BY HUGH WILSON. ABBEVILLE, S. C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1893. ESTABLISHED 1844

COURT NEXT WEEK.

Prisoners and Jurors—The Presiding Judge.

Judge Wallace will open Court at Abbeville next Monday. Some idea of the criminal business may be had from the cases which are docketed, and to be tried. We are indebted to the kindness of our very efficient and courteous Sheriff for the list of prisoners who will be brought to trial.

Contributed Locals.

Abbeville, S. C., Oct. 4, 1893.

Saleday passed off quietly. Owing to the busy season the crowd was not as large as expected.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. C. DuPre arrived in the city last Saturday. It seemed quite natural to see Mr. DuPre shaking hands with friends on the streets Saleday morning. Mr. DuPre left for Fort Hill on Monday, while Mrs. DuPre will remain in Abbeville for a few days.

Miss Mary Hemphill was expected home yesterday from Orangeburg, where she has been visiting friends.

Abbeville is full of strange people, everywhere you look new faces are seen, on the streets, in the churches and stores and on the 15th of the present month many more will oe added to our population, Abbeville throwe out her arms, and opens wide her gates to all new comers, and extends a hearty welcome to one and all.

The Japanese High Tea given last week by the ladies of the Episcopal church was in every feature a grand success. The spacious apartments of Mrs. A. W. Smith's beautiful residence, were most tasteful y decorated in bright Japanese colors, of many quaint designs. The fan drill was greatly admired. The Japanese girls were simple charming. The art exhibit managed by Mrs. R. S. Link was a World's Fair in miniature, to many, and was one of the leading features of the evening. The recitations and music were well rendered and added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion. The refreshments so nicely prepared, and served so promptly by such charming young ladies in full Japanese dress were enjoyed by all. There were about too hundred present, all of whom seemed to enjoy themselves to the utmost. The receipts of the evening were about $75.

Mr. A. E. Woodell, of Atlanta, was in the city last Friday, and attended the Japanese High Tea. Mr. Woodell has many friends here who are always glad to see him. He still calls Abbeville home, and we hope some day he will indeed be his home.

Mr. Ben Calhoun, formerly a law student of Abbeville, but now from Florida, arrived last week with his family and will spend a while here with his kindred and many friends. Abbeville has a warm place in her heart for her former citizens and always extends to them a cordial welcome.

Mr. Joe Jones and his sister Miss Anna have returned from a delightful trip to Chicago where they spent about two weeks taking in the World's Fair.

Mr. Jones F. Miller downs the town on a peanut roaster. It runs its self and is very ornamental.

Mrs. Owen is in Abbeville with her daughter Mrs. Speed.

Mrs. Coogler and her daughter Miss Kate leaves this week for Cross Hill, where they will spend sometime.

Mr. Henry Williams and wife were here last week on a visit to his father Capt. S. N. Williams.

We understand a photograph was made last Monday of the school building, teachers and scholars, by a travelling photographer. Could not our resident artist, all things being equal, have made the picture? and should he not have had the preference, as Abbeville is where he spends his money and makes his home. We think he would have made as fine a picture as any one and at us little cost.

Messrs. Phillip Rosenberg and Walter Visanska after an extended trip north to Niagara Falls and the World's Fair were expected home yesterday.

Master Earnest Visanska and Sol Rosenberg have a beautiful new bicycle.

It was as dark as "Egypt" last Monday night on Magazine street. No lamps were lighted.

Mr. Joel Wier was in the city last Monday and spent the night in Abbeville with friends.

We hear of several new boarding houses soon to be opened in Abbeville.

Mr. McLaughlin, of the Wrought Iron Range Company has returned to Abbeville and will look after the collections for the company.

The culvert over the branch just above the R. & D. depot made a slight cave in last Monday night, but causing no serious damage as we believe the train passed over Tuesday morning. We learn this place has long since been reported as unsafe.

Messrs. Johnny Cade, D. B. Cade and J. W. Morrah were in the city yesterday.

Don't fail to see White Brothers stock of ladies cloaks. Some very attractive garments are offered at very low prices.

Those ladies embroidered handkerchiefs offered by White Brothers are simply lovely. They are so cheap too. Prices from 5 cents to 75 cents each. Go and ask to see them.

