better road than a road machine is hard to I enjoyed the whole program the split log is the proper thing.

While the split log is building roads would it not not be well for some farmer to try the forked stick plow? They are very easy to make. Just take to the woods with an axe and find a tree that forks nicely, cut it down and then cut it off two feet below the fork. Sharpen one prong came away highly pleased. of the fork, cut the other off three feet in length, bore a hole in it and, presto! you have an up-to-date plowstock for an Assyrian or a "Baloochistan Camel man". Another machine very much worn two or three hundred years ago, the log harrow, might prove useful in building roads and for farm use as well. It is easy to make. Slay an oak two feet in diameter take of it a cut eight feet long and drive spikes into it and all over it at extremely short intervals, then drive two large spikes into the middle of each end on which to fasten the shafts, hitch it to a camel or a bull elephant and you will be surprised to see the work that the thing Auderson will do.

If the farmers would do away with their broad tired wagons and rubber tired bug. gies and use sleds for a while it would help the roads too. Let the runners of the sleds be made of good seasoned whiteoak cut about five inches wide. No matter how much load you put on it the result is only to pack the road the better and to give it a slick plastered appearance very agreeable to the eye.

Another method of transportation much the rage at one time over the old Charleston road from these parts was the hogshead wagon. It was used mainly to transpart tobacco from the Piedmont to Charleston. A hogshead was filled with tobacco, the head nailed on, a pair of shafts fitted to an axle running thru the middle of it and a draft animal hitched thereto. This method of transportation is said to have been very agreeable to delicate roads. It might be tried again.

We would not recommend the choctaw drag shaft, the vehicle of the American Indians. Not that we do not think it fully up to these other impliments, but rather because we do not care te be imita-

And why our people will use road scrapes and matches sticks is hard to understand. But some that went into the campaign book as the are beginning to use the split log and we expect soon to see all the road scrape paraphanalia relegated to the junk pile.

Poe in the Hall of Fame-

Why?

Edgar Allen Poe, our Southern Bard, has been given a place in the Hall of Fame. The fact that he has been thus honored thrilled no hearts in the South.

Because he has since his untimely death New York University has been dilatory in recognizing his unquestioned, and unimpeachable merit it is no fault of ours. The New York University has done him no honor in our eyes in placing him at this late day where we have already placed him since a life time.

The New York University has a large contract on its hands in the management of its Hall of Fame, The Hall is not well named. There are just as many heroes out of this Hall as there are in it and when the last name shall have been added to this Hall of Fame there will be more hetended for in Laurens county. roes out of it than are in it.

It were better that the Hall had another name, one more pliant or plastic, a more generic term.

had the individuals been consulted many of them would have refused to allow their names to thus be placed on exhibit, for the reason that they would prefer the whole people to judge of their life and conduct rather than that the New York University should do so.

But in or out our Edgar is famous. His imagnation towered high with any other that the States have produced. The rythm, the "adelante" the cadence, the Lessons on Corn" and "School Exercises high lights, the solemn sombre shades of in Plant Productions." These bulletins his poesy are unsurpassed,

Notable Silver Wedding.

Twenty-five happy years have sped and just now the silver wedding days have come to Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Rosenberg. The event was celebrated last week. Relatives from different parts of the State were present to enjoy the twenty-fifth anniversary. Many presents of value were added with the hearty congratulations and felicitations of the guests. The home has been filled with happy relatives and friends on this auspicuous tives the Press and Banner would add its congratulations. May many more hap yuseful years be added to these good friends of old Abbeville, and may they celebrate their golden wedding in the exposition by the congratulations. The first entertainment in the Lyceum course given by "The Scotch Singers" were of a very high order. It was refined and elevating, and if the other entertainments n this series measure up to the standard of the first, the people of Abbeville will enoy an opportunity that is usually not afforded outside of large cities.

Both for itself and for the object had in view by the Civic League, I can heartily commend this course to the public H. Waddell Pratt.

Ready to Cooperate With Abbeville.

Anderson is ready to help build a trolly to Abbeville from that city. Every man between Abbeville and Anderson is ready to do the same thing. The distance is not great. The power is near. The road bed ideal. The county thru which the road would pass is rich as Croesus.

Why not? If the Dukes won't build why not build ne ourselves and own it ourselves? No fairer city graces the map than does Anderson. To touch the Seaboard with a trolley would help her out. To touch it at Abbeville would help Abbeville out. What would it cost?

