

Waiting for the Morning.
"I'm waiting for the morning."
The languid sufferer said,
As worn with pain and weakness
She lay upon her bed.
"I'm looking at the eastern skies,
To watch the coming dawn,
Oh! give me patience, blessed Lord,
While waiting for the morn."
"I'm waiting for the morning."
To-night I cannot sleep;
I'm listening for the first bird-note
To break the silence deep.
"I'm waiting for the morning."
On lonely boughs I spray,
And praying still for patience
While waiting for the day.
"I'm waiting for the morning."
I long to see the sun
Come forth in glory golden,
His daily course to run;
To watch him from the hill tops
Dispelling shades of night,
And beaming on my patient eyes,
While waiting for the light.
Thus "waiting for the morning"
The weary sufferer said,
And saw the golden glories
Of a never ending day;
While gazing at the eastern skies,
Before the early dawn
Her Saviour sent and called her home
While waiting for the morn.

Grains.
If others say how good you are, ask yourself if it is true.
One of the hardest things to do is to alarm the man who thinks he is safe.
It ought not to take any more courage to dare to do right than to dare to do wrong.
There isn't much charitable work done in this world by people who do not believe in another.
The man who expects to out-run a lie had better start with something faster than a bicycle.
The best characters have a mixture of infirmities, and the worst have sometimes redeeming virtues.
Were the sun of prosperity always to shine upon us, we would soon forget our Father's house, our heritage above.
The pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art in life is to have as many of them as possible.
Bring forth your riches; let them go, nor mourn the lost control;
For if you hoard them up, their rust will reach your soul.
God can bring new life to those whose lives have been wasted; but he will give it only as the needy ones will accept his offering, and do as he requires.
Tongue cannot describe the love of Christ; finite minds cannot conceive of it; and those who know most of it can only say with inspiration that it "passeth knowledge."
Do not seek happiness in what is misnamed pleasure; seek it rather, in what is termed study. Keep your conscience clear, your curiosity fresh and embrace every opportunity of cultivating your mind.
"Be thou faithful unto death" is the injunction of the Master. "A crown of life" is the promised reward. The reward far exceeds our deserts, but that is God's way of doing. We cannot pay for a single blessing we enjoy.
The soul is such an instrument that no sooner is it set in peace with itself than it becomes an instrument in tune—a living instrument, discoursing heavenly music in its thoughts, and chanting melodies of bliss, even in its dreams.
It does seem strange that God puts so much honor on some persons, and some places, and some agencies, in comparison with others. But that is God's way; and he knows why it is so. It is for us to accept his way, or fail of the good he provides for us.
He who has real trust in God welcomes every test of God's love and God's power on the part of those who have been in doubt just here. "He shall know that there is a God in Israel" is the feeling of every man of God concerning every seeker after God.
When vexing words are said to you, smile, and keep bravely still; Annoying tongues will have their way. Let us say what you will. Then shut your lips, speak not a word. And silence hurts tormentors more than any answer can.
A shade tree should never be taken from a dense forest, and be set out in the spring.