Linseed oil, turpentine, varnishes. Good goods at bottom prices. Harrison & Game, druggist.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Some of the Sights and Some of the Notes Which an Observer Observed.

As soon as our destination was reached we went to see the "Great Fair."

Coming into the "Magic City" by the 57th street entrance, we stood in the midst of the State buildings.

Our curiosity was so great that, though very tired, we felt obliged to visit the great Fair as soon as we reached our destination.

First, "South Dakota" stared us in the face but, being aware that we could not see everything, we passed on until we reached the Art Palace. Here the magnificent exterior proved too great an attraction to be resisted, so we entered and stood in the midst of the sculpture room marked "Italia." Beautiful "beyond compare" were these statues of purest white marble. One especially noted was "the First Communion," representing a maiden whose lovely face was half concealed by a marble veil so beautifully executed one felt that he had only to stretch out his hand to raise it. Passing on we reached one of quite a different nature but equally beautiful; before us sat a chubby little boy with drooping eye lids just falling asleep. "At the supper table" was the appropriate name of this figure. Still there remains so much to be seen, one must not linger even among such beautiful surroundings.

In the picture-galleries there was so much to be admired one knew not where to look. As a general thing the pictures represented the characteristics of their painters' nationality.

For instance in "Norway" and "Sweden" fishermen and fishing smacks were prominent, in "Holland" peasant women with their heavy shoes, in "Russia" battle scene and so on down the list.

The picture most talked of as far as we could observe and which received one of the prizes was "Alone in the World" in the Holland exhibit. It represented a peasant woman on her rude bed, cold in death, while near sat her husband with bowed head, the picture of despair. "Hercules battling with Death," Breaking Home Ties," "The Passing of Arthur" were also fine—there were so many hundreds, though, which deserve mention, there is no use trying to speak of them all. The U. S. Loan Collection was magnificent—there could be seen many of Rosa Bonnerer's, some of Millet's, Alma-Tadema's "Reading from Homer" and many others of which we have always heard.

Leaving the Art Gallery, let us visit some of the State buildings. Let us enter Kansas first; here we find one of the finest exhibits of stuffed animals on the grounds. Part of the room is arranged to represent the wilds of Kansas and here is found every animal of which this State boasts. In the back ground are two piles of rocks on one of which stand a number of Rocky Mountain goats, while on the other the mountain sheep with their large, twisted horns, gaze at you in a very life-like way. At the foot of the mountains is a lion coming out of her lair, followed by three cubs. On the left, stand two gigantic moose with horns interlocked as if in deadly combat. Just in front is a grey wolf preying upon the carcass of a deer, while on our right is Gen. Custer's horse, the last survivor of the Custer raid.

Next Arkansas claims our attention. In the centre of this building is a marble fountain, playing constantly to furnish drinking water for visitors. The walls are covered with canvas, painted with pink blossoms below and swallows flying across the blue sky above. Going into an inner room we see the head of Queen Isabella modeled in butter. Just on the other side of the room the sculptress engaged in making the bust of Columbus of the same pliable material. The head of Isabella was made from the butter of the $7,000 cow, which was on exhibition at the stock yard. This stock yard, too, was a wonderful place. The horses, especially the Arabian ones, were most beautiful. One day there was a grand procession of all the horses and even those who thought themselves too tired to move, actually ran to get a glimpse of the Czar's steeds, with their Russian riders, the fleet Arabians and the Shetland ponies, with their long manes and shaggy coats.

The Transportation building was one of great interest. Here every kind of steam boat could be seen from that made by Robt. Fulton, who used paddles to help the steam, to the magnificient "floating palaces" of today. All kinds of locomotives from the first which went at the break-neck speed of eight miles an hour, to the Pullman Vestibule which travels a trifle faster. Here were whaling vessels from the North, palanquins from Japan, canoes from Africa. In fact, everything that man has ever used as a means of transportation. After seeing these wonderful improvements, we are not surprised that some think we will soon be floating about in air ships.

Indeed a visit at night to the Electricity building will soon convince you that nothing is impossible. One minute the building is in darkness, the next it is brilliantly lighted. Here is the Edison light tower made of knots of colored glass, in which the light changes from red to white, then yellow and back to white, and red with such rapidity, the tower itself seems to move, when only the light is changing from side to side. On every side blaze the names of different inventors, made with different colored lights, while looking benevolently on the whole is the face of Columbus, above the main door-way outlined in soft yellow lights. Here dresses are cut by electricity, chickens and ducks are hatched, things are cooked, and miniature farms are worked.

