

Occupation is Mere Military March

Frankfort, April 6.—Frankfort was occupied without incident by French troops early today and with the cavalry in the lead, followed by the infantry, and the artillery, the occupying forces pressed rapidly beyond the city. They met with no opposition. By ten o'clock in the morning the cavalry had reached Eckenheim (three miles north of Frankfort). The entire operation was expected to be completed during the day. The occupation takes form in an extension of the French lines around the bridgehead of Mayence, a distance of about 18 miles. The extreme limits of the advance form a semi-circle similar to but larger than that of the original zone of occupation. The only German troops encountered in Frankfort by the French were Schieberischer, or volunteers, who surrendered. They probably will be simply disarmed and released. What Will the Allies Do? Paris, April 6.—French soldiers today occupy the German cities of Frankfort-On-Main and Darmstadt, 16 miles south. Forces commanded by General DeGoutte, which have been holding the Mayence bridgehead, were ordered forward by Marshal Foch following the efforts on the part of the French government yesterday to induce the Berlin government to withdraw its forces from the neutral zone along the eastern bank of the Rhine where they had been ordered to disperse communist units that for the past fortnight have been conducting a revolt in the Ruhr valley. Chief interest in the situation as evidenced by newspapers is whether the allies will support France and to what extent. This query was put to Premier Millerand by the Echo de Paris last night, the premier answering: "England was victorious and so was France. I am confident that everything will work out perfectly." Asked who would pay the expense incident to occupation, M. Millerand replied: "Why, Germany, obviously, since it was she that by her acts obliged us to resort to coercion."

German Forces Leave

Mayence, April 6.—French troops entered Frankfort at 5 o'clock this morning, finding only a small German force left there to afford police protection for the people. The occupation of the city was a mere military march and was not attended by any fighting. Darmstadt was entered shortly afterward by French forces. The German government garrison of that city had left at midnight to avoid contact with the French and this morning was six miles east of the city. General DeGoutte has issued a proclamation to cities and towns within the area to be occupied stating that the French troops have crossed the Rhine to compel the Berlin government to respect its agreement with the allies and asserting there is no hostile intent toward the people of the region. The proclamation says the French troops will withdraw as soon as German government forces have evacuated the neutral zone and declares no one will be affected by the presence of the French as long as order is maintained. The proclamation makes the following provisions for the public order: Frankfort, Darmstadt, Offenbach, Hochstadt, Koenigstein and Bieburg, as well as all towns and districts within the circle of Gross Gerau, Langschwabach and Wiesbaden, with the exception of Bieberich, are declared under a state of siege. German authorities and public service will continue to function under French military officials and strikes will not be tolerated. People are temporarily forbidden to circulate in the various communities from nine o'clock at night until five in the morning. More than five persons must not collect in streets or in private or public buildings at meetings without authorization. Newspapers are temporarily suspended and permission must be given to use the telephone and telegraph. Postal censorship is temporarily established, wireless installations must be dismantled and the use of carrier pigeons is forbidden. Any infraction of these rules will result in court martial. Premier Millerand today formally notified Dr. Von Mayer, the German charge d'affaires, of the action of the French government in ordering the advance and informed him that as soon as there had been complete evacuation of the neutral zone by the German troops the French would evacuate the cities they had been ordered to occupy. The premier's note read: "By my letter of April 2, I asked you to make insistent representations to your government to obtain withdrawal of the German troops which unduly penetrated the neutral zone fixed by article 32 of the treaty of Versailles. My request having obtained no result up to this time, I have the honor of informing you that the general commander in chief of the army of the Rhine has received orders to occupy immediately the cities of Frankfort, Homburg, Darmstadt and Dieburg. This occupation will end as soon as the German troops shall have completely evacuated the neutral zone."

The provision of the measure for universal training is expected to be reached before the end of the week after the bill is taken up section by section.

