When South Carolina's Senators come home and begin to tell of the wickedness of each other, the people will have a glorious time. It has been so long since anybody has been abused in this State, that something on that line would be interesting.

Prince Henry arrived in New York last Sunday. He was expected on Saturday, and the great demonstration was postponed for a day. He is now in Washington, where the President received him with great honors.

Married.

Feb. 19 1902, by Rev. J. F. McKinnon. Mr. Frank Hunter and Miss Mollie Pettigrew.

CAPT. F. W. R. NANCE was in town one day last week. He is the same cheerful man that he was years ago. Physically, he is now sixty-eight years of age, but his heart is not over thirty. He is now ten years beyond the age limit which the oldest member of his family ever attained. He was twice elected Sheriff, and voluntarily gave up the office. He says he will now make the race for State Senator and will give the boys a lively time of it.

Mr. Alex. Hagan died at his home last Sabbath night, after a brief illness. He was in his seventy-eighth year, and had lived a useful and upright life. For years he had been a member of Upper Long Cane church. After funeral services at his home, conducted by Rev. J. F. McKinnon, he was buried at the Lindsay burying ground Monday at 3 o'clock.

GOLD MILL BURNED.

Loss Estimated at Four Thousand Dollars—Insurance One Thousand Seven Hundred Dollars.

On last Monday night the gold mill, about eight miles south of Abbeville, was destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $4,000. Insurance, $1,700. The power plant was one of the best of its size to be had in the markets, and had been run very little. Messrs. Williamson & Wakeling are chief owners of the property, which originally cost some $8,000 or $10,000. The insurance, $1,700, and damaged machinery is all that is left.

The digging of the ore will go on as usual, and when the mill is repaired the ore will be worked.

The owners of the mill are Canadians, and have made many friends among our people since they came among us, and it is hoped that all necessary repairs will soon be made, and that stacks of the useless gold lying around loose may be gathered until our new friends may have an abundace of it.

Great Fire in New York.

Mrs. Mary Lyon Bradley and Mr. W. R. Bradley Have a Narrow Escape.

THEIR PERILOUS WALK ON HIGH LEDGE.

Their Success Brought Forth a Tremendous Shout of Gladness From a Vast Multitude.

They Descend From the Fifth Story of Park Avenue Hotel in Safety, and Are Now Safely on Their Journey to Manila.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley appeared at a window on the fifth floor on the Park Avenue side of the building, near Thirty-third street. Mrs. Bradley appeared to be cool; her husband hysterical. Mrs. Bradley stepped out of her window upon an eighteen-inch ledge. This ledge was covered with ice and snow.

On this narrow coping, with their bodies pressed close up against the hot walls of the building, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley crept hand in hand for over sixty feet to a point directly above the portico in the middle of the hotel, upon which a dozen firemen stood and from which they had raised ladders to the fifth floor. Then the two climbed down on the ladders, were assisted to the portico and from there to the street by the aid of two score firemen, and a mighty cheer went up.

A LETTER FROM MRS. BRADLEY.

New York, Feb. 22, 1902.

Dear Mother and Father:

The Park Avenue Hotel was burned last night. You will likely see our names among the injured. We are not much hurt.

The fire caught us in our room before we knew the hotel was afire. There was no way of escape. We got on the window and hallooed for the longest. Crowds of men were looking at us and trying to help. Finally, a ladder was put up that reached a balcony just one floor below us, and some sixty feet from us. We had to run around the walls of the building on a narrow ledge about a foot wide. When we had come above the balcony to which the ladder reached, a man on the balcony told me to jump, and he caught me. Mr. Bradley followed me. Both have a sprained ankle. When I landed in the man's arms ever so many men came to me and told me that they had never witnessed such pluck as I showed when I ran around the walls of that great house.

A New York Herald staff correspondent carried us to a place of rest, and he was just as kind as could be.

The occurrence was horrible. When we left, eight dead bodies had been found, and ever so many others were burned frightfully.

Don't be uneasy about us.

The Doctor says that it will be all right for us to sail, and that we will soon be all right.

Our loss was wraps, a kodak, some books, and few other things.

Your loving daughter,

Mary Lyon Bradley.

That the expressions about hot walls and ice and snow on the ledge: Mr. and Mrs. Bradley, unconscious that their own house was afire, were standing at their window watching a great fire which was very near to them. Suddenly, and without warning, flames from the hall burst into the room which they occupied.

Mr. Bradley has a commission from the United States Government to go to Manila to teach in some of the high schools. He and Mrs. Bradley were recently married and he takes with him as brave a bride as ever crossed the sea.

How Birds Help Us.

