SPINNING
2nd Shift

By W. N. Nabors

Well, it's news time again. These months really run fast now. Your reporter had to "batch" four days two weeks ago while the wife was in Hays Hospital for treatment. I am glad to say she is better now. There are lots of colds around these days. I have had one and lost two days with it. Julia Fricks has been out several days due to sickness.

Mae Craine has been off this week because of illness. Lewis Howell, Filling Doffer, has lost several days due to sickness. Myrtle Robertson was also on the sick list this month, but is back at work now. Jessie Hairston lost several days but is better and is back at work. John Stone, another Filling Doffer, has been off several days due to sickness but is back at work.

We are glad to welcome to this shift two trainees, Clara Louise Griffin and Shirley Faye Stone. We hope they will like this shift.

Well, news is scarce this time, but we hope to have more next time, and will close by saying "May the Lord Bless you all and keep you until we meet again".

A Washington restaurant has installed this sign: "Hunger removed while you wait."

Safety Minded

Support the safety program.
Apply safety rules to your work.

Feel safety-minded.

Emphasize safety to others.

Think safety in everything.

Yield to safety suggestions.

For your own safety talk safety.

Insist on safety guards.

Report safety suggestions to your foreman.

Study safety rules.

Try to practice safety.

Safety plays a vitally important role in our everyday work and activities. Application of safety rules sometimes takes a while longer, but prevents many accidents. Safety practice should be a number one factor to everyone working. Failure to do a job the safest way sometimes results in the loss of a limb or causes some very serious accident.

We should always strive to practice safety at home, on the road, and especially on our jobs.
