Cotton Bales in Georgia.
We are pleased that the attempt made by Congress to close the branch mines, are... The express of construction, are... made, and now it requires but a small expenditure to keep these mines in operation. If they were to be closed, the... incurred would be a death blow to the country while the cost of keeping them open is trifling in comparison to the benefits the people generally derive from their operations. We publish in our paper an article from the Athens Banner in relation to the Dahlonega branch mine. Since we have received additional information, which we communicate to our readers. It will be seen that the operations of that mine are increasing in importance, by the recent discovery of more productive veins of gold.

We are informed that a rich mine has been discovered on the "Old Oar Mine," which had been worked and deserted. It is the property of Mr. John C. Calhoun, who, when he was written to and urged to repair to the spot and attend to his property, replied that he would not, and could not leave the affairs of the country, which were of more importance to him than gold. Mr. Sisin, has been working the mine with 15 to 18 hands; and in eighteen days up to the 22nd May, the mine has produced 326 ounces of gold. On Monday following, 630 dwts. were gathered; on Tuesday 590; on Wednesday 1118; on Thursday, 1893; and on Friday, only 1000 were gathered, as some of the hands were occupied in repairing the tunnel, &c. The mine is represented as very rich; and it is believed that the richest part of the mine has not as yet been discovered.

To show the importance of this branch mine, we have been furnished with the following statement of its operations:
The coinage in 1841 to June, amounted to $44,000
1842, same time, 86,000
The Depos. in 1841, to June last, 40,000
in 1842, same time, 78,000

To the Different Temperance Societies in South Carolina.
The State Temperance Society, at its last Annual Meeting determined on holding a meeting in Greenville, in the ensuing Summer. The time is now fixed for the 2d Monday in August. Each Society will be expected to send Delegates; the number is of course very much in their discretion; but I would suggest, that generally about ten delegates be appointed by each society.

We have reached an important point in the Temperance reformation; the whole of the State are aroused on the subject. If we can act in harmony and perfect concert, the good which may be done is incalculable! The object of the Greenville Convention is to attain that desirable end. Let us then, beloved friends, for the rescue of our companions, friends, acquaintances, and even "the stranger within our gates," come to the resolution to sacrifice a few days; and meet our brethren of South Carolina and North Carolina, in the sight of our own majestic mountains. There by interchanging thoughts, and becoming known to one another, we shall be able to form that army of Temperate freemen, who will be as unbroke and as invincible as the Macedonian Phalanx. Let each Society, (Washington, Total Abstinence, or partial Abstinence,) send up delegates. We are all acting for the good of our fellow men, and by taking sweet counsel together, we shall not diminish our chance of success.

Who would not rejoice to know, that there now was not, and never hereafter would be another drunkard in this State! Such a state of things would be the golden age, so beautifully but fabulously depicted in ancient poetry. It may never be exactly attained. But we can approach it, if we try. The Republic of an ancient philosopher was a creature of his fancy. Our gallant and heroic fathers surpassed the Philosopher's dream, in the noble republican institutions of liberty and freedom, which they nobly won, and secured for themselves and their posterity. A similar spirit of patient endurance, of unflinching purpose of pure disinterested motive, and of harmonious action, to that which they exhibited in the revolution, will now conduct us to the achievement of as great a conquest, and bring about as great a deliverance, as that which seven years' toil and blood accomplished for them. They thereby became freemen. We hope to continue free, and to be sober.

For such consumation let there be but one spirit among us, and let that be to excel each other in advancing the cause of Temperance. Let us have but one mind, and act upon such as will do most good. These results can only be accomplished by the Temperance Convention at Greenville. To it let us constantly look, and in it, let every Society be represented. It is respectfully asked of the President of each Temperance Society, to read this circular to the Society over which he presides, at its first meeting after the receipt of it, and ask their consideration of it.
JOHN B. O'NEAL,
Pres't of the State Temp. Society.

