Criticism. A test of a well balanced character is the question, are we ready to heed criticism as to hear praise? If we can not hear our shortcomings menaced with those on the fence there is too much leaning toward self-conceit.

The Press and Banner believes that a man's enemies, if they are treated right, are often worth more to him than his friends. We believe that both adverse criticism, and favorable criticism, are necessary for the development of the best character.

When we are adversely criticized we should examine ourselves or our acts. If they are right we should have the courage to stand by them. If they are wrong we should have the courage to admit the fault and allow our critics to take the conceit out of us, without taking offence, even if they are less civil than they might be.

Nature creates her thousands who are ever ready to criticize unkindly anybody who dares to say or to do anything. None of these vast multitudes should excite our resentment for killing another white man, does not when they speak spitefully, and those on the higher level should take their remarks more as a basis for self-examination than for vexation or resentment.

As a rule, however, thousands of people speak unthinkingly in what would seem to be in unkindness, but in fact, they speak without malice and without intent to injure. Their criticisms, instead of wounding, hold the mirror up to nature in which may be reflected the faults which they think we are committing. Unkindness or malice from high places are often recorded in one's book of remembrance. At the proper time the printer is not at loss to "get even," if he so desires.

Our neighbor of the Presbyterian seems to think there can be but one kind of criticism, and we are not quite sure if he did not mean error or obstinacy when he said "self-conceit." Self-conceit is all right, except on occasion, when it ought to be knocked out of us, and we should not be surprised if our neighbor, the Associate Reformed Presbyterian, should proceed to knock it out just now.

Deserves Thanks. The people of South Carolina owe the State newspaper a vote of thanks for its recent editorial on "Crime-At Gaffney and Elsdewere."

In many cases our juries have not done their duty. For this failure we think the judges on the bench are not blameless. Even if white men are convicted of taking life, their punishment seems light when compared to the punishment inflicted on a negro for offenses against property. Is it not true that a negro's punishment for stealing a pig is in excess of the punishment usually inflicted on a white man for killing a negro?

And then, when a jury convicts a white man for killing another white man, does not the judge, who imposes sentence, too often fix the penalty in a fine, instead of imprisonment on the chain gang? Would these purple proud manly men and their friends, the jurors and judges, place a price in money, on life? Are not the judges too often very kind?

In our opinion, the judges, more than the juries, are to blame for the lack of the enforcement of the laws for the protection of life. And then, on the Supreme Bench are not blameless. Even if white men are convicted of taking life, their punishment seems light when compared to the punishment inflicted on a negro for offenses against property.

Our courts furnish to strangers their strongest plea for securing to the negro the right to vote.

EAST END.

What "M" Meets and Hears on His Rounds in Country and in Town. WITHIN THE CITY GATES.

A merry Xmas to the editors, patrons, and correspondents of the Press and Banner. Before another issue of the good old paper Christmas will again have dawned upon us and all will be in the midst of the holidays.

Santa Claus is the busiest of all the men we see, he is rushing around in Abbeville from store to store, buying the children, and toys of every kind, fixing them up for the children; we don't know whether he will carry his presents around Saturday night, or Monday night. Last Christmas came on Sunday and this year Xmas comes on Sunday.

Our merchants are bustling ready for the Xmas trade, their stores are being gaily decorated with all sorts of pretty goods and fancy articles. The holidays will be beautiful and more tempting.

Our Graded High School will open again on Tuesday the 2nd of January. Teachers we presume will have their respective homes and friends there to make merry on this joyous festival of all the year.

Abbeville's social circles will be largely gathered around the hearth stone thereby making home bright and happy. What a joyous time when all the loved ones gather in the home circles more to spend the holidays with their loved ones, and to spend the holidays with their loved ones, and to spend the holidays with their loved ones.

Mr. Eddie Reiche the faithful and efficient clerk of the office of the Mayor, in connection with the office on the first of January next having already accepted a situation with the American Cigar Co. of Greenville S. C.

As clerk he will be greatly missed for he was courteous and friendly and personally his duties with marked correctness. In his new situation he will work for promotion and we have no doubt but that he will soon climb to the topmost round and win the place of merit his faithful attention to business will gain for him.

Mr. Lowrie Beacham is now running as mail clerk (substitute for Mr. Robinson) on the Savannah Way train, running from Anderson to Metrolink.

Mr. Beacham a fully equal to the important duties of a mail clerk in this respect. His work will be done with a satisfaction to the government and thereby reflect credit upon himself. Many friends wish him the best of luck.