The Scenic theatre in this building is a place of interest—the curtain is raised and first everything is dim, then it grows lighter and you see the snow-capped mountains in the distance, lighter still and you gaze upon a "sun-rise in the Alps." There is a real waterfall in front spanned by a bridge over which march a line of soldiers, going to storm a castle the standing near. Soon a storm comes up and the lightning is most vivid. Then all is again serene and as the moon sheds her soft radience over the scene, the curtain falls and the audience is left wondering at the manifold usages of electricity. Electricity also plays quite a prominent part outside of the buildings. Who, having once seen, can forget the electric fountains, throwing up their colored streams thirty or forty feet in height? The outer jets of the fountains are sometimes rose-colored, while the central one is light green; for a moment it will be green, then a purplish tinge is noticed, quickly all turns to purple. When this vanishes a stream of limpid water bubbles up falling in large drops for a few moments; then rose, green, and purple follow each other in quick succession for an hour or more. This electric fountain display always draws a crowd; often more than a hundred thousand surround the basin. Though the crowd is tremendous, such jolly, good natured people one rarely meets, even in our Southland. People would sometimes crowd themselves to give strangers a seat, and questions asked of guides or others were always politely and cheerfully answered. One night the beauty of the lagoon was heightened by a procession of electric launches, hung with Japanese lanterns. These lanterns were hung so as to make different shapes—one was in the shape of the American flag, another in the form of a star. Looking at this procession gliding noiselessly over the glistering water, and beyond at the lights on the "wooded isle" twinkling through the trees one could easily imagine himself in an enchanted land.

The loveliest view of all, to us, was obtained from a bridge facing the electric fountains. Behind you stood the golden robed Goddess of Progress, the gift of France to America. On all sides lofty white palaces reared their heads and in front played the wonderful electric fountains.

Some writer has called the Fair the "Indescribable," and it is certainly an appropriate name. Though so many accounts have been written "the half" has never and, I suppose, never will "be told."

Direct Route to the World's Fair.

The Richmond and Danville Railroad is selling round trip tickets to Chicago at very low rates, and will give you choice of route via Knoxville and Cincinnati or Louisville; via Atlanta and Chattanooga; via Charlottesville and Cincinnati; or via Richmond and Washington. Also, a very low rate ticket either going or returning via Niagara Falls, with stop-over privileges. There is nothing saved by going on excursion trains, as same rate is charged on trains of this kind as on regular trains of the Richmond and Danville Railroad.

Three through passenger trains, each way, daily. Good connections. Quickest time to Chicago—only one night on the road.

For rates, schedules or other information, call on or address any ticket agent of the Richmond and Danville Railroad, or Chas. L. Hopkins, Travelling Passenger Agent, Charlotte, N. C.

Be sure to examine that all wool suiting 52 inches wide at 50 cents a yard now offered by White Brothers, and while you are looking at it, take occasion to find out what else they have in the line of dress goods that is pretty and cheap.

Great bargains are offered by White Brothers in hamburg trimmings and torchon laces. A good line of these goods always in stock.

THE ROAD LAW.

More Sound Sense than We Have Seen Elsewhere on this Subject.

Ninety-Six, S. C., Sept. 30, 1893.

You have such a fine display of advertisements at present that I am afraid to ask you for a little space for a rambling letter. I begin by making a suggestion or two to our good board of County Commissioners.

You know it is part of our nature to suggest or give free advice to those around us. Perhaps that is why it is written, "For precept must be upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line, here a little and there a little." I wish to commend them as they are doing their work so well and especially in that determination to not go beyond the appropriation made for them.

It pained me very much last year to support an appropriation to meet past indebtness. I hope none of the future boards will ever exceed their appropriation. I believe the law ought to forbid it, unless some calamity forces it and then it should only be done by the unanimous consent of the county delegation.

I believe the present road law is the best that we can get, and if properly enforced by our Commissioners we will have as good roads as possible to have in a hilly country.

