WHY PRUNING PAYS

Summary of the Principal Objects of Using Knife on Trees.

Clemson College, Feb. 25.— Tree bruning is work that must be done before spring arrives with its lifereviving effect on trees, as after that the wood will be no longer dormant and severe pruning may result in serious injury. Therefore, farmers in this state who have not attended to their pruning are advised to get busy with it now. An expert of the United States Department of Agriculture summarizes the principal objects of orchard pruning as follows:

1. To modify the vigor of the tree
2. To keep the tree shapely and within bounds.

3. To make the tree more stocky. 4. To open the tree top so as to admit air and sunshine.

5. To reduce the struggle for existence in the tree top. 6. To remove dead or interferring

7. To aid in stimulating the development of fruit buds. To thin the fruit. To make thorough spraying possible. 10. To facilitate the harvesting J. G. Majors _____Greenwood of the fruit.

The Horticultural Division of Clemson College will answer any questions about pruning that South Carolina farmers wish to ask.
