Over 100 items in selection booklet

— Clinton Employees Shop Early —

Christmas made an early arrival again this year as Clinton Mills employees selected their personal gift from over 100 items in the 1974 Christmas gift selection booklets.

For many years it has been a tradition among Clinton employees to do their "Christmas Shopping" in early September.

Displays were set up during the month at each plant location for employees and their families to examine the available gifts before making their final selections.

As before, many items from previous years have been included again this year. The less popular ones have been replaced with selections to make the gift program as attractive as possible.

More than 95 retired and inactive 25-year plus Old Timer employees received a personal letter from Clinton Mills

Executive Vice President George H. Cornelson extending them the opportunity to select their gift from the company. Those employees on military leave also selected the gift of their choice.

The Christmas gift selection program is one of many fringe benefits afforded Clinton employees. Each one is an expression by Clinton Mills of its appreciation for all employees' loyal and faithful service throughout the year.
