

In Atlanta.

The editor of the Press and Banner has a building proposition on his hands, and thinking that he might catch an idea by visiting Atlanta, he last week asked and received a ticket to Atlanta and back home over the S. A. L. Seeing the big advertisements of the newspapers which promised to dash the news on the walls as fast as received, we arranged to go over Tuesday afternoon. Promptly the flash lights began to tell the news to what seemed to be an acre or more of people. The drift of the tide set in at once in favor of Roosevelt. The crowd looked in silence. In a little while we were possessed of a feeling of indignation at the newspapers which had so persistently claimed that Parker had a fighting chance when the fact is a good looking wooden Indian sign from the front of a cigar store could have beaten Parker. Parker is no politician, and after his speech lamenting and weeping over the fact that the trusts wouldn't help to elect him, he must have felt exceedingly small when he congratulated Roosevelt, who had only a few days before denounced his utterance in the strongest parliamentary language permissible for a President. The abuse which was heaped upon Senator Lattimer and the New York Herald for telling the truth about the Democratic prospects come vividly to mind as we read the telegrams. Up to this time we have not discovered a reason for the unanimity of action in holding out unfounded hopes. Thoroughly disgusted, we went to bed at an early hour. Up to that time no responsive sound had been heard from the assembled multitude. But when we were in bed we heard cheering. By whom or for what it was given we do not know.

The Atlanta time is one hour slower than ours. It takes a man a long time over there to set up late at night, but their time is all right to get up by.

Next morning it was ten o'clock by our watch when we got out of bed. Reckoning by their time it was nine o'clock when we reached the breakfast table. We sat next seat to a Marylander. The result of the election was the topic. He knew Senator Lattimer's son, whom he had just left in the lobby of the hotel, and remarked on the fact of Senator Lattimer's lecture from the newspapers. In conversation, he advanced the idea that the South had done more than Roosevelt to excite race issues. He thought the people of the United States admired Roosevelt because "he would do things." He thought North Carolina and South Carolina would be among the first Southern States to go into the Republican column. When we recall the fact that there are more epidemics in South Carolina than in any State, except Massachusetts, and when we remember that North Carolina, while not having quite as many epidemics as set down to the credit of South Carolina, yet has a greater number of mills, we are not prepared to dispute the Marylander's position.

Whatever the facts may be, we believe that very few cotton mill men can be extreme Democrats. The Northern stock holders, as a rule, are all Republicans. The personal associations, and the unity of interests to others with the fact that cotton mills could not exist without the tariff laws, leads us to believe that few, if any, cotton mill men are tariff tinklers.

In going over to Atlanta we met on the train Mr. W. Young, brother-in-law of Dr. Killingsworth, of this city. He is a contractor and a man of affairs. He lives at Winder and was going over to Atlanta to see the election returns. Among other things he said, he had been making good money at building oil mills in Alabama. He said the trusts had not intimidated the people in the building of oil mills, but on the other hand, they had given confidence in the business. The farmers were pleased at the increase in price of seed, and the trusts insured to the mills a staple price for their product. By getting a large cotton reserve to take stock, an abundance of seed was secured for the independent mills. Without land, houses and engine, a twenty ton mill costs $15,000.

Among the on-lookers at the election returns we were glad to meet Dr. and Mrs. Mitchellner, who were recently so well and so personally known in Abbeville. The Doctor enquired for Dr. Harrison and others, and both expressed the most kindly feelings for Abbeville and our people, while saying that it was to their interest to live in Atlanta.

Mr. Sam Seal was tiding an interest in the election. We were pleased at meeting him, for he is looking well, and to all appearances, he is doing as well as he looks.

As a rule, the Atlanta people know nothing of each other, and their knowledge of the city is about equal to what they know of each other. We remarked on these facts to some one, and he replied: "Oh, they are copying after the New Yorkers to create an impression of the greatness of the city." On a former occasion, we met an old friend on the street, as a matter in conversation we said that Atlanta is bigger than Abbeville. Our friend replied: "Oh, yes, it is nearly as big as Greenwood. Another gentleman in speak of South Carolina's dispensary said: "We have in Atlanta eighty bar-rooms. They pay to the city $60,000 in license fees." This was all the definite information we received about the city.

BEAUTIFUL HOME WEDDING.

