

The Clothmaker

PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY CLINTON MILLS
EDITED BY MACK PARSONS, EXT. 54

Is He Qualified?

If you were hiring someone for a particular job, you would surely check thoroughly into his qualifications, his background, his reputation as a businessman to make sure he could handle the job satisfactorily.

In a way, the coming elections are a similar situation. You, as a citizen of the country, will be casting your vote to help determine who will have the job of representing your country in making laws we must live by.

Just as an employer would do, you should thoroughly investigate the potential employee. Find out everything you can about him and determine if he is going to take care of your property in a manner acceptable to you. Study the candidates' backgrounds and study the party platforms which they are endorsing. Study the issues as they are reported in the press or on the television or radio. Discuss politics with your neighbors and friends.

Carefully analyze all the information you have collected and then vote for the candidates who you would hire for the position they are seeking.

Keep in mind always that voting is more than a privilege, it is a responsibility. Intelligent voting is a basic requirement to the survival of a free and prosperous nation.

Graduate Edition

Anyone desiring additional copies of the May issue of The Clothmaker can pick them up in Mack Parsons' office, or notify your supervisor.

Additional copies will be distributed as long as the supply lasts.

VACATION TIME

Clint Mills Says:

"You know, along about VACATION TIME each year, I really begin thinking about the importance of a good attendance record. As we've talked before, VACATION PAY AND PROFIT SHARING are both figured on earnings. The more you work, the more you earn, the more you have when vacation time comes and when you are ready to retire . . . I'm glad that good attendance pays in more ways than one."

TUMBLIN WRITES ABOUT BOY'S STATE

Mr. Robert M. Vance, President
Clinton Mills
Dear Mr. Vance:

Sunday, June 11th, concluded the most exciting week of my life; my week at Palmetto Boy's State.

My arrival at the Citadel on Sunday, June 4th, began this memorable and remarkable experience. On that day, we were assigned our room, our city (mine was Santee City, Hampton County), political party, and were issued T-shirts and few other assorted items. The week was filled with classes on government, movies, demonstrations and assemblies. Strom Thurmond, Commander Oral Cox of the American Legion, and Fritz Hollings spoke to us in some of these assemblies. Although I wasn't elected to office, my party won the "State slate."

By the way, there is a thing at Boy's State called the C. A. B. (County Advisory Bureau). I think that I could best explain this to you personally. C.A.B.'s are members of a rough and tough set!

Thanks for a wonderful and exciting week.

Sincerely,
Guy Tumblin