McSWEENEY TO TILLMAN.

THE GOVERNOR ANSWERS THE SENATOR'S LETTER.

Rebukes the Senator for the Tone of His Letter and Asserts His Responsibility to the People.

Columbia, S. C., June 6.—Governor McSweeney yesterday made the following reply to the letter of the Hon. J. Altheus Johnson, Senator from this State, which was published in the Abbeville Press and Banner of June 6.

"Sir—Your letter of June 6 has been received. I have carefully noted its contents and the most charitable view which I can take of it is that it was written in the best of passion and without due consideration.

"I do not regret that I have been 'transcended' by your authority and that the Governor 'cannot compel a member of the United States Senate to hold his commission and exercise the functions of that office' if he chooses to surrender it.

"My sole concern in returning the resignation was to ask you gentlemen to consider calmly and thoughtfully the consequences of your action, and to advise me if you act and what you admit to have been a hasty act, and I must confess that I am somewhat surprised at the tone of your answer to my request.

"I consider the course which I took in this matter to be for the best interest of the people of South Carolina and I am responsible to them alone for my action, and furthermore I still believe that my course has been the approval of a majority of the citizens of the State, nor do I consider them 'unblinking critics,' but men who know and recognize as fully as any man in the State the rights, duties and responsibilities of citizenship and do not need the services of any one to tell them their duty.

"Your insinuation that I have been 'importuned' to 'await the convenience' of any present or would-be aspirant for the office is just as untrue for various reasons as the contention brought on so unexpectedly and that for this reason my action has been the best of all that I could have taken in the high commission which has been given you by the people of South Carolina and deserves notice in this connection.

"However, I may say for your benefit that I alone am responsible for the course which I have taken in this matter and not to any one else.

"In this matter I have done what I thought was best calculated to promote the present prosperity and contentment of the people of my State and what I thought to do was less of what any one man may say or think of my course.

"I do not think that a political campaign this summer could do any good. However, had the resignation been unconditional and unrestricted, my action would have been otherwise.

"With due respect for your opinion, I think it would be better for the office of the Senator and its powers as you or any other citizen of this State, and you must have known that I have no objection to your resigning if you so desire, but I must say that I would simply meet the responsibility and perform my duty under the conditions of the resignation.

"If you wish still to resign your commission and will send to this office an unconditional resignation, I will accept it with authority and power vested in me by the people.

Respectfully,
M. B. McSweeney,
Governor.

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

Admires the Rugged Old Populist Lion Who Rules the Palmetto State—Has No Use for McLaughlin But Believes His Doctrine Will Prevail.

It is perhaps a little too early to laugh Mr. McLaughlin, but it is not too early to admire the rugged old Populist lion who rules the Palmetto State.

The caricatures that picture him as beaten and despairing may be as premature as they are present. It is not too early to admire the rugged old Populist lion who rules the Palmetto State.

But neither likes nor dislikes should blind the public commentator to facts as they exist, and the man who writes for accuracy rather than for partisan compliance will see that Long's position is much better than that which he has been given.

To my mind he has accomplished all that he set out to do, and in the most effective way, advertising his official station at the same time.

Senator McLaughlin has projected clearly, definitely and with dramatic effect upon the public opinion of South Carolina the issues which are being bound to divide the southern democracy.

No combination of circumstances could have done this so effectively as the stirring events of the past fortnight. The issue is raised, the people are aroused, the issue is to be fought, to revolve, to grow, until it is settled at the ballot box.

This is as it should be. That is the meaning of the ballot—the mission of popular government.

Now whether the good fortune or by shrewd calculation, Senator McLaughlin has accomplished this without losing his position, and in so doing he has emerged from the shadows of the past and emerged into the dignity and repute of an accredited leader of a very interesting and vitally important movement.

