PROSPECTUS OF THE Southern Review.

TO be published at Washington, quarterly, in an 8vo. No. of 275 to 300 pages; price 50 cents per annum, payable in advance. The place is chosen, not only for its facilities of information, literary and political, but as that which the Southern States can be united upon the distributing, with the greatest ease, and with the completest exemption from all state or party jealousies.

Occasionally, Historical Notices will also be employed in this part of the plan, with a view of favouring in a certain degree, the more curious studies, or revivings the knowledge of important facts, forgotten in the rush of modern learning.

Writers will be led, for regular purposes, to give their papers, wherever the subject will permit, the form of a Series, in order not only to afford a complete body for popular circulation, but also, to secure the more permanent and valuable character of the Review.

In communications, the most compressed mode of writing will be every where required. Purposes in which the words do not bear in fact proportion to the information conveyed or the effect produced will be either rejected, without scruple, or abridged, without mercy.

To warrant this execution, the usual rate of compensation to writers will be advanced to $24 per printed page a piece that will offer far remuneration to the talents and labour which we wish to secure.

The object of the publication is to disseminate a thorough knowledge of the cultivation of the Southern States in all its varieties—the rearing of Silk Worms—the production of Cottons, and the raising of Silk, in the most approved method.