How much could each city raise? How much would the people on the line thru the county give?

Is the plan not feasible? If not why

Anderson, we believe, stands ready to consider such a proposition. It is worth considering by both cities.

Democratic Campaign Book.

rather because we do not care to be imitators of any body.

We could go on at length and suggest many things similar to the "split log drag" and the "Round Log Harrow" ect. but it is best to suggest a few things at a time. There by we have the more hopes of seeing what we have mentioned put into use.

We cannot refrain, however, from call.

The Index has received a copy of the Democratic campaign hand book, the book which is being used with telling effect against Republicans in sections where the Republicans have had things their own way for quite awhile. On page 136 of the boog appears a speech delivered in Congress March 22, 1910 by Hon. Wyatt Aiken on "Foreign Prices." Added interest attaches to this speech as it contains many quotations from letters of Zach McGhee which appeared in the State last winter. which appeared in the State last winter, these letters showing a comparison of prices for commodities here and in free-trade England.—"Index" Oct. 20,1910.

This is an exceedingly nice complement of fire. All this trouble and expense may be to Congressman Aiken. There are some cut out by simply rubbing two sticks together very hard and very fast for an heur or two, at the end of which time you will have a beautiful blaze. This has been tried by great numbers of records and the resilvant of the congressman from the South and there are only two or three tariff speeches in the campaign book and that his should be one of these should be feed value. The man who sold us this tried by great numbers of records and the railroads together cleared

But this has occurred before with Mr. Aiken. In the last Presidental election when they can use the split log drag and his was one of four speeches on the tariff Democratic message to the people.

The Laurensville Herald has the following to say anent the election of school trustees. The Herald's head is level and Laurens will soon come to see that the sooner the matter of electing trustees is turned over to the people the sooner ten thousand quibbles and quarrels and petty rackets will be squelched and the sooner will the grasshopper cease to be a burden been enconsed securely in the Hall of to the County Superintendent. #### Clemson Extension Work-Article XXIII.

In an address upon the occasion of the meeting of the Farmers' Congress held at Clemson College during the first two days of September of this year the Hon. E. J. Watson gave some figures on corn that are well worth the study of the farmers of the south.

The average yield of corn per acre has increased in Scuth Carolina from 7 bushels in 1900 to 16.7 bushels in 1909, as against 37 bushels in 1900 and 35.9 bushels in 1909 in Illinois. In farm value per acre South Carolina corn has increased from 4.48 to 15.03 in a like period as against 11.84 and 18.67 for a like period in Illinois. In farm value per bushel the Carolina has increased from 64 cents in 1900 to 91 cents in 1909 as against 32 and 52 cents in Illinois. If the Illinois farmer can raise corn and grow rich at these values how much better opportunity have the farmers of the south to do even better.

In addition to the corn we raised 39 cents a bushel or nearly three and a half million dollars. We can produc corn as cheap or cheaper per bushel than this same corn cost to produce; so ville County, in said State, made in we not only paid out this profit, but the above stated case, I will offer for lost the additional profit from the growing. Then too had this corn been H., S. C., on Salesday in November, grown here all of that six million dol- A. permanent asset. That these facts are being realized by the farmers of the South is evidenced by the steady increased average planted to corn and the increased yield per acre. We are learning that it not lon Bell on the north, John H. Bell on only pays to plant more corn, but also the east, Berry Allen on the south to give that crop better cultivation and and the Augusta road on the west. attention than we have heretofore done. We are also beginning to realize that while cultivation and fertilization are important factors in determining our yield, yet the factor of blood and in-heritance also play no small part. With this knowledge has come a closer attention to the detail of corn raising and breeding. But while in the South a number of men have been giving these points, thought and work, yet to a large extent each has worked along independent lines. Each man has tried to hew an independent road to success for himself, forgetting that much more rapid progress could be made if he join ed with his neighbors and all pulled together. The worst fault that the average farmer has is this very thing of going it alone. He breaks his land with a single horse, does all of his culthat he himself has never learned to work in double harness. As it will pay him in breaking his land to combine with his neighbor and plow double, so it will pay to combine with some neighbor in this effort to increase his corn production. It was with the idea of affording an opportunity of this doubling-up process that the South County.
