The School House.

Our people are beginning to sit up and notice little things. They are waking up to the necessity of having a high school, and, as far as we know they are generally of one mind, namely; That the new school house should be a good one. When we spoke last week of a

A majority of parent+ are not able to send even one son of one daughter to college-and there are generally about half dozen girls and boys in each family. The great demand for a high school is in behalf of those who can il'-afford to send one son or one daughter away. Again: There is objection to sending young girls and young boys off to college, where they may be thrown with companions of whom they know nothing. Young girls, especially, ared that care and tedderness of their mothers, which they cannot get, if they are sent away from home. It is needless for us to discuss the probeble location of the new school house. We der. have faith in the trussees, or others in charge acting for the welfare of the whole people. They will select a lot with an eye single to the greatest good to the greatest number. They will not be influenced by personal gain nor will they yield to demands of those who may have lots to urge upon their attention. ### Had No Decided Opinion.

Dr. Dodson, druggist at Laurens, was in town yesterday morning. The Press and Banner asked him to allow us to quote him on the subject of the dispensary, or no dispensary. He thought it was a difficult question to answer. There were two sides to it. While those who gave the matter little thought could readily give a decided opinion have waited one way or abother, yet, if the question was seriously considered, it was more difficult to give an unequivocal judgment. He did not see how trade had been affected, one way or probability another, by the closing of the dispensary. have come He didn't know how much liquor was being drank. And he had little definite informa tion as to the work of the blind tigers.