I think the board should adopt some special plan for working our roads and require each overseer, the county over, to do his work according to these requirements. For instance, if after due consideration and careful observation they think to ditch both sides of the road a given width and to raise the road in the middle so the water can flow from the centre to either side drain is the best, then let each Commissioner in his section of the county require the overseer to work that way and let the Commissioner see that it is done.

We will never have good roads so long as every overseer works according to his plans. So many never think the matter over at all before starting the work.

Another suggestion is, instead of laying poles across the roads in flat miry places on creeks and elsewhere, that they invariably have rocks hauled sufficiently and the work done permanently, that will last for generations to come. This would be economy. Thousands of dollars would be saved to the county in a few years. This pole work costs considerably and soon they are washed up and gone. I know what I am talking about. We have a considerable amount of this pole work around here. It almost shakes a man's hat off his head to drive over it much less the top off his buggy, and they are forever out of repair.

I might add here that before expensive or permanent work is done let the Commissioners see that the roads be placed where they can best be worked and where they will certainly remain for all time. Many of our roads need some minor changes which ought to be looked after. Some places made straight, other places made to go round hills too steep for a team to pull a good load up.

No doubt some will think I have written too lengthy on this subject, but such is not the case. When we consider the convenience of good roads and the thousands of dollars our people would save in wear and breakage in vehicles it would be hard to say too much on the subject. If I had not already said enough on roads I would give a few facts to prove that our road law is a good one, but I must desist.

The next thing of which I wish to speak is to urge our people, especially in this community, where crops are so very short, to gather all the pea vines and hay possible in order that the grain crop may be made to go as far in next year as possible. I have never seen such a hay crop before. I don't believe there is a farm of any size in this country that has not grass and vines enough on it to furnish rough feed sufficiently for all the stock on it, and it is as much the duty to gather it as any other crop raised on the farm.

I believe that a little money invested in gathering this crop will bring a better return than either the cotton or grain. Surely our people will seize the opportunity.

All our people should raise some meat no matter what his avocation in life may be. Every family should have one or more good milch cows.

As I am getting lenghty, to sum it all up I mean this, let us all live as nearly as possible on what we make at home and soon the great Banks and money Kings of Wall Street of the East will be unable to touch us with their oppressive hands. This lovely Sunny South which is afflicted to a greater extent perhaps by wild speculation than other section of the U. S. is awake to her interests and soon she will shake off that oppression. We must keep our eyes open to wise legislation, and send men only to represent us both national and State who are known true and tried friends. But we will never feel that ease and liberty at home until we as a whole people practice lives of economy and work ourselves entirely out of debt. Henry J. Kinard.

DUE WEST.

The Students and their Teachers—One Man Brought all His Sons—All Sorts.

Due West, S. C., Oct. 2, 1893.

Mr. Estill, of Savannah, was in town a few days last week. He came to bring his three brothers to Erskine. His wife accompanied him.

Mr. Harry Strother, of Chappell, has been on a visit of several weeks to his sister Mrs. C. B. Cowan.

Mrs. Lilly Ellis has moved back to town. She occupies a part of Mrs. L. H. Lowry's house.

Mr. Sam A. Pressly, of the late senior class of Erskine, has charge of a school in North Carolina for the coming year.

Mrs. O. Y. Bonner was down to Troy a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Brownlee paid Anderson a flying visit several days ago.

Mr. G. G. Parkinson, who has had charge of the Troy school for two years, will be here in the Seminary this year.

Rev. R. H. McAulay, of Walhalla, has been in our town for several days. He is speaking of moving here.

Rev. J. P. Knox, of Hickory Grove, S. C., spent a day or two in our midst last week. He was on his way to fill a Presbyterial appointment in Atlanta.

We congratulate our friend Hon. Ira B. Jones, of Lancaster, on his recent success in gaining full over contest of townships bonds.

Miss Julia and Miss Annie Galloway, of Yorkville, who have been with relatives in Due West for sometime, returned to their home last Friday.

The teachers for both Colleges are all on the grounds and ready for work. We wish for them a successful year.

The Y. M. C. A. will give a reception tonight in their new hall in Erskine College, to the students of the College. The invitation is also extended to the citizens of the town. Refreshments will be served.

We were glad to see young Mr. Lyon, of Hunter, on our streets. He worshipped at the A. R. church Sabbath.

