The Chufa.

This is the most valuable food for hogs, and fowls, too, eat it gredily. This crop can be planted from May to July, in rows three feet apart, dropping the seed about a foot apart in the row. The precaution of soaking the seed from one to three days before planting is necessary to secure a good stand, but after soaking should be planted during a dry spell. The soil should be moist when the seed are put in. About 200 pounds of any good fertilizer will be sufficient for an acre. The plants when they first appear above the ground look like coarse nut grass. Two plowings, and the same number of heoings, will generally be sufficient to keep down any weeds and grass, and in about two months the ground will be covered with the rank green tops, which are excellent food for cattle and horses. The crop matures in about three months and hogs turned in will fatten with surprising rapidly. It is the plan of an old farmer, instead of digging and saving his seed, to throw two furrows of earth on the bed before cold weather sets in. He says he found that this will protect them perfectly until spring. A half-bushel of seed will plant about an acre.

To Tell the Age of Cattle.

A heifer has no rings on her horns until she is 2 years of age, and one is added each year thereafter. You can therefore, tell the age of a cow with tolerable accuracy by counting the rings on her horns and adding two to the number. The bull has no rings, as a rule, until he is 5 years old. To tell his age after that period, add five to the number of rings. The best way to tell the age is by the teeth, which is, of course, the only way with polled cattle. What are called the milk teeth gradually disappear in front. At the end of 3 years, the second pair of permanent teeth are well grown, at four years the third pair, and at this time the central pair are full size. At 7 years the dark line, caused by the wearing of the teeth, appears on all of them, and on the central pair a circular mark. At 8 years the circular mark appears on all of them, and 9 years the central pair begin to shrink, and the third at 11. After this period the age can only be determined by the degree of shrinkage generally. At 15 years the teeth are nearly all gone.

Hominy With Cheese.

A simple, but excellent addition to the home dinner, or Sunday night supper, is hominy with cheese. The hominy is first boiled to the consistency of breakfast serving, then is spread in layers in a deep dish, with grated cheese between each layer and on top. It is then put in the oven long enough to melt and brown the cheese. Rice may be prepared in the same way, though the hominy is better. This is a dish that may be often substituted for potatoes, of which vegetable even the most conservative are willing to admit we eat too freely.

A Mixed Obituary.

The paper was late, and the makeup was dumping matter in the forms at the rate of a column a minute. Result: The first part of an obituary had been dumped in the form, and the next handful of type came off a galley describing a recent fire. It read like this in the newspaper; "The pall-bearers lowered the body into the grave, and it was consigned to the roaring flames. There were very few, if any, regrets, for the old wreck had been an eyesore to the town for years. The loss was fully covered by insurance."

Iced Water Attracts Poisons.

A scientific paper adds these new terrors to ice water as a beverage:

It says the water possesses the quality of attracting to itself the poisonous gases exhaled by the lungs and the pores of the body: One of the best ways to purify a freshly painted room is to set about it basnis of iced water, changing them every few hours. The water in these basins will be found to be deadly poisonous.

Treatment for Mildew.

To remove stains of mildew from linen, wash it thoroughly, rub plenty of soap upon the effected parts, also plenty of powdered chalk, and place the garment on the grass or in the sun. Before it becomes quite dry repeat the operation and continue to do so until the stains have entirely disappeated.

What the world most needs is, not argument, but experience; not logic, but salvation; not ceremony, but holiness. If the present tide of infidelity is arrested and turned back, it will be by a red-hot gospel proclaimed by those wno know its power. It was not Peter's logic that in a single day captured three thousaed souls for Christ from the rebel hosts of sin, but the Spirit, the power, and the fire of the Pentecost.

A exchange says a gentleman invited some friends to dinner; and, as the colored servant entered the room, he accidentally dropped a platter which held a turkey. "My friends," said the gentleman, in a most impressive tone, "never in my life have I witnessed an event so fraught with disaster in the various nations of the globe. In this calamity we see the downfall of Turkey, the upsetting of Greece, the destruction of China and the humiliation of Africa."

We should find great peace if we would imbue ourselves with this thought—that we are here solely to accomplish the will of God, that will is accomplished from day to day, and that he who dies leaving his work unfinished is just as far advanced in the eyes of Supreme Justice as he who has leisure to accomplish it fully.

During the most peaceful years the world has 3,700,000 soldiers who are withdrawn from productivs occupations to pose as soldiers. The pay, equipments, food and clothing of these men cost the world's taxpayers nearly $8,000,000 a day.

The distinction between a good preacher and a bad preacher has not changed much since Archbishop Whately declared that "a good preacher preached because he had something to say, and a bad preacher because he had to say something.

A chinese doctor is employed by families by the year at a rate, according to their means and his reputation, of 1 to 5 cents a day, as long as every member of the family is well. When one falls ill, the doctor's pay stops until their health is fully restored.

