The Law and Order League.

As might have been expected, since the Law and Order League was organized, crime seems to run at large. Murders, assaults and lynching are of almost weekly occurrence. Between the Dispensary and the Law and Order League, South Carolina is having a hard time of it. The sale of liquor is agltating the minds of all classes and conditions of men. Murder, assault and lynching, breaks out only in spots.

If the Law and Order League could be locked up and the sale of liquor stopped ty the dispensary, there might be some hope of living in this country in comparative happiness. But with two such things as the Law and Order League and the Dispensary in

CAMPAIGN MEETING.

The meeting of the State Candidates at Abbeville passed off quietly. Hon. F. B. Gary was Chairman of the meeting. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. P. B. Wells.

The first speaker was Mr. McLoud, candidate for Lieutenant Governor. Mr. McLoud and statesmanship of its leaders and said that an Abbeville man was treasurer of his home county and wished for more such citizens. He pledged his best services to the people and promised to look after their interests if elected.

Mr. L. M. Ragin, of Richland County, candidate for Secretary of State, then spoke. He said that the office of Secretary of State was a cierical office and consequently there were no issues for him to discuss in selecting a man for this office he said that there were two requirements; first, that the man be qualified for the position, that he have a thorough knowledge of the workings of the office, books, etc., and second that he be honest in the discharge of the dutles of the office, without even the aid of a typewriter. He related the story of a certain bad boy out in Tennesse. Hon. J. D. Boyd, of Greenville, candidate for Adjutant and Inspector General, next spoke. He referred to his record of three years in the State malitia, and said that he would rather have a single rose at the hands of the people now than have a bed of roses on his grave. He asked the people only to experiment the said that he would rather have a single rose at the hands of the people now than have a bed of roses on his grave. He asked the people only to experiment the position.

Hon. L. W. Haskell spoke on the importance of the office and of the part the Malitia plays in the Government. He said that he was a greduste of the Citadel, for three years a commandant of malitia, that he had been assistant Adjutent General and that the experience he had thus gained eminently fitted bilm for the position he asked.

Mr. Richard Manning, of Sumter, was next introduced. He stands for improvement in the common schools; better pay for teachers, and that the same hold prejudice against the dispensary was that whiskey was an evil—the question was, the control of the discovered that whiskey was an evil—the question was, the control of the discovered that the same hold prejudice against the dispensary was better to offer, that prohibition was not effective and cannot be. The proposed county dispensary would be even worse than the state institution. He advocated a bill that would cail for the appointment of a committee to open bids for liquois supply to last twelve months, tappurchasing power to be taken away from the board and vested in the committee, After a twelve months tupply had been bought the commit tee to retire from effice and a new committee to retire from effice and a new committee to retire from cflice and a

Hon. M. F. Ansel, of Greenville, thought that us the Government was spending thousands of dollars on seas and rivers, some money should be spent on public highways. The most prosperous cities have good roads leading to them. He is opposed to the State Dispensary Bystem and thinks that each county should vote for itself, that such a proceedure is good democracy.

Mr. Brunson stands out flat-footed for prohibition and classes the dispensary along with bar-rooms, and would blot out the whole thing. He is on the water-wagon. He says that if the State Dispensary was tied in the Nisgara Falls, it could not be washed clean. He says that if whiskey continues to be sold we should erect an asylum for inebriates.