The young people had a "Tacky Party" at the Phoenix hotel last Tuesday evening. They had a great deal of fun over their costumes. A prize, a crape myrtle boquet, was given to the young man and lady each who was dressed the most comical. A committee deciding who should have it.

The vacation was closed last Friday evening by a festival at Dr. W. M. Grier's. It was much enjoyed by boys and girls who were soon to be bound up by College rules and hard study.

It has been so cool for several days that a fire has been a real comfort. The cold weather will be hailed with pleasure by the fever stricken sections.

A goodly number of students have arrived for the Colleges, and more are expected this week. R. S. G.

Bishop Capers in Abbeville.

The Right Reverend Ellison Capers, D. D., the Bishop-Coadjutor of this diocese, will be here next Sunday, 8th instant, on his annual visitation to Trinity Church. He will hold services both forenoon and afternoon. During the forenoon service the rite of confirmation will be administered.

As Bishop Capers has always been a great favorite with the whole people of Abbeville of all denominations, and as this is his first visit since his elevation to the Bishopric, there will no doubt be a large attendance at Trinity Church next Sunday.

Rev. Mr. McCrady, the rector of Trinity parish, will assist the Bishop.

Have you seen White Brothers new store where they keep their ready-made clothing and gents furnishing goods? If not call at once, and satisfy yourself that it is the right place to get a suit of clothing, an overcoat, or anything else in the line of something to wear.

Don't forget to call on White Brothers when you want fancy china. They display the nicest and prettiest assortment in this line to be found anywhere. Guest cups, after-dinner coffees, and vases in endless variety.

A bottle. Harrison & Game, druggist.

ITEMS FROM NINETY-SIX.

Pretty Women—Handsome Men—Silver in the Senate—Peas Upon a Trencher.

Ninety-Six, S. C., Oct. 2, 1893.

The young ladies and gentlemen of the town gave a nice party to Miss Fannie Brabham on last Tuesday night at Dr. Holland's. Miss Fannie is to be congratulated upon having so many good friends at her home. She has gone to Columbia to enter the Methodist Female College. One and all wish her a happy and profitable year.

Mr. E. Y. Sheppard, who had his leg broken in a difficulty some weeks ago, is getting along nicely and will soon be out again.

Miss Sallie Fouche has been elected second assistant teacher in the Ninety-Six High School. No better selection could have been made. She has several years' experience in teaching and is well qualified for her duties.

Mrs. Dr. W. H. Holland and Miss Mary Holland leave this week for the Columbian Fair.

We are much obliged to Gen. Hemphill for his explanation. We never had any fears as to what he said to our old comrade in Chicago. Yet some of our friends thought he had said something terrible. The General is not made of that kind of stuff.

Dr. E. G. Martin, surgeon dentist, of Greenwood, was down one day last week on business.

Miss Lillie Calhoun has gone to Cross Hill on a trip to friends.

Old Mr. Shumate is still on the South Side, where he says he sells groceries and provisions cheaper than anybody.

For the past few weeks the town farmers have been hauling in quantities of pea-vine hay, providing for the jerseys this winter.

Every pound of good butter is worth 25 cents and should not be sold for less, in view of high prices for provision.

Maj. Galphin has had a nice time on his brick. Dry weather is the best time to make brick.

Dr. W. H. Holland will leave soon to attend a course of lectures in Baltimore. He is determined to leave nothing undone to thoroughly fit himself for his profession.

Mr. James M. Baker, who was in Carolina a few weeks ago, has returned to his post of duty at the Capital.

Mr. Irvin Sanders has purchased a fine jersey calf from Mr. A. S. Osburne.

Miss DeVore, who has been with her brother's family, has returned to her home in Edgefield.

Ninety-Six has ten stores, two drug stores, two mills, two cotton gins, one oil mill, three blacksmith shops, two wagon makers, one gin shop, to say nothing of its numerous blind tigers. All are prospering and trade seems to be on a boom.

Mr. Samuel Agnew is clerking for Mr. R. L. Stuart.

Miss Annie Beard was in Greenwood last week.

Miss Barksdale, of Georgia, has returned to her home.

The Washington news is that the Senate is at a stand still. Nothing doing but an occasional silver speech. The great bugaboo was the Sherman Act, and if the President would only convene Congress and repeal that act, everything would go on smoothly. We don't believe the Sherman Act has anything to do with the hard times. There is something else the matter and we hope how soon our legislators will find it out.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wilson will go to housekeeping in the Martin house on Church street.

