HISTORICAL PAINTINGS.

The National Bank received Wednesday morning a group of five historical paintings which will be placed in the bank at sometime in the near future.

Mr. Kurtz is a Northerner and an artist of note. Early in his career he became interested in the history of the South and especially in the period of the Confederate War.

The first of the group at the National Bank shows the first Secession meeting which was held in 1860 on the hill back of Mr. Richard Sondley's home on Magazine street.

The second of the paintings is a Square scene in Abbeville. In the background is a group of buildings among which are the old National Bank and the former home of P. B. Speed.

The next picture is a portrait of General Andrew Pickens. He is mounted on a white horse and is stationed, gun in hand, before the old Block House which is said to have been a stronghold against the Indians during the Revolutionary War.

Another of the five shows John C. Calhoun standing near a stage-coach before leaving for his home. Calhoun is in an impressive attitude with hand on hip and with a long cape draped over his shoulders.

The last painting, somewhat larger than the others, represents the last meeting of the Confederate Cabinet which was held in the Burt house, now occupied by J. S. Stark.

These pictures are well worth seeing and the National Bank is to be congratulated on having Abbeville's history recorded in such an interesting way.

THE A. R. P.'S AT WORK.

(Spartanburg Journal.) "Bon Clarken," at Flat Rock, as already noted in The Journal, has been made the Assembly Grounds of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church, and the first of the conferences to be held there—the Young People's Christian Union and Sabbath School Conference—began yesterday and will continue through the week ending August 12, next Saturday. The Director of this Conference is the Rev. J. W. Carson, and its object as set forth in the official announcement is "instruction, inspiration, training."

A Faculty of seven distinguished teachers under the direction of Professor J. I. McCain, Ph. D., of Erskine College, will take care of the teaching part of the Conference; eleven of the most eminent "inspirational speakers" will address the Conference from day to day; the courses will cover Bible study, Mission study, training for Sabbath School Workers, and training for Y. P. C. U. Workers.

The second of the Conferences at Bon Clarken will begin tomorrow week—Sabbath, August 13, and will continue until and during August 20. It will be called the Bible Conference and in it many able men will take part, among the teachers being the Rev. Thornton Whaling, D. D., LL. D., recently of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Columbia.

There have been many changes in the lifetime of the Rev. Dr. Francis Young Pressly, President of the Theological Seminary at Due West, in the methods and services of the Associate Reformed Presbyterians.

Dr. Pressly will also recollect that when he was growing up most of the Seceder preachers wrote their sermons so that they knew what they were going to say and how best to say it when the time came.

dredth Psalm" (or whatever the Psalm was numbered) and not as it is now becoming the custom, "Sing 199." Then, the ministers were the leading citizens of their communities; now they seem to have lost caste, as it were.

Last Sabbath at Bon Clarken, the Rev. W. A. McAulay, of Greenville, preached two excellent sermons in the assembly room at the Hotel, in the morning at the usual hour and in the evening at "vespers." In Dr. Pressly's young days he would have said "at early candlelight."

QUICK SERVICE TO STORM SUFFERERS

Extension Forces Give Prompt Aid To the Stricken Piedmont Farmers.

Clemson College, Aug. 8.—Immediately upon receipt of news of the destruction of crops by the big hail storm that swept over parts of Anderson, Greenville, Greenwood, and Laurens counties last week, the Extension Service took steps on Saturday to send specialists into the stricken area, to prepare suggestions regarding substitute crops that might be used, and to urge upon South Carolina's Senators and Congressmen in Washington such quick relief from that source as could be secured.

Following the conference here on Saturday morning to go over the situation, a meeting of 150 farmers was held in the Honea Path district at which D. W. Watkins, Assistant Director of the Extension Service, and G. P. Hoffman, Extension Horticulturist, were present to advise regarding best use of the land for the rest of the year where crops are hopelessly injured.

Emergency Crop Suggestions. While it is too late to count on growing money crops for this season, it is possible to grow forage crops before the average frost time, and the following suggestions are made.

Forage crops which may be grown to advantage include German millet, Sudan grass, Abruzzi rye, rutabaga turnips, and Essex rape.

A fall garden should, by all means, be started on every farm. During August plant beans, carrots, kale, lettuce, and spinach. During September plant beets, kale mustard, onions seed and onion sets, rape, lettuce, and turnips.

For further information and assistance on this matter, farmers are urged to see their county agents.

TWO MILLION POUNDS

South Carolina Tobacco Marketed In Charleston.

Charleston, Aug. 8.—Nearly two million pounds of tobacco were handled by forty receiving points of the Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association in the South Carolina tobacco belt today, these cooperative markets report satisfactory conditions for their opening day.

According to reports, it was an orderly opening at each of the points, in contrast to opening days under the other system. Posted in each of the warehouses were the advance cash payments to be made on various grades of tobacco, and as tobacco passed by weighers, in-dows growers were given checks, and participation receipts based on the weight and the grade.

Uniformity of grades and of prices is said to have made a notable effect on growers who are quoted as expressing entire satisfaction with their first taste of cooperative marketing of the product.

GARDEN LESSON FOR AUGUST.

1. Q. Tell how celery should be transplanted?

A. Several hours before transplanting soak the plant bed thoroughly with water. Then when the plants are dug up, a ball of earth will stick to the roots and very few plants will be lost.

2. Q. Give some facts about kale and how planted.

A. Kale is a salad plant. It does not form heads and the leaves are used the same way as turnip leaves. Planted at this time kale will furnish an abundance of salad through fall in rows 2 1-2 feet apart, 1 ounce of seed to 100 feet of drill and one half inch deep.

3. Q. Give best varieties and planting directions for other fall crops?

A. Endive; best variety is the green curled. Sow in well prepared seed bed, 1-2 ounce to 100 feet of drill and 1-2 inch deep. In September transplant to garden. Endive is an excellent salad plant and is used in much the same ways as lettuce.

Fall Turnips—Best varieties, Norfolk Globe and White Globe. Sow either broadcast or in drills 30 inches apart, 1-2 ounce to 100 feet of drill, 1-2 inch deep. The tops make excellent salad and the roots are fine for table use, while the surplus roots can be profitably fed to stock.

Radishes—Variety: Black Spanish. Sow thickly in drills 30 inches apart. Supply plenty of water so that they will grow fast if best results are desired.

Lettuce—Variety: Hanson. Sow in seed bed or in rows 18-30 inches apart, and thin 10 to 12 apart in the row. Sown at this time the heads will mature during December, either in the open ground or the plants may be transplanted when small to the cold frame and matured there.

4. Q. Why should we eat salad greens the whole year round?

A. Because salad greens contain certain salts essential to best body development and health.

5. Q. Give several reasons why a fall garden should be planted?

A. (1) Vegetables are very scarce in the South at this season;

(2) It is extremely hard to get good fresh vegetables from the stores;

(3) It is cheaper to raise your own vegetables than to pay others for growing them for you;

(4) You can get them out of your garden just when you want

General Suggestions for August—If sufficient vegetables have not been canned or dried for fall and winter use, by all means plant as many fall vegetables as possible.

THE STRIKE DELAYS WORK ON HIGHWAY

Embargo On Cement Prevents Construction Hard Surface Road Greenwood to Abbeville.

The railroad strike is causing delay in the construction of the Greenwood-Abbeville highway of account of the embargo on cement. Engineer B. R. Cowherd states this morning. Cement is obtained from Pennsylvania and at present there is an embargo on all shipments. How long this will delay the construction of the hard surface end of the Greenwood-Abbeville road depends on the settlement of the strike, Mr. Cowherd says.
