The history of many lands and of many people through two thousand years is the record of the influence and the inspiration of Jesus Christ. Upon the story of the world none has made a deeper impress, none has marked a richer fame. Born in a manger, His early acts almost unknown, a mere pittance of His royal wealth of mind and divinity of soul preserved to us to this day-and that pittance a storehouse of wisdom and eternal life-the character and the claims of Christ stand forth pre-eminent and predominant before the world. Through every epoch and in every age the might and majesty of His life have been a force for uplift among nations, and a factor for righteousness in individual lives. Listening to the admonitions of the Saviour, rulers have learned the way to reign. Attending to the advice of the Master, many a sin-seared soul has entered into Heaven's haven and found safety in a sure salvation. Laying His hand upon womanhood, Christ has bid her rise. Speaking to the hearts of men, He has counseled justice, and has bid mankind be fair. To the statesman, to the craftsman, to the captains of industry and to the tillers of the soil, the words and the works and the life of Christ have been the measure of true manhood and the guarantee of His divinity. Sent of Almighty God to be the Saviour of human kind, Jesus has taught every mortal how to live. Preaching no gospel of minutiae, our Lord has given unto us a rule of faith and practice that must revolutionize the world. Born into a world of caste, class and prejudice of birth, Christ taught the value and nobility of each and every soul. Finding pride to be more of account than purity, He demanded cleanliness of heart. Finding hypocrisy to be far more prevalent than high-mindedness, He asserted the necessity for sanctity of soul. Trusting in the assurance of divine guidance, and feeling the impulses of divine love, the Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost. With sublime confidence in the invincibility of the right, and that truth must win, the Christ assailed and arraigned, with fearless fervor, all the host of spiritual wicked ones who prostituted to their own ends the holy places and the hallowed purposes of the Most High. Filled with sympathy for all the army of the manity of mankind to man, He forced earth's oppressed, He spread a loving arm about them all, and bade them ing words, the evil of His day. Strong take courage and have peace and as the oak He stood against the cheer. Knowing the beauty and the storm. Keen as the tempered blade blessedness of holiness, and seeing the smote His adversaries. Were the hideousness of sin, our Lord they wary He was more. Father's favor. and the revelation of the Father, He has preached and practiced that no-bility of life that awakens within the human heart the recognition of His divine authority. Hearing His words of love and of light, and seeing His blameless life of beauty and of grace, men have recognized in Him that word from Heaven which shall sanctify and save the world. Experiencing the inability of wisdom to re-veal Jehovah in His fullness, and longing for that preachment from on high which shall point the way to salvation and the perfect knowledge of our God, men have ever since the days of Christ known in Him that power and ability which can save. "Words are good only when backed up by deeds." Christ proclaimed His saving mission and His cleansing grace, and lived a life of love. "Actions speak louder than words." Declaring His integrity with God, the Lord of Life revealed, in outward act, an inner and diviner grace. Urging the need for purity, He was pure; stating the nobility of righteousness, He was just: standing firm for holiness and for sanctity of life, He never strayed from God; a counselor of loveliness, He was patient and kind and true; persuading men to godliness, and dissuading human souls from sin, the Christ ever exemplified in His own career that godly and sinless life that His promises inspire.

Christ as the Saviour is supreme. Of imitators He has many, and of equals none. To be the saviour of this world from sin, a man must have within his soul the fullness of divinity and of Godhood. To be accepted by mankind as the revelation of the Father and the healer of the race, a man must show forth in act the hidden, inner power. The Christ rings The melodies of Heaven peal through His words. He speaks, and lo! we hear eternal truth. He acts, and the very manner is divine. We listen and we see. Our hearts respond. We take Him at His word, and prove His power. We trust His promise, and we imitate His life. Christian experience sustains Him. He is indeed a Saviour. He is in truth the way and the life.

Revelation is information. To reveal is to disclose. To inform is to disclose facts which were before unknown to those who may give Disclosure is an uncovering. Christ the Revealer has disclosed to man what is the character of God, not only by the words He spoke, but also by the life He lived. He has taken the veil away and informed us of the fullness of the glory of Jehovah. He has revealed to us not only what God is, but also what man should be.

Christ has revealed to us the loving Father of each of us in our God. The Fatherhood is individual and not alone racial. Sonship is no mere matter of nationality, but is rather the victory of personality. Salvation at bottom is not political, but personal; not social, but individual. Through the individual recognition of the obligation of sonship is na-tional salvation assured. The agreement of sanctified personalities to serve God, and that well, is the basis and the beginning of social deliverance from the bondage of sin. is the Father of Israelites first, and through them of Israel. His love is the heritage of every heart and not alone the portion of the priests. His grace will lift all men to glory and through them the State.

The power of Jesus Christ in the of the word when he reads it only to world to-day is due to the fact that, | find shot for saints Christ claimed divinity, and He lived a godly life. He insisted that His was the way unto life eternal, and we know He spoke the truth. Investigation of His life finds His action and speech in harmony. The measure of his conduct by His uttered ideals can find no flaw. is as He claims to be, and His glory is as the glory of the Father. The Christ was a stalwart man.

