Prof. Saul ranks as a performer with the first men of the century, and his compositions are quite up to his reputation as a per former. He has played before nearly all the crown heads of Europe and the testimonials taken from foreign papers attest his wonderful popularity wherever he has gone. After his engagement here, his next engagement is at Vanderbilt's palace, Bilkmore. He is now finishing a series of engagements, after which he will go to Germany where he will succeed his oid preceptor as organist at Court Testimonials are too numerous and full to be copied, but if they count for anything at all, the music lover can not miss hearing Prof Saul, nor can the mere curious miss this opportunity of seeing, at their very doors, a man who others have ridden hundreds of miles to hear.

Prof. Saul bas a reputation as planist and organist that is international and comments on his splendid work have been taken from leading dailies of this State, of North Caroling, of New York, of Germany and of many other sections.