On last Wednesday morning November 9th, at 11 o'clock, the marriage of Miss Nora See Hammond and Mr. Fletcher B. Brogdon was solemnized at the home of the bride. Rev. P. E. Wells officiating.

The home was beautifully decorated in evergreens, autumn leaves and cut flowers. A large horse shoe with white chrysanthemums suspended above the door leading into the parlor through which the bride party entered.

The large folding doors were opened wide throwing both parties into one and just above these doors was a canopy of evergreens. From the corners of which was suspended a large white bell draped with ivy, while from the center of the canopy a white and pink bouquet of flowers was held aloft.

The bride party consisted of the following: viz: bridesmaids, Miss Vivian Caldwell and Miss Tallula Crowther, Miss Annie Neal and Miss Jessie Murray, Miss Beale Brogdon and Miss Antonetta Hammond, followed by the bride and groom.

The bridesmaids were attired in beautiful costumes of brown with hats to match, each carrying a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

The bride was gowned in a handsome brown net over brown tulle silk with hat to match and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The groom was in a suit of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Hammond and never looked more charming than on this occasion.

Mrs. Calmes Hammond presided at the organ, and under her skillful touch, softly and sweetly, the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March rolled out in all their beauty. During the entire ceremony, music soft, low and sweet made up the grand accompaniment to the solemn words that united these two hearts as one.

The ceremony being over congratulations were tendered, after which a delicious salad course was served.

The bride was the recipient of a large number of beautiful and costly presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Brogdon left at one o'clock over the Seaboard for the home of the groom's parents at Seawater, Georgia, where they joined Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Hammond, his bride and were welcomed by many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Brogdon will be at home to their Abbeville friends today—Wednesday the 16th. They will make their home for the present with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Hammond, on Main Street.

DEATH OF JOHN THOMAS CARLISLE.

Mr. J. T. Carlisle breathed his last while sitting in a chair in his room at the Oil Mill of this city on last Monday morning about 10 o'clock. He was employed as a watchman and had as usual made his regular rounds up to 10 o'clock, but before the next round the dread summons came to him in the twinkling of an eye, suddenly and without warning.

Mr. J. T. Carlisle was with him and saw him as he took his seat, suddenly start and fall back in a reclining position, with a gasping breath. He was carried back with him only to find Mr. Carlisle dead. Dr. Gambrell was summoned at once by telephone, and pronounced him dead from heart failure.

The deceased was an inoffensive, honest, upright citizen and was faithful in the discharge of his duties as watchman having held the position for ten or twelve years in the esteem and confidence of his employers.

He has paid the last debt and is now on the other shore, we trust safe at home from worldly care and anxiety.

His remains were interred on Tuesday in Upper Long Canal cemetery where he rests beside loved ones gone before.

The surviving brother and bereaved ones have the sympathy of many friends.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petty jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Cleetmore county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some soured milk and I gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was near more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that sent me to bed. I took one dose and I was cured in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." For sale by C. A. Milford, Abbeville, H. M. Young, Due West, J. W. Morrish, Mt. Carmel.

YOU NEED A GRAIN DRILL.

GET THE "FARMERS FAVORITE" WITH THE "FLOW FUR" DISC.

The Disc that makes the broad, flat seed bed. Even lighter running than the Hoe Drill. Sows Wheat, Oats, Early, Rye, Flax, Millet, Beet Seed, Buckwheat, Peas, Beans, Corn and Grass Seeds.

The use of a disc furrow opener, replacing the hoe, has become very popular in recent years. The Farmers' Favorite disc is peculiar and quite unlike any other disc in the "shield" or grain conduit, the lower end of which is flared outward from the disc like a plow-share, to assist in the opening and closing of the furrow into which the grain is deposited. In soils where the disc is preferable to the hoe furrow opener, this device is popular on account of the plow-share shield and its effectiveness in preparing a broad, flat seed-bed, giving the grain plenty of room for proper germination and growth.

The notable features of the Farmers' Favorite disc construction, in addition to the "Plowfur" shield, are:

Double Drag Bars—Durability.
Pipe Oiler—Dust-proof and effective. One filling of cup will last for 200 acres.
Scraper—Thoroughly and completely scouring the revolving disk.
Pressure—Applied at a point over the axle of the disc, to give the most desirable results. Applied astride the disc, insuring every wearing operation of the disk bearing.

We can sell you one, on terms so easy that you would hardly know that you were paying for it.