As the Anglo-Saxons had it, He was a man who was "foundation-worthy." Fixed firm and constant the Christ was never guilty of deflection from the strict, straight path of loyal duty Full worthy was our Lord to be the founder of a spiritual and moral renalssance that will overcome the world. Built strong and firm and true was He, upon whom the hopes of humanity are fixed.

The Christ was a man of courage He was a man of heart. Courage is heartiness. To be hearty is to be full of heart. He did not shrink from danger. Without a sign of fear or fright, our Lord defied the very prince of the powers of darkness. Gallantly, bravely, nobly He cleansed His Father's house. How mightily He inveighed against the powers of Palestine we may all attest. Christ was not weak hearted. Having a work to do He did it with a will Conscious of the odds against Him, He had no fear.

Out in the open, despised, forsaken even by His friends, trusting only in the power of the truth, He battled ever on for human liberty. Bearing upon His broken body the sins of an evil world, He was yet courageous; He had always heart. The Christ was sound to the core.

The Christ was a man of determination. He was a man of resolution. Having determined His sphere and His call in life, He was resolved to fill it. To be determined is to be ready to go to all lengths-that is to say, to see the thing through to the finish. The Christ was true to His resolves, even unto an ignominious end. Having marked a clear line of duty, He walked without swerving. Hearing the call of the dying world, He saw and conquered Calvary.

The Christ was a sturdy man. He had power of resistance, and He could not less well force the fight. Born with antipathy to evil, He stood against sin firmly. Seeing the inhuthe issue, and He flayed, with burnand know the joy and glory of the lay a snare, He did but tangle all of them in the meshes of their selected First and foremost in the world of net. The incarnation They showed him Caesar's image, but marriage in the heavenly country and He pointed their mistake. They asked a sign and got not one.

But sturdy and stalwart and strong of purpose and of will, as the Master was. He was yet the soul of sympathy. Hating iniquity and scoring evil, He had yet a healing hand for men. Disdaining sin, His heart held pity for the sinner. Crucified by wickedness, He could yet pray mercy for His persecutors. His was the sympathy that cured. His was the tenderness that touched. Filled with divine compassion, He knew the sufferings of human souls, and He preferred healing and a rich release.

"Men, like nails, lose their usefulness when they lose their direction and begin to bend," runs a piece of sterling wisdom. The Saviour had His bearings, and He kept the goal in sight. For Him the straight way was the surest, and He walked the middle of the path of duty. The offer of a whole world's wealth could not swerve Him from His course. "Get thee behind Me, devil." was the motto of His life as He dealt with sin. His fidelity should be the fashion of our faith. His directness should insure our zeal. His sympathy and for God. His stalwart energy and sturdiness of soul should be our pattern. Our lives should radiate His light. Our spirits should suffuse His love.

What Titian and Corot and Turner did for art; what Each and Beethoven and Mendelssohn did for music; what Tennyson and all the lyric host have done for the conservation and the culture of the minds of men, that, and infinitely more, can Jesus do toward the saving of a soul. Sturdy and stalwart and strong He stands to-day the Saviour of the race, the incarnation of the Word. His actions are an open book, and he who runs may read. His words are mighty unto life that is eternal, and he who hears and heeds may live. The imitation of His character is the calling of the Christian. The re-presenting of His strength, His power, purity and love, is the sign of Christly grace. Have you much or none?

An Awful Awakening.

In a town of Switzerland a few years ago some workingmen going early to work, walking along the street, saw a white figure on top of a high house. What is it? A lady in her night dress, and she was sitting, looking down, quite happy, smiling in perfect security. She was a som-nambulist. She had risen in her sleep without any one knowing it, and had taken her station, and was pleasantly looking about, and no doubt dreaming-dreaming pleasant Well, they did not know what they could do to save her from her peril.

Just as they were talking together the sun rose. A bright beam of sun fell upon her eyes; she saw where was; gazed one moment aroun. and then fell headlong-killed on the spot. It was an awful awakening. Fellow-sinner, if you are out of Christ, and the day of His coming overtakes you-oh, what if the first beam of that bright day be the first moment of your awakening, and it is too late!-Banor.

New York City.-The pretty and attractive blouse waist that is simple at the same time makes one of the most necessary elements in any woman's wardrobe. Undersleeves (to make the fashionable three-quarter length sleeves comfortable in cold weather) conform to the coat, and may be of silk or velvet trimmed with lace and buttons. They are fastened in place by buttons or patent snaps on the inside of the coat sleeve.

Tucked Blouse.

The shirt waist or simple blouse that is made with a chemisette is among the daintiest of all, and is exceedingly attractive as well as eminently fashionable. This one is closed invisibly at the front and allows of trimming after a most effective manner. In the illustration the material is a pretty plaid, while the trimming is velvet matching one of the darker colors and the chemisette is of allover lace. But chemisettes of lingerie material are always pretty, and are equally in vogue, while trimming can be silk or any contrasting material that may be liked or, indeed, the same material trimmed with a little braid or velvet ribbon. The pointed trimming straps on the front are decorative and quite simple, yet are not obligatory, for a plainer waist can be made by omitting them. The collar finishes the neck, and whether the sleeves are made with deep cuffs or terminate at the elbows, the full portions are completed by pointed bands.

