Twenty-nine children were present.
