THE LADD MURDER.

Judge Bryan Declines to Grant a Motion for Habeas Corpus without Proper Notice to the Legal Representatives of the State of South Carolina.

In the United States Court yesterday, after the elaborate argument and charge of the Judge to the jury in the case of W. H. Oakley, Mr. Wm. E. Earle, the counsel for the United States government, presented the petition for the release, on bail, of the Deputy Marshals Kane, Moose and Durham, charged with the murder of Amos Ladd in Pickens County, in June last.

Before reading the petition and the affidavits accompanying it, Mr. Earle stated that he had telegraphed Col. J. S. Cothran, the Solicitor of the Eighth Circuit, that he intended to make the application and had asked him whether he would resist it, but that he had received no answer, and was uninformed whether the State would be represented or not. He then proceeded to read the pe tion, given above, and the affidavit. At this point Judge Bryan said that he desired to deal with this case as with any other case which involved an offense against the State of South Carolina. The case, he said, has been transferred to the United States Court, was especially charged with the protection of the officers of the government. The prosecution should be represented by the Attorney General of the state, or the Solicitor of the circuit in which the homicide was committed. The theory of the government admitted that, so far as the killing was concerned, it was an offense against the State, but that as the killing was done by government officials, the duty of the government was to see that its officials had a fair and impartial trial.

It was also the duty of the government to see that pending the trial the prisoners should be well guarded. In the hearing of an application for a habeas corpus the attorney for the State should be present to see that no release be made unless under proper restrictions. Nothing but justice was intended, but that justice should be justice to the State and justice to the county as well as justice to the general government. The court desired to proceed with caution; it desired that the State solicitor should be officially and reliably informed of the proceedings and be allowed the opportunity to be present. Even if the Solicitor should dissent from the action of the court in transfering the case from the State to the United States Court, counsel could be present under protest. The question of the constitutionality of the law had not yet been decided, and the court did not propose to pass upon that question. He would suggest, therefore, that the Solicitor be advised officially that the application for a habeas corpus would be heard on a certain day, and that he be requested either to be present or signify his intention of not attending.

Mr. Earle said he was perfectly willing to adopt the suggestion of the court, and that he would see that the Solicitor of the Eight Circuit was served officially with the proper notice. In the meantime he would ask for an order to have the government bind over the three Ladd women as witnesses. He added that the Attorney General had authorized him to state that the Federal government would pay the expenses of the entire trial.

The court refused for the present to grant this order, but signed the following, which ended the case for the present:

The State of South Carolina vs. H. P. Kane et al.

This cause having been removed to the Circuit Court of the United States, under the provisions of section 613, revised statutes of the United States, and the prisoners having applied for bail on habeas corpus, now, on motion of W. E. Earle, counsel for defendants, it is ordered that the Solicitor of the Eighth Circuit have notice hereof and leave within ten days after personal service hereof to resist said application.

McCords Colic Mixture.

For Horses, Mules and Cattle.

The undersigned have been appointed sole agents for the sale of "McCORDS COLIC MIXTURE," an infallible cure for colic in horses mules or cattle. This preparation was patented June 30, 1869, and in the short time which has elapsed since has attained a reputation unequaled by any patented medicine on the globe. We have in our possession testimonials from numerous persons who have used it:

I have had two occasions to use McCords Colic Mixture in cases that seemed desperate. The success in curing was apparently magical. It is administered without trouble or delay, is speedy in action, and I think is so valuable that every person who manages horses or mules should keed it at hand.

D. L. WARDLAW.

I saw Mr. McCord use his medicine on a mare that had been travelling, and was seized with cramp colic. The animal was dropping down frequently and in great pain. In a short time after the medicine was given—in ten minutes, at the farthest,—the animal was easier, and in an hour I saw the animal harnessed and driven off, and learned subsequently she performed the journey and had no more colic.

THOMAS THOMSON.

I have had one occasion to use McCor Colic Mixture. It was very effective an think is an excellent medicine.