The waist is made with a fitted lining that is closed at the front and consists of fronts and back. The back is laid in pleats for its entire length This one can be worn with that give tapering lines to the figure, The chemisette is separate and closed even the mercerized ones that so front edges. The waist is made with the fitting lining, which can be used or omitted as preferred, and which is closed at the centre front, and consists of the fronts, the centre front and the back. The fronts are arranged in a box pleat at each edge and in rather wide tucks at the shoulders, which are stitched to yoke depth, while the back is tucked on tapering lines. The trimming portions are joined to the centre front, which in turn is joined to the waist, and the closing is made length.

Fair Year Fairly Beaten.

In July, 1905, the Lewis and Clark Fair was in the height of its glory.

Our streets were thronged with thousands of visitors from all over the United States. Every hotel and lodging house was crowded, and new buildings were going up on every hand. This unparalleled activity, while pleasing in the extreme, could not disperse the gloom from a large number of pessimists, who feared the 'slump after the fair." But more than a year has passed since the fair was at the zenith of its success, and aine months have passed since its loors were closed forever, and what is the result? Bank clearings for July, 1906, more than $4,300,000 greater than for the same month last year, and building permits for May, June and July-the month's when, fast year, buildings was at its height -this year $1,368,000 greater than or the same three months in 1905. These glowing facts may be distressing for the pessimists, but it should be remembered that Portland has been no place for a pessimist for the past two years.—Portland Oregonian.

Jack Horner's Legend.

The legend of Little Jack Horner, as told in Somersetshire, is as follows: At the time of the dissolution the abbot of Glastonbury wished to send some important deeds to the brother of Queen Jane Seymour. For safety he concealed them in a pie and intrusted it to one Jack Horner. During the transit Jack Horner pulled out the plum in the shape of the title deeds of Mells Park, where his descendant now resides.

What is Pe-ru-na?

Is it a Catarrh Remedy, or a Tonic, or is it Both?

Some people call Peruna a great tonic. Others refer to Peruna as a great catarrh remedy.

Which of these people are right? Is it more proper to call Perana s catarrh remedy than to call it a tonic?

Our reply is, that Peruna is both a tonic and a catarrh remedy. indeed, there can be no effectual catarrh remedy that is not also a tonic, In order to thoroughly relieve any case of catarrh, a remedy must not only have a specific action on the mucous membranes affected by the catarrh, but it must have a general tonic action on the nervous system. Catarrh, even in persons who are otherwise strong, is a weakened condition of some mucous membrane. There must be something to strengthen the circulation, to give tone to the arteries, and to raise the vital forces.

Perhaps no vegetable remedy in the world has attracted so much atention from medical writers as HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS. The wonderful efficacy of this herb has been recognized many years, and is growing in its hold upon the medical profession. When joined with CUBEBS and COPAIBA a trio of medical agents is formed in Peruna which constitutes a specific remedy for catarrh that in the present state of medical progress. cannot be improved upon. This action, reinforced by such renowned tonics as COLLINSONIA CANADENSIS, CORYDALIS FORMOSA and CEDRON SEED, ought to make this compound an ideal remedy for catarrh in all its stages and locations in the body.

From a theoretical standpoint, therefore, Peruna is beyond criticism. The use of Peruna confirms this opinion. Numberless testimonials from every quarter of the earth furnish ample evidence that this judgment is not over enthusiastic. When practical experience confirms a well-grounded theory the result is a truth that can. be shaken.

Britain and Boer.

The London Spectator recently said that until it took Great Britain nearly three years and the whole power of the emipre to subdue the Boers, Englishmen could never quite understand why it took so many years and so many men for the North to conquer the South, but that now they inderstand. The New York Tribune nints that we may also have showed the way for a settlement of the British-Boer status which is agitating the country now. It says:

"The great question now agitating England, that of the status of Boer and Briton in the Transvaal, is, of course, one for Great Britain to settle. If a striking precedent is wanted much might be learned from the American policy of magnanimity which, after some serious mistakes in the reconstruction period, has at last obliterated sectional lines between North and South and resulted in a happily reunited people."

English is Good Enough.

The English language is pretty well liked, and to some extent serviceable, as it is-as Shakespeare misspelled it, and Milton versed it, and Pope and Swift and Addison and Goldsmith refined it, and, in fact, as all our long line of literary geniuses have philosophized and sermonized and romanced and word-painted in it. And the Englishman, unfamiliar or but slightly familiar with any save his native tongue, may well wonder, as he contemplates the great body of English literature, whether there is another so strong and at the same time so flexible. Surely any movement which even remotely threatens to impair its-strength and lessen its flexibility should be approached with thoughtful hesitation. It would, indeed, be a sad whittling down from the big to the little should simplified spelling finally lead to simplified rhetoric, and simplified rhetoric result in desiccated prose and potted theory.-Washington Herald.

material from the system. The result is a certain and steady return to normal health and mental activity. ville," in pkgs.