Now is a good time for the Town Council to look after the hog pens.

The Misses Moore, of Cokesbury, have been with Mrs. R. W. Townsend.

Messrs. J. F. and J. D. Coleman, of Coronaca, were in town last Saturday.

Mr. Marcus W. Dendy was happily married to Mrs. Martha F. Agnew, Sunday, October 1.

Mr. Marion Sanders, sheriff of Sumter county, has been on a trip to his brother Dr. W. A. Sanders.

Mrs. Orchard, of Atlanta, is with her daughter Mrs. T. C. Lipscomb.

Trial Justice McCaslan opened court early this morning with a case of assault and battery and house breaking.

One of our best farmers paid $11 for a hound dog the other day. Dogs are scarces and high in our community it would seem.

The bicycle craze in our town has about subsided.

Two of our young gallants are known as Lord Chesterfield and Apollo. Quite distinguished gents. East End.

GREENWOOD ITEMS.

A Score of Interesting Paragraphs About the Progressive City.

Greenwood, S. C., Oct. 2d, 1893.

The Greenwood Graded School opened last Thursday with an attendance of 225 pupils.

Mr. J. S. Marse informs us that some 2300 bales of cotton have been sold here this season. The highest price paid that we have learned of was eight cents per pound.

Harry McClinton, colored, who lives on Capt. Henry Cresswell's place, has made this fall 225 hamper baskets which average about 35 cents each.

Greenwood's growth is steady and healthy, as will be seen by the following facts: Several families have recently moved here for the purpose of educating their children. Trade so far has been entirely satisfactory. There is only one vacant dwelling in the city and it is not for rent. A number of new dwellings are soon to be built to supply the increasing demand. The cotton factory, the gins, the oil mill and the planing mill are all running on full time.

Mr. C. B. Alexander, of the City Bank, will commence the erection of a dwelling at an early day near the residence of Mr. J. F. Davis.

Mrs. R. E. Gibbes will in a few days begin the construction of a brick building on a vacant space near the New York store, and is also having a frame building moved which will be placed next to new brick building. This frame building is to be occupied by the enterprising firm of J. I. Chipley & Bro., who find it necessary to move into a larger building so as to give room for their increasing business. With her fine climate, excellent water, splendid railroad facilities, good schools and her plentiful number of churches and backed up as she is on all sides by a rich and productive soil, we feel sure that Greenwood will yet be the largest city in upper South Carolina.

The old soldiers are to meet in Durst's Hall next Saturday 7th inst. for the purpose of completing the organization of a Soldier's Camp. Some two weeks ago a meeting was held here and it was agreed by those present to name the camp "Camp Aiken," in honor of Hon. D. Wyatt Aiken. It is universally conceded on all sides that a more appropriate name could not have been selected.

Greenwood has plenty of money to pay for all cotton that may be sold here.

Andrew E. Taylor, the 11-year old son of Mr. George H. Taylor who lives near this city, picked one day last week 217 pounds of cotton. Andrew is not only a fine cotton picker but is an obedient boy whose example should be followed by other boys.

Mr. S. P. Mathews, one of Edgefield's successful business men, sold a lot of cotton here last week and before leaving purchased a splendid new buggy from Mr. J. T. Simmons, President W. L. Durst has also bought a fancy business wagon from the same party.

Mr. Thos. F. Riley has returned from an extended trip to Washington, Baltimore and New York.

Messrs. Sam Hodges, Jr., and Marshal Moore left here Saturday for Spartanburg where they will attend Wofford College.

Mrs. Dr. Millwee, Mrs. J. T. Simmons, Mrs. Carrie McGee, Miss Florence Riley, Miss Susan Arnold and Mr. Jewett McKellar left here a day or so ago for the Columbian Exposition.

Johnnie Major, son of Mr. Gamewell Major, will commence clerking to-day for Messrs. J. K. Durst & Co.

Some fifty persons have recently joined the Greenwood Baptist church.

Mr. S. Stuart Nickels of Coronaca is now clerking for Mr. J. C. Nickels.

Mr. C. Ramsey Calhoun left here a few days ago to take charge of a school in Orangeburg.

