In Memory of James McIlwain. On April the ninth, suddenly, unexpectedly, death laid his cold obdurate hands on all that was mortal of James McIlwain.

Mr. McIlwain was in the fifty-fourth year of his age. He was descended from Scotch-Irish ancestry and exhibited in his character the sterling virtues which have characterized that race.

He was a consistent member of the Greenville Presbyterian church, a man somewhat quiet and reserved in his manners, but sincere and true. His faith was of that simple steadfast kind that is not swayed by the vicissitudes of life.

He was particularly careful of the comfort and happiness of all with whom he came in contact and always accepted whatever fell to his lot in life with a cheerful willingness that was a true reflection of his Christian character.

He was a devoted father and a devoted husband. He was a devoted friend and a devoted neighbor. He was a devoted citizen and a devoted patriot.

Abbeville Hardware Co. REGISTRATION

The attention of the public is called to the Act of the recent Legislature, approved the 24th day of February, 1908, which reads as follows:

AN ACT to Provide for the Re-Enrollment and Registration of the Qualified Electors of this State During the Year 1908, and to Provide Compensation for the Supervisors of Registration.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of South Carolina, That the Supervisors of Registration in each County of the State are required to re-enroll all the qualified electors in this State during the year 1908.

Sec. 2. That the same time the said Supervisors shall register all persons who may make application therefor and who may be entitled thereto.

Sec. 3. That for the purpose of such enrollment and registration the said Supervisor shall keep the books of registration open at the several county seats every day (Sundays excepted), between the hours of nine a. m. and six p. m., during the months of July and August, 1908; and in addition thereto, they shall attend, during the month of September, 1908, at least one day in each township, in their respective Counties, of which at least ten days' notice shall be given by advertisement in a newspaper published in the County; and in Counties containing fifty thousand inhabitants they shall attend in each city, town, or industrial community, containing three hundred or more inhabitants, at least one day, upon similar notice; Provided, That in Spartanburg County they shall only apply to the re-enrollment and registration for the year 1908.

Sec. 4. That for the purpose of said re-enrollment the Secretary of State shall furnish the Supervisors of Registration with all the necessary books, and the sum of five hundred dollars shall be appropriated for supplying said books.

Sec. 5. That the Supervisors of Registration shall each receive for their services, during the year 1908, the sum of two hundred dollars, to be paid by the State quarterly, as other State officers are paid; except in the Counties of Anderson, Charleston, Greenville, Sumter, Orangeburg, Richland, where they shall each receive two hundred and fifty dollars for the year 1908; Provided, That in Spartanburg County they shall receive this year three hundred dollars, to be paid as above provided; that, after the year 1908, the Supervisors of Registration shall each receive fifty dollars per annum in odd years and one hundred dollars in even election years; except in the above named Counties, where they shall each receive seventy-five dollars per annum in odd years, and in general election years they shall receive two hundred dollars each per annum, including the County of Spartanburg.

Sec. 6. All Acts or parts of Acts inconsistent with this Act be, and the same are hereby, repealed.

Approved the 24th day of February, A. D. 1908.

DANGER IN DELAY. Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Abbeville People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills.

John B. Sample, living two miles east of Greenwood, S. C., says: "Several years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and the results obtained were very satisfactory, so much so in fact that I gave my name as an endorser of this remedy. Five years have passed since that time and I am pleased to state that I have had no further use of a kidney remedy. Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cured me and I willingly endorse them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Practical Forestry.

This is a plea for the wood lands, and is meant for one who may read it, but especially for the landowners, as they have the destiny of the forests largely in their hands. Those who are interested in this vital matter only in a secondary way. And so an appeal to save the forests must stand mainly those who most directly interested in them; that is, the owners.

A country where forests are one that is subject to extremes of heat and cold, to droughts, and floods, to a much greater extent than a wooded one. The trees are not only exposed, but more subject to washing, as any one can see by looking about them a little at what has taken place where the trees have been cut down. In any hilly portion of the State, and many of the leveler parts of the cultivated areas are the result of this. This is of course because the soil particles, being no longer held together by the tree roots, are easily carried away by the rains. This, then, suggests that the steeper hills and ravines, which are also usually the most rocky portions of the farm, should be left in forest, as this is the most profitable way to treat such places. It is safe to say that many fields are being ruined by the loss of their soil.

In a general way, the farm may be divided into three parts, the pasture, the wood land, and the wood land. The relative amounts of each portion will vary with the soil, the climate, and the needs of the farmer. A considerable part of their area in forest, and as suggested above, the parts best suited to be left in forest are the steeper hills and the rougher places. Each farm owner should give some of his best thought to this subject; just where he should leave the woods, and also where to allow them to grow again. This will furnish food for thought.

It will be impossible to outline a plan of treatment for the pastures and cultivated fields, which constitute a subject distinct from the wood lands. It may safely be said, however, that the best way to treat the pasture on every farm, and that a systematic rotation of crops should be practiced, together with the most thorough cultivation and manuring. It would perhaps be a good plan in many cases to allow some of the wood fields to grow up for a few years after cultivation ceases. They are one of the truest friends of the Southern farmer.

Now, a few words, as to the treatment of the woods, to insure their permanency and to secure the largest returns. This is where practical forestry comes in, and lends its aid, both towards correcting past errors and to securing better and larger results in the future. All our efforts should take the future into consideration.

Such a subject as forestry requires treatment in book form to cover it at all fully. Some things are so obvious, however, that they will appear to the average man. For example, when a tree reaches its full growth and decay commences, it is time to remove it, so that the younger trees may have room to grow. Such a tree is encumbering the soil where it grows, and, as a rule, should be cut where it is the largest trunk. This is where practical forestry comes in, and lends its aid, both towards correcting past errors and to securing better and larger results in the future. All our efforts should take the future into consideration.