Triumph of Southern Mechanics.—We have learned with great pleasure, that the Charleston & Columbia Rail Road Company, after trying the best Steam Engines, that could be obtained from abroad, have discovered that they can have better Engines manufactured in South Carolina, and by native Mechanics, than they can obtain any where else. The Company has its Engines now manufactured in Charleston, and the best workmen is a native of Charleston. This speaks well for Carolina's enterprise and industry.

And while on this subject, we would advert to another and kindred branch of industry, in the upper part of this State. We have seen at Messrs. Polock & Solomon's Store, in Columbia, a very large assortment of Nails, Iron, &c. from the Newburg Iron Works in Spartanburg District. We understand that the Mechanics who have made these nails and iron, say they are of the very best quality, and that no better can be obtained. And as we are well acquainted with the high reputation of the Newburg Iron Works, we are well satisfied that the Government has been benefited with the Company's manufacture Cannon Balls for the use of the Army and Navy.

Now, these sources of wealth, and for the application of industry in our State, are of but recent development. And it may be, that the very pressure of "hard times," of which so many complain, will cause our fellow citizens to search after the many yet unexplored mines of wealth that exist in our State. For years past, when either extravagance or bad management, or misfortune caused pecuniary embarrassment, it has been the custom of our citizens to fly to the rich prairies of the West to repair their crippled fortunes, and many too, despairing of success at home, or impatient of the slow accumulations of industry, rushed hastily into Western speculations, with a hope of carving out speedy fortunes. But it has been found, that pecuniary embarrassments and hard times press close upon the heels of extravagance and idleness in the fresh West, as well as in the South, exhausted as it has been thought to be.

Much of the spirit of enterprise and industry now beginning to be manifest in South Carolina, are owing to these severe, but salutary lessons, which we would learn only in the school of experience.—But we believe that as yet, not one tenth part of the resources of our State have been developed. Each year will open new channels of wealth, whenever the love of home shall become sufficiently strong to induce us to try every fair expedient for accumulating property, before we can consent to burn the ties which should bind us to our own, our native State, and to the friends of our youth, merely for money.

Another Fatal Steamboat Accident.—The West Wind, Captain Phillips, arrived at Louisville on Monday evening last, having made a remarkably short trip. On reaching the head of the canal, she made a short stop, and when just ready to start again, one of her flues collapsed with a tremendous report. Several of the deck passengers were injured.

The Louisville Journal says:
We went on board about half an hour after the explosion and saw five persons, three men and two women, lying in the most dreadful agonies. The women were Mrs. Dabhart and sister, from St. Louis for Pittsburg; Mr. Garwood (an old man) from St. Louis for Cincinnati; a Mr. Vidouck, from St. Louis for Pittsburg; and a Mr. Samuel Ross, from St. Louis for Cincinnati. One of the physicians informed us that all these, except the last named, were thought to be mortally injured.—The third cook was badly hurt by a flying brick. It is feared that some were drowned, as many were seen to jump overboard, and several hats, for which no owners appeared, were found on the deck and in the canal. Dr. Valentine Barger, of Newcastle, Ohio, was missing, and there was little doubt of his having been drowned. A lad informed us that he saw two men drown, but he did not know who they were. A Mrs. Hait, of Marietta, leaped overboard and swam unaided to the shore. The Louisville Advertiser, of the 1st inst., says that Mrs. Hait, who jumped overboard and swam ashore, had never before attempted to swim. The Advertiser says:
—The deck passengers were directly in the range of the exploded boiler, and but few of them escaped uninjured. The wild and fearful scream of the wounded—the cry of the mortal agony that arose, will never be forgotten by those who came to the aid of the sufferers. The number of lives lost has not been ascertained to a certainty, as several jumped overboard whose names are not known. As three or four hats have been found on the boat, and in the water, it is feared that their owners have perished. Yesterday, the canal was dragged, repeatedly, to find their bodies.—Thus far, but one is ascertained to have lost his life by this melancholy occurrence."