WHAT NOT TO DO IN LONDON

Many of the Names May be Misleading to the Stranger Arthur Powell in the Independent (New York). When you go to London do not make the mistake of seeking Temple Bar for liquid refreshment. Do not go to a "coffee-house for coffee" —learn to do without it; and do not try to put up for the night, as one young American actually did, at Furnival's Inn; it might be advisable to take out life insurance at that place. Nor will the Inns of Court furnish you with hotel accommodation. St. Clement Danes is not a dog show, but a church, and the Isle of Dogs is really a congregation of docks. Do not expect to find the Limehouse as it is pictured in "Limehouse Nights," you may walk far there without seeing a Twinkletoes. And, by the way, the Hop Exchange is not an opium den. Bond street deals, not in bonds, but in clothes, while Threadneedle street deals, not in clothes, but in bonds. It should also be noted that ladies do not go to Petticoat lane for their petticoats. Do not ask where the "depot" is; and if you want to reach Shakespeare's birthplace, do not ask for a ticket to Stratford. A sailor we know tried this; he landed in the London suburb of that name, a wilderness of bricks and mortar. He saw nothing of the birthplace, the Avon, or the bard, and the inhabitants themselves seemed strangely ignorant of these things. Remember—if you can—that as you walk east from Buckingham palace, the Mall becomes Spring Gardens, Spring Gardens become the Strand, the Strand fades into Fleet street, Fleet street is lost in Ludgate hill, Ludgate hill runs on as Cannon street, Cannon changes to East Cheap, East Cheap takes the alias of Great Tower street, and Great Tower street plumps you straight into the moat of Tower of London—and all without turning a single corner.

BURGLAR 14 DRAWS FIVE MONTHS AFTER RAMPAGE

(Special to The Index-Journal.) Durham, April 3.—After ransacking several offices in the county court house here and confiscating several articles including a collection of returned marriage licenses, Albert Bloomsack, alias John Connors, a youth of about 14 years of age was sentenced to serve five months in the county work house by Judge W. H. Young in the juvenile court. The boy stated to the court that his home was in Brooklyn, N. Y. Instead of showing penitence he was rather boastful of his ability as a burglar or petty thief.

When discovered by F. B. Copley, custodian of the courthouse, he was in the act of forging the name of M. G. Markham, register of deeds to a check for $28. He informed the officers that he had passed through several cities in which he had made similar raids, some of them netting him amounts large enough to support him comfortably. He smiled when carried from the court room to be sent to the workhouse.

Kaiser Laid Aside His Saw on Arrival Of Only Daughter

Amerongen, April 3.—The presence at Amerongen of his daughter and son-in-law has brought a change in the former German emperor's way of living. Since the arrival of the Duchess of Brunswick, Wilhelm has not sawed a single tree. Both he and the former Empress have grown much calmer and are certainly enjoying the visit of their only daughter. The relations between the parents and daughter are very intimate, as they always were in the old days, and the three are often seen strolling together in the garden.

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 5.—A race against death was won today by L. P. McAuliffe, of Knoxville, who was carried to the bedside of his dying mother at Augusta, Ga., in an airplane piloted by "Billy" Brock. The 200 miles were covered in three hours and fifteen minutes.

Mr. McAuliffe arrived here Friday night on his way to Augusta, but could not proceed because of a wash-out on the Central of Georgia railroad. This morning he resorted to the airplane landing in Augusta to find his mother still alive.

CAPT. 'KIT' DALTON OF JESSE JAMES FAME IS DEAD

Memphis, Tenn., Apr. 3.—Captain "Kit" Dalton, said to have been the last surviving member of Quantrell's band of guerrillas of civil war fame, and credited with having been a close associate of Frank and Jesse James, died at his home here today. He was 77 years old.

Dalton recently wrote a book telling intimately of the exploits of the James and other adventurous bands which operated in the south and southeast after the war between the states. For several years, it is related, a price of $50,000 was set upon his head by the governors of five states but he never was captured. Instead, he with Frank James is said to have surrendered and stood trial for the robbery of a train near Franklin Ky. under a tacit understanding that charges pending in other states would stand or fall on the result of that trial. He was acquitted. The other charges were dropped and he later removed to Memphis, where he has lived for more than 30 years.

During the early years of the war Dalton was a member of Forest's cavalry but later joined Quantrell. While with General Forest's command, he won the rank of captain. Captain Dalton was a native of Logan county, Kentucky.

Paper currency in circulation when the war commenced represented seven and one-quarter billion dollars. In November, 1919, it had increased to fifty-one billion dollars.
