If you cannot on the ocean Sall among the swiftless fleet,
Rolling on the highest billows
Laughing at the storms you meet,
You can stand among the sailors,
Anchored yet within the bay,
You can lead a hand to help them,
As they launch the boats away.

If you are too weak to journey.
Up the mountain, steep and high,
You can stand in the valley, As the multitudes go by,
You can sing in happy measure
As they slowly pass along,
Though they may forget the singer,
They will not forget the song.

If you cannot to the needy, Lend a ready, open hand, If you have not gold and silver, Ever ready at command, You can visit the afflicted, O'er the dying you can weep: You can be a true disciple, Sitting at the Saviour's feet.

Prove yourself a soldier true. If where fire and smoke are thickes There's no work for you to do— When the battle field is silent— You can go with careful tread— You can bear away the wounded-You can cover up the dead.

Do not then be idly waiting, For some greater thing to do, Fortune is a lazy goddess, She will hever come to you— Go and dig in every vineyard, Do not shun to do and dare, If you want a field of labor, You can find it anywhere.