The Broad river in South Carolina, was so called by the whites. The Indian name was Eswan Huppeday, or "Dividing Line river," because it was the boundary between the Cherokees and the Catawbas.

If a dish of cold water is kept in a cake box it will keep the cake fresh and moist. The water should be renewed every 24 hours.

On the Right Track.
COHEN

THE LEADER OF LOW PRICES

WILL DO IT.

We don't expect any man to buy here who can do better anywhere else, but he'll have a fruitless hunt. We put our whole heart into clothes—buying and selling. We employ every talent, profit by experience, strive for every perfection, and have got the art down to a nicety. While some are shouting how cheap they've got, we want to tell you how fine we've got. Anybody can sell cheap clothes—there's no knack about that. We've got suits as low as $5, but at $7.50, $10, $13 to $15 and $20, is where expertness counts, cleverness is taxed, where competition is declared out of the race, where its "neck and neck" with the best of custom tailoring. And just think of what a saving it is. A little more than is asked for the cheap truck, but a great deal less than the tailors demand—about half. What worth have words when everybody claims the largest stock? What weight have published prices unless you can prove the values? You've got a standing invitation to look us over and see if we are not showing three times the variety of suits that is to be found anywhere else. You are assured satisfaction in every purchase, not the "as good-as-kind," but a guarantee that there can be no better made. There's no chance of our not being able to suit you. Such an immense line must hold everybod's size and everybody's style. Some of the "back-clothiers" advertise clothing in any shape as the fashionable sort, but their idea is like their clothes—ancient. The styles this season are of the moderate sort in length, both cutaways and sacks. This way for the correct style at lowest prices that can be made for the best clothes.

How A Beautiful Hymn Was Written.

One day Mr. Wesley was sitting by an open window, looking out over the bright and beautifuls fields. Presently a little bird, fitting about in the sunshine, attracted his attention. Just then a hawk came sweeping down towards the little bird. The poor thing, very much frightened, was darting here and there, trying to find some place of refuge. In the bright sunny air, in the leafy trees of the green fields, there was no hiding place from the fierce grasp of the hawk. But seeing an open window and a man setting by it, the bird flew, in its extremity, towards it, and, with a beating heart and quivering wing, found refuge in Mr. Wesley's bosom. He sheltered it from the threatening danger and saved it from a cruel death.

Mr. Wesley was at that time suffering from severe trials, and was feeling the need of refuge in his own time of trouble, as much as did the trembling little bird that nestled so safely in his bosom. So he took up his pen and wrote that sweet hymn:

"Jesus, lover of my soul,
Let me to thy bosom fly,
While the waves of trouble roll,
While the tempest still is high."

That prayer grew into one of the most beautiful hymns in our language, and multitudes of people, when in sorrow and danger, have found esmfort while they have said or sung the last lines of that hymn.

The Blessing of Work.

Work whets the appetite for pleasure as well as for food. Work gives a zest to enjoyment. Work bestowed, invests every possession with increased interest. We value the more that which we produce with our own hands. The fairest flowers are fairer for having been grown by our own hands. Thus in a thousand ways, work in its turn becomes a pleasure, and the industrious experience joys that the idle can never know. Happiness then, as well as duty, urges us to work. Necessity and self-love may stimulate us to it, but God in Nature sets us a never-failing example for disinterested and unflagging industry. None should be without his share in the great brotherhood of labor, and women should be permitted to participate as fully and freely as men. The do-nothings of either sex, however may serve, like the drunken Helots for the Spartan youth, "to point a moral, and adorn a tale." But to treat them as superior citizens and to dub them "ladies" and "gentleman" on account of their uselessness, is an outrage to the industrious and a disparagement of man's highest function.

A Sermon in Brass.

Here is a good story. A certain minister when preaching on cleanliness, mentioned how he had seen a brass monkey in his town set up in a store with a cigar in his mouth. The cigar was lighted, and by machinery the monkey could draw the smoke from the cigar and puff it out again. The works stopped on one occasion, and the monkey was taken apart to discover the cause, when the works were found to be clogged and in a filthy condition. The moral was drawn by the preacher thus: "If tobacco smoke will stop the works of a brass monkey, what will it do for you?" Let our weed-indulging people rise and answer.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT!

It is a matter of satisfaction that the many and great bargains I have offered this Spring, have been appreciated and largely taken by the trading public. Our trade has never been better, and although we have had a strong and efficient force, many times, even while doing our best, we have not been able to wait on all our trade. I take this occasion to thank the people for their generous patronage and to assure them that during the month of May my stock will be more attractive than ever. Already I have had to order goods, and I will keep my stock full by making fresh orders from time to time.

My clothing trade has been unusually good. I still have many good bargains to offer in this line.
