MOONSHINERS TURN TO THE STRAWBERRY AND GROW WEALTHY

The Blue Ridge Mountains of Tennessee, once noted as the source of a large part of the nation's supply of Bourbon whiskey, are today famous mostly for strawberries and tobacco, and the corn growers of olden days have become wealthy in the meanwhile.

This was the condition found in the mountains around Portland, a prosperous town about twenty miles north of Nashville, by William and George McNeill, of Seattle, when they returned last Christmas to their old home for the first time in fifteen years. They are today back in Seattle, where they for years have been in the employ of the Stimson Mill Company.

"When I left my old home in Tennessee more than twenty years ago," said George McNeill, who is at the New Arctic Hotel, "moonshine whiskey was one of the chief products of that country. Good moonshine could be bought for $2 a gallon. The natives were poor and wretched, as the corn crops didn't pay much and tobacco was cheap.

"When I returned last year I was surprised at the great change. The mountains are the finest strawberry fields in the world, and the farmers are all getting rich raising berries for New York. Some tobacco raised in our district sold as high as $1.01 a pound. There still was moonshine there, too, though the price of illicit whiskey had jumped from $2 a gallon to $16 a quart. But the people are no longer openly making whiskey.

"Gone are the days when the Tennessee mountaineer would defend his still and mash kettles with his trusty rifle and his life. Gone are the days of pitched battles with the 'revenoers.' When raids are made now the moonshiners are peaceable and look on placidly when their stocks are destroyed. Their jail sentences and fines are no harder than in the olden days, but the fascination of the moonshine game has passed.

"In some districts unscrupulous men have stepped into the shoes of the old-time moonshiners who were sort of looked on as legitimate whiskey makers. These new men have been known to put concentrated lye into their mash to make it ferment quickly and many people have been made sick from drinking it. There have also been isolated cases where wood alcohol has been used in moonshine; but the natives are taking no chances with it unless they know where it comes from."—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

BEGIN HOT WATER DRINKING IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous waste, gases and sour bile before putting more food into the stomach.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate which is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast. They are assured they will become real cranks on the subject shortly.