Miss Lillie Cannaday and Miss Etrulia Ruff, after a pleasant visit here of several weeks, left last Tuesday for their home in Charleston.

Mr. P. S. Dew of Marion county has rented Mr. John Barksdale's house and Mr. Geo. F. Huett of Edgefield will move his family here soon.

A fine young mare belonging to Mr. Cam Burnett, an energetic farmer living near here, was badly cut by running against a barbed wire fence last Friday night. Mr. Drayton W. Jeter of New Market also had a mule injured a few days ago in a similar way.

Greenwood has two good restaurants, one kept by Messrs. Taylor and Arnold, the other by Mr. L. S. Sheppard. Either of these restaurants will furnish a first class meal for twenty-five cents.

Mr. Frank Yoe left here last Friday for Birmingham, Ala., to resume his duties as conductor on the Birmingham and Bessemer Railroad. We learn he made many friends while in Alabama, and that he has merited the entire confidence of the railroad officials. N. O. Pyles.

WE HAVE OVERSTOCKED ourselves this Fall. Having bought more goods than our store can well accommodate, we are compelled to offer unheard of bargains in every department.

CLOTHING

MENS FURNISHINGS

ARE AMONG OUR

SPECIALTIES

In these departments we have surpassed all previous seasons. We know this is a big assertion, but the people can judge for themselves and be convinced that these assertions are SOLID FACTS.

HATS.

Our stock of HATS represent the production of all the leading makers of the country, including the celebrated John B. Stetson.

We have Alpines in various shades and grades. Slouch Hats in all styles and prices, and Derbys specially suited for middle age and young men.

These go in part to make our immense stock of HATS, which we offer to the public at prices never before quoted.

SHOES.

In SHOES we have made such selections as will give best wear for the least money.

We still carry Emerson's Shoes, which are too well known to make further comment. EMERSON'S HAND MADE have no equal.

DRY GOODS.

Our stock of DRY GOODS is filled with choice bargains.

GROCERIES.

GROCERIES we always offer at the lowest possible living prices.

We make a specialty of FLOUR. Once you try us you will be convinced that on Flour we cannot be beaten.

Our stock is too large to mention everything.

Give us a call and buy your goods where a dollar will go furthest.

Reading for Children.

The wise mother will teach her children without their suspecting that they are learning lessons, writes Elisabeth Robinson Scovil in an exhaustive article on "The Best Reading for Children," in the February Ladies' Home Journal. The charm of "Little Red Riding Hood" and "The Three Bears" may be equaled by true stories of the wonders that lie all about us.

These have revealed themselves to many patient, sympathetic observers who recorded their observations for our benefit, so that we have only to profit by their labors. The fairyland of science has domains as fascinating as anything in the realms of fiction.

Why not make the children free of it? Tell them of the habits of birds and plants and animals; of the wonderful snow crystal and the black diamonds of the coal.

It is not difficult to begin, it is only difficult to know where to stop; the supply of subjects is inexhaustible.

As we watch the development of the active, intelligent minds we feel the importance of supplying them with food that shall nourish as well as amuse them. It seems a pity that the retentive memories, on which it is now so easy to make an indelible impression, should not have imprinted upon them facts of real interest and value.

These may be told at first in the simplest language, and illustrated by reference to familiar things. Children are full of curiosity; all their surroundings are new and strange. They are constantly asking questions and inquiring into the reason of everything that strikes them as being unusual. They should receive intelligent answers; explanations that will satisfy them as far as possible, when the subject is really beyond their grasp.

Nothing is more exasperating to the inquiring mind than to be told, "You cannot understand that now, you must wait untill you are older," or given one of the other time-honored excuses served to conceal the ignorance of the that elder.

An invitation to dinner among the middle or upper classes of Japan frequently commences as follows: "I beg your pardon for thus insulting you in begging your company at my house for dinner. The house is small and very dirty. Our habits are very rude, and you may not get anything fit to eat; and yet I hope that you will condescend to be present with us at 6 o'clock on December 9." Upon arriving at the house you find it spotlessly clean, tasty in arrangement, and the host and hostess affable indeed. The bill of fare consists of ten so fifteen courses, the best the market can afford. All the self-humiliation of the host is the method adopted to pay you honor.

When you borrow money you borrow trouble.