It would perhaps be disastrous and certainly unfortunate for the junior senator to have put the fortunes of the State in crisis at this time—so soon after his statement and with only a brief and hurried campaign of dissembling and misrepresentation upon the people. Delay is of golden value to him. Time is the factor of advantage. The sixteen months between now and the next election may change the political complexion of South Carolina.

It is no discounting the force and importance of McLaughlin's political views, nor the dignity and influence of the interests which support him. He is the leader of an increasing, intelligent and resolutely growing sentiment in the State.

It must not be forgotten that the South Carolina leads all the other States in the proportionate advancement it has made in manufacturing and agricultural development. The "Hampton" and the "Harris Ferry of the Union," has become the industrial Massachusetts of the South. There is no southern State which the growth of economic and commercial policy finds a stronger and more practical endorsement than among the people of the State of South Carolina.

The same drift of interest that is loosening the ties which bind the industrial States to the Democratic party, is loosening the ties which bind the industrial States to the Democratic party, is loosening the ties which bind the industrial States to the Democratic party.

The age is commercial. The dollar is dominant and the trade winds are setting ready to blow the balloons in a storm toward political organizations which stand for the real material development of the South and the southeastern States.

It may be delayed, and the battle of the practical and the impractical, but it is sure to come, and out of it there will be, in some shape, a new birth of politics in all this vast and important section.

It is in this view of the case McLaughlin, of South Carolina, has at least done well in precipitating this conflict within the ranks of the Democratic party, instead of joining forces with the independent forces of the South and the South Atlantic States, which have so long been antagonistic to southern interests. It is better that the first battle should be fought in the ranks of the Democratic party, than that the party should be divided and the party of the people will fall into line with the party of the people.

There are greater misfortunes which could befall this section.

The ideas for which McLaughlin is militant and so much to be desired, are the wisest and soundest policies of the South, time will determine.

No party is so intelligent and so determined as the vast number of citizens and voters of the South cannot be galvanized into action by the party of the people. These men want is not to join Republican party to secure the adoption of their policy, but to see that the party of the people, the Democratic party, open its eyes to the changed conditions of the time, and to conserve the material interests of the people.

The negro is practically disfranchised in nearly every southern State. The shadow of black supremacy no longer intimidates free thought in Dixie.

And so South Carolina may lead the way of these larger times it will continue to win. If not, some other party will win the suffrages of these southern States because it will deserve their support.

This is the logic of the situation.

TILLMAN'S LATEST.

His Reply to the Governor's Telegram Some Days Ago.

Columbia, S. C., June 6.—Senator Tillman has just sent a reply to the Governor's telegram of the 4th inst., in which he declines to accept the Governor's offer of a withdrawal of his resignation.

Trenton, S. C., June 5, 1901.

His Excellency, M. B. McSweeney, Columbia, S. C.

Dear Sir: I am in receipt of your telegram in which you say "I understand that the Governor has put the withdrawal of his resignation" and I have read that worthy communication in which he graciously consents to your request to hold on to his commission as United States Senator and continue to serve the State as he has done in the past to the best of his ability.

This leaves me one of three alternatives, to appeal to the democratic executive committee to take up the matter and determine the best interest of the party requires to be done, to appeal to the senate itself to determine the question of whether a resignation from that body to take effect at some future time is binding or withdraw my own resignation.

There are no precedents on this subject, because in the one hundred and twenty-five years of our history no senator has ever resigned from the senate, no senator has hitherto been willing to occupy the deplorable position of being named by the Governor and then to be forced to resign.

I am certain of one thing; that the executive committee of a State has no authority to determine the question of whether a resignation from that body to take effect at some future time is binding or withdraw my own resignation.

My chief regret is that I am forced by your action to engage in what the outside world will consider a most unprofitable and unproductive struggle. I have no objection to your drawing my own resignation after Senator McLaughlin's undignified and peevish resignation, but the purpose for which I am tendered by Senator McLaughlin's resignation is to be a precedent for the future.

Yours respectfully,
B. R. Tillman.
