

Three Promoted By Clinton Mills

Clinton Mills has promoted three manufacturing management personnel to areas of greater responsibility.

Bob Hooks has been promoted from Plant No. 1 Carding Superintendent to Plant No. 2 Carding Superintendent, succeeding Joel Cox who has retired. Cox had been with Clinton Mills since 1954.

A native of Gastonia, North Carolina, Hooks joined Clinton Mills in 1969 following receiving his B.S. degree in Textiles from North Carolina State.

He is an officer in the South Carolina National Guard, a member of the Kiwanis Club; member Broad Street United Methodist Church.

Bob Nelson, previously Assistant Plant No. 1 Carding Superintendent, will succeed Hooks as Plant No. 1 Carding Superintendent.

Nelson, who lives on Route 2, Laurens, has been with the

Crocker Is Director Of Blood Center

Clinton Mills Vice President, Claude A. Crocker is serving on the board of directors of the Carolina Blood Center which went into operation in late January.

The Carolina Blood Center is an establishment whose primary responsibility is to collect, process, and deliver blood units and components to participating hospitals in a multi-county area.

The program has the endorsement of the Laurens & Clinton Medical Community and both Laurens and Bailey Memorial Hospitals.

Initially there will be six counties covered in the new blood program. Abbeville, Greenville, Greenwood, Laurens, Oconee, and Pickens are the initial counties to collect, process, and deliver blood to participating hospitals. Blood will be collected in hospital donor room, as well as by mobile blood mobile units, and transported to Greenville for processing and distribution.
