WILL OF J. D. ALEWINE STANDS.

The Probate Court was engaged yesterday in hearing witnesses in the matter of the petition of the executors to prove the will of the late John D. Alewine, of Antreville; in due form of law. The will was proved in common form sometime ago, but certain of the devisees and other parties interested in the estate as heirs at law served notice that they required that the will be proved in due form of law. A petition was accordingly filed with the probate court, and the hearing set for yesterday.

The executors appeared yesterday and examined the witnesses to the will: Dr. J. A. Anderson and Mess. E. A. Patterson and W. L. Mitchell. They testified that the will was drawn at the home of Mr. Alewine, and that he and Mr. Mitchell who drew the will then drove to the store where Mr. Alewine signed it, and where it was duly witnessed by the three at his request. It appeared that Mr. Alewine was a capable business man, that he attended to all business matters as a man of good business sense, and that the will was the result of his own desires in the matter.

When this testimony was taken the contestants stated that they would not make any further contest but would consent that a decree be taken establishing the will.

Hon. Wm. N. Graydon of Columbia, was attorney for the contestants and Wm. P. Greene, Esq., of Abbeville, for the executors.
