

Vacation Trips by Auto.

With the season of the year approaching when people begin to plan for their summer vacation trips, the old question of how and where to go is uppermost in the minds of thousands of motorists.

"The motor car because of its ability to 'get there' makes almost any kind of a vacation trip possible," declares John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland Company.

"A small, light car like the Overland Model 75 is the type of machine preferred by many people who plan to spend their vacations in the mountains. These smaller cars can travel over rough, hilly roads and get to and from places much easier than the big heavy machines.

"On hard macadam or asphalt pavement the big car is right at home, but out in the country along the highways and byways where tourists most enjoy themselves, the small light car has proved itself the most practical for general use.

"From one to five people can take a vacation trip in an Overland Model 75 and enjoy every minute of the time. Their vacation starts from the time the car leaves the house until it returns. In addition to being out in the open air and taking in points of interest, the tourist finds traveling in a small light car inexpensive.

"I'll venture to say that the majority of Overland owners who have spent their vacations touring about the country, have had more real enjoyment at less expense than would be possible had they undertaken any other kind of an outing."

"For He's a Jolly Good Fellow!"

Buffalo News. We refer to the ordinary, common or garden specimen tagged with the label "average man."

It may be argued by precise persons that the average man does not exist—that if you search for a concrete example of many you will not find them, seeing that each individual develops traits which either bring him over, or under, the average.

But it is equally true that the average man is true to type. He becomes representative of the nation. This country is populated by average persons who live in the average way. They eat and drink, work and play in the average manner.

The average man is the strength of his community. He is the contented man, the happy man. He does not crave for notoriety, he is fairly well satisfied with the conditions that govern his life.

His ambition is tempered with caution. He steers a middle course between the Charybdis or baffled aspirations and the Scylla of despair. No will-o'-the-wisp lures him; he keeps on in the even tenor of his way.

Altogether the average man is a commendable institution. We like him. He is somewhere between five feet eight and six feet, with his feet on the ground! He does not live on his roof all the time; he can come down to the kiddie, and play and laugh. And as a rule he can hold his own intelligently with the professional arguer.

Everything is made to suit the average man—from clothing to automobiles. He is the recognized it! And he is going to get more out of life as he goes along, for "He's a jolly good fellow which nobody can deny!"

AN ORDINANCE.

An Ordinance to preserve the health and welfare of the citizens of the City of Abbeville by requiring all dealers in any article of food to keep the same protected and screened from dust, flies and insects.

Be it Ordained by the City Council of the City of Abbeville and by authority of the same:

1st. That after the passage of this ordinance it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to sell or offer for sale any meat, fruit, bread or any article of food or drink unless the same has been continuously protected from dust, flies, or insects or dirt of any kind from the time that it came into the person's control until the sale is made.

2nd. All meat and fruit dealers shall keep their fruits or meats within the doors of their places of business while it is being offered for sale, except during such time as is necessary in conveying it from the slaughter houses or places of purchase, or railway station, to their places of business, and while any meat is being hauled in wagons or other conveyances to the meat markets or offered for sale from any conveyance or wagon it shall be carefully covered with a clean cloth and completely protected from dust, insects and any and all filth of any kind whatsoever.

3rd. Any person who handles any other articles of food such as bread, fruits, ice cream, ice cream cones, candy, etc., shall keep the same screened so as to prevent insects, especially flies, from coming in contact with the same and it shall be unlawful for any person to offer for sale or sell any such article when such a person has knowledge or under the circumstances should have knowledge that it has been exposed to flies, insects or dust.

Any person or persons or corporation, violating any of the sections of this ordinance shall be punished upon conviction thereof by imprisonment for not less than 1 day nor more than thirty days; or by being required to pay a fine of not less than one dollar nor more than one hundred dollars.