Birds do an immense amount of drudgery for man, if they do now and then reward themselves by a dainty tidbit of ripening fruit. A pair of robins have been watched while they carried a thousand earth-worms to their brood. Woodpeckers destroy eggs and larvæ which would develop millions of destructive creatures in forests and orchards; and one of the most inevitable foes of the canker worm is the beautiful oriole, were it but allowed to live.

Lovers of birds will be gratified to hear that speedy revenge is in store for wanton destroyers of bird life in France. It is stated that all agricultural and fruit-growing industries are suffering severely from the almost total extermination of the small birds. In the Department of the Herault the havoc worked by insects amongst the grapes causes a loss of 2,000.000 gallons of wine a year. It is now calculated that, as many birds consume about 600 insects a day, the loss of even one of them may mean the loss of 3,200 grains of wheat or 1,150 grapes daily.

The Christian wants to know just one thing about a proposed course of action. He does not inquire: "Is it easy, politic, safe, profitable, popular?" He asks merely: "Is it God's will for me?" That question answered affirmatively, he knows that the results are secure and happy.

If praise comes unsought, it is well, while men are uttering it, to guard yourself by thinking of some secret cause for humbling yourself inwardly to God, thinking unto what these accents would be changed if all that is known to God, and even to yourself, stood revealed.

Instability is often regarded as a mere foible, or constitutional weakness; but it is a sin that often wrecks all hope of excellence and kills all hope of success. When I see a young man with no fixed habits, drifting from one place to another, from one opinion to another, in search of the latest "fad," from one church to another, I detect a moral unsoundness, and say to him, "Unstable as water thou shalt not excel."

You are the keeper of your own heart-habitation, on which depends your peace, and your spiritual life. Conscience is the sentinel faculty. If conscience is drugged or seared, you are at the mercy of every foe. Conscience enlightened and vigilant will challenge every temptation, however smooth of tongue.

I have no money. I had nothing to give but myself; and so I made the resolution that I would never sadden any one else with my troubles. I have laughed and told jokes when I could have wept. I have always smiled in the face of every misfortune. I have tried never to let any one go from my presence without a happy word or a bright thought to carry with him. And happiness makes happiness. I myself am happier than I would have been had I sat down and bemoaned my fate."

Washington's Birth Day.

The fist fight in the Senate occurred on Washington's birth day. Washington, as you all know, couldn't tell a lie, but McLaurin seemed to think differently of Tillman, and this opinion expressed as it was, brought on the fight. McLaurin does not see the likeness between George and Ben.

Tillman was the aggressor and he brought on a row from which he will gather no laurels.

Both Senators stand suspended.

McLaurin has demanded an investigation as to Tillman's charges, and it really seems that the Senior Senator is in close quarters. When he attempts to prove that McKinley and Roosevelt went into a corrupt bargain with McLaurin, the witnesses will be hard to find. Any charge that McLaurin yielded to improper influences applies with equal force to all the parties connected with it. Nobody believes that McKinley or Roosevelt or McLaurin are dishonest. Their hands are believed to be clean.

"Men of The Time" is the title of a valuable Biographical Encyclopedia of Contemporaneous South Carolinians, by J. G. Garlington. It is most beautifully printed by the Garlington Publishing Co.

The book is true to its name and gives authentic sketches of a host of prominent people in every line of business. Every man who publishes a newspaper will find this a most useful book, when good men are being discussed or buried, and every one who expects to be discussed or buried should place authentic information in reach of the editors of the State.

M'LAUREN'S DEMANDS.

Wants Tillman's Charges Fully Investigated.—Resolution Introduced at his Request by Senator Pritchard —what McLauren Says in Reference to the Resolution.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Special.—Immediately after the senate convened today, Senator Pritchard read the following letter:

Hon. J. C. Pritchard, United States Senator, Washington, D. C.—My Dear Sir: I was prevented, as you know, from offering the resolution which I wrote at my desk Sunday demanding an investigation of the charges made by my colleague, by being adjudged in contempt of the senate. I am now debarred the privilege, and request you to introduce the resolution, for the reason that, if the charges are true, I am unfit to remain a member of the senate, and if they are untrue, the man who made them is unfit to remain a member of this honorable body. In any event, I feel that I am entitled to a vindication by the same body that makes investigation in the proceeding for contempt. I herewith enclose the resolution.

Yours very truly,
John L McLaurin.

The resolution referred to follows:

"Whereas the senior senator from the state of South Carolina charged in a speech on the floor of the senate that the junior senator from the same state had been improperly influenced in casting his vote for the ratification of the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain; and, whereas the said charge was emphatically denied by the junior senator.

"Resolved, That the committee on privileges and elections be directed to investigate and report as to the truth of the said charges, with full power to send for persons and papers."

Senator Pritchard moved immediate consideration of the resolution, but on motion of Senator Hale it was referred to the committee mentioned in the resolution.
