The Second Ark

[Closing words of an address delivered before the North Carolina Press Association last week by Capt. W. E. Gonzales, editor of The Columbia State.] It is the policy of those who fear the light to inveigh against the light-shedding press, and thereby divert the attention of the unthinking. Demagogues who fear the light traffic upon the poor, and, following the policy of the feeling burglar who cries "stop thief," they attempt to inflame the poor with the belief that newspapers are their enemies. Ebenezer Elliott, who was at his prime in England less than a century ago, was not a newspaper man. He was a poet. His work for the poor of England was so conspicuous that he was known as the "Corn Law Rhymer" and as the "Poet of the Poor." Of all the friends of journalism, none has ever paid it more noble tribute than that devoted friend of the oppression in the poem, "The Press." Let the press accept its mission at his valuation, and strive to be worthy of his faith: "God said 'Let there be light!' Grim darkness felt His might, And fled away; Then startled seas and mountains cold Shone forth, all bright in blue and gold. And cried: 'Tis day! 'tis day!' 'Hail, holy light' exclaimed The thundrous cloud, that flamed O'er daisies white; And lo! the rose, in crimson dress'd Leaned sweetly on the lily's breast; And blushing, murmured— 'Light!' Then was the skylark born; Then rose the embattled corn; Then floods of praise Flowed o'er the sunny hills of noon; And then, in stillest night, the moon Poured forth her pensive lays. Lo, heaven's bright bow is glad! Lo, trees and flowers all clad In glory bloom! And shall the mortal sons of God Be senseless as the trodden clod, And darker than the tomb? No, by the MIND of man! By the swart artisan! By God, our Sire! Our souls have holy light within, And every form of grief and sin Shall see and feel it's fire. By earth, and hell, and heaven, The shroud of souls is riven! Mind, mind alone Is light, and hope, and life and power! Earth's deepest night, from this blessed hour, The night of minds is gone! 'The Press!' all lands shall sing; The Press, the Press, we bring, All lands to bless; O pallid Want! O Labour stark! Behold, we bring the second ark! The Press! The Press! The Press!"

The Bible in the Public Schools.

Gastonia Gazette. Says The Presbyterian Standard, the official organ of the Presbyterian church in North Carolina: "A few years ago it looked as if the Bible would be banished from the public schools of every State, and that the children of the land would grow up in ignorance of this, the greatest of books. Recently, however, the tide seems to have turned. Encouraged by the success with which Australia has dealt with the question, different States are now trying the same or a similar plan. Pennsylvania has just secured a law that provides that the teacher shall read or cause to be read without comment at least ten verses from the Scriptures at every session of the school. Though this is not what we would like, yet it is a great advance over some States, and it should result in good." The committee on constitutional amendments in session now at Morehead City has gone on record as favoring that amendment giving the public schools the right to read the Bible. This, we are sure, will meet with the commendation and support of all good men and women in North Carolina. The Bible is the book of all books and we to this country when it shall be relegated to the shelf.

Keep the Kidneys Well.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Lancaster People Know How to Save It. Many Lancaster people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Rock Hill citizen's recommendation: Mrs. D. B. Branson, 703 E. White St., Rock Hill, S. C., says: "I was subject to dizzy and nervous spells and my back and head ached intensely. There troubles were caused by weak kidneys. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised as being good for such complaints, I got a supply. They helped me at once and I continued taking them until I was well." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Pencil manufacturers are buying up old red cedar fence rails, in Tennessee and southward, to be made into lead pencils.

Phone It In. It is encouraging to a newspaper man who is trying to collect and chronicle the news and the most of whose time is devoted to the mechanical work in the office, for people to call him up over the telephone and tell him of some item of news that he did not know of and could not otherwise find out. There are a few people in Sanford who do this, but they are not numerous enough. Some few of our citizens occasionally drop into the office and give us items of news. All this is appreciated. Don't withhold any information from us that would be of interest to our readers and then "cuss" the paper if it is not published. We must know it before we can publish it. A number of the farmers in this section have "phone connections" with Sanford. Things often occur on the farms in the surrounding country that would be of interest to the readers of The Express. If the farmers will call us up and give us this news it will help us to publish a better and more readable paper.

In Trouble With the Blanket. An extremely tall Irishman traveling in the West, put up at a hotel in a small town and was shown to his room for the night. In a short time he appeared downstairs and asked for scissors, needle and thread. An hour later he returned them and said, sadly: "Faith, it's no use." When asked what he meant, he replied: "Why, the blanket wasn't long enough to cover me feet, so I cut a piece off the top and sewed it on the bottom, but 'tis no better now."

A fussy man reminds us of a camel—always going around with his back up. When women vote and the election doesn't go to suit him a man can blame it on his wife.

Yorkville, S. C., July 18, 1913. To Whom It May Concern: This is to certify that I hold a policy with The Farmers' Mutual (Fire) Insurance Company of York and Lancaster Counties. It gives me pleasure to state that I am well pleased with the protection it gives. It is conducted along conservative lines and in my opinion is entirely safe and the cost is much less than other Insurance Companies. In my opinion, the public generally in York County is well pleased with the Company. Respectfully, J. A. TATE, Clerk of Court York County.

The College Boy. The president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, Howard Elting, seems to have a better opinion of the college bred youth than most business men profess to have. After detailing his faults and virtues he gets this trial balance: "The new college boy is adaptable to the place he seeks, and his problem of adjustment is on the way to solution." The Richmond Virginian comment on this statement says: "Translated, this means that a college education teaches the boy to meet emergencies and to adjust himself to his surroundings—enables him to learn more quickly what is to be done and how to do it. Following are the negative traits of character, which weighed against the positive give Mr. Elting's trial balance: Impatience to succeed. Lacking in persistence. Tendency to snobbishness. Lacking in industry. Lacking in thrift. Lacking in technical training—(has more than old college type). Lacking in appreciation of time. Easily discouraged. Set off against this there were these "positive" traits: Has more concentration. Knows where and how to look for information.

Reasons from one step to another. Is more adaptable. Is more conscientious. Has keener appreciation of the duties of life and its responsibilities. Able to solve more difficult problems. Has higher ethical and moral standards. Has larger views of life.

There is but one method of acquiring wisdom, but when it comes to making a fool of himself a man can take his pick of a million different ways. If the average man could have his own way all the time he would keep others busy getting out of it.
