From the following preface to a letter in reply to some merchants and traders in Philac lelphia, it wil do seen that even the im mortal Washington himself did not fir a st altogether plain sailing in his day. The remarks upon G. W.'s letter are a bout in the same manner in which the Now York Sun now speaks of Presider at Hayes. Read the following and

The following is the answer of the President file United States to 409 merchants and file United States to 409 merchants and great proportion of which were either refugees, kevalists during the war; enigrants, Brittish agents, &c., to this country, since that period. Contrast this with the GENERAL answer to 6500 respectable clitzens of Boston—7000 in New York—and from 5 to 7000 in Philadelphia, with perhaps 100,000 others in Charlestan, &c., and see with what regard the general mass of the people are treated when compared with a few interested individuals, who are largely interested in Bank and Funding 8ystems. The Presidents answer to the 409 philadelphia merchants and traders.

Gentlemen: I receive with great sensibility your address on the subject of the Treaty lately negotiated between the United States and Great Britain, expressing your confidence in the constituted authorities, and the concurrence of your opinions with their determinations, on this highly important suband Great Britain, expressing your confidence in the constituted authorities, and the concurrence of your opinions with their determinations, on this highly important subject. Such sentiments, deliberately formed, and proceeding from men whose interest are more immediately concerned than those of any other classes of my fellow-eitzens, cannot fail to strengthen that just confidence in the rectitude of public measures which is essential to the General Welfare.