A friend has called on us to state a most distressing circumstance in the family of Mr. John Dixon. Mr. D. is residing, at present, near Robin Hood Tavern, on the Ridge Road. One day last week, a little son of his, about ten or eleven years of age, was walking towards home, when a small dog, a cur, sprang out upon him, and bit his arm. The lad shook the dog off, and the animal flew up, and bit the child's cheek. By this time, some of the neighbors came to the boy's rescue, and led him home to his parents. Mr. Dixon thought the dog ought to be killed, and on going in search of it, he ascertained that the work had been already done.

A few days afterwards, the child, out with a gentleman in a boat, complained that he was sick. He was taken home to his mother, and some medicine was administered. He declined taking water, and subsequently had a spasm. A physician was called in who heard the circumstances of the boy's injury stated, and noticed his condition and then remarked that though he had no acquaintance with the symptoms of hydrophobia, yet he feared that the child was laboring under that disorder.—Spasm followed spasm, each either more severe or less resisted than the other. Between them, the child was sensible, not only of his disease, but of the rapid approach of death; and after suffering from Saturday noon almost unaided of agony, he was, on Sunday morning released by death.—Phil. U. S. Gazette.

Sad and Affecting Spectacle.—Which read a sorry lesson to the young, and a fearful warning to the profligate, was lately presented in the Philadelphia Sessions, upon the trial for burglary of four lads belonging to the city of Baltimore—their names Bisou, Barron, Ryland and Shaw. Two of the youths are respectively connected. From the facts so far developed on the trial, it appears that Bisou, an unprincipled, hardened, reckless, daring and desperate villain, had allured the other three into the commission of crime—and after their arrest for the offence of which they now stand indicted, turned States' evidence against them. The mothers of each of the four young men have visited them since their incarceration, coming all the way from Baltimore—and a few days ago one might be seen in the court room with the prisoners with a child in her arms.—Another, an aged widow who has succeeded in securing David Paul Brown, Esq. as counsel for her son, has been constantly in attendance during the trial, sitting in the back ground, bathed in tears, and almost brokenhearted, anxiously awaiting the fate of her erring boy. It was a moving sight to see the widowed, gray haired mother of the young culprit tottering into the witness box, to testify to the good character of her only child, and the sole support of her declining years. Her feeble frame, racked mind, and bursting heart, sinking from fear for the fate of her child, who sat within a few feet of her, buried in tears at the shame and degradation he had brought on his parent—was enough to melt a heart of stone. The judge, the jury, and the crowded audience who filled the courtroom were affected to tears at this sorrowful spectacle. Even the officers of the court, "albeit unused to the melting mood," were moved at this.—N. Y. Sun.

COTTON BAGGING.
We have inspected a sample of bagging manufactured of cotton at the Richmond Factory in this county; it has been deposited at the store of Messrs. Hadley & Owens, Broad-street, where it can be seen.—This bagging is strong and well calculated for square bales, in which a large portion of the coming crop will be packed in bagging made of cotton. We have been informed by the President of the Factory, that the establishment is now engaged in manufacturing a sufficient quantity of the material to supply the demand.

The article manufactured is 35 inches wide, and will weigh from 1/2 to a pound per yard, and can be sold at 15 cents per pound.—The following statement will clearly show the difference in using the hempen bagging and bagging made of Cotton, which is to the advantage of the latter kind.
The size of a square bale is, 5 ft. 4 in. long, 2 ft. 10 in. high, 18 in wide.
As bales of these dimensions require 5 1/2 yards Inverness bagging 42 inches wide, at 20 cents per yard, $1 10
Supposed weight to the yard 1 1/2 lbs. at 7 cents, 58

Loss to the Planter on Inverness bagging, 52
The same bale requires 7 1/2 yards of Richmond Factory bagging, 35 inches wide, at 15 cents per yard, 1 09
Weighing 1 lb. to the yard is 7 1/2 lbs. at 7 cents, 51

Loss to the Planter on the Factory bagging, 58
The loss to the planter is six cents more on each bale, by using Factory bagging instead of Inverness; but this hempen bagging weighing 1 1/2 lbs. to the yard, will hardly be obtained at 20 cents per yard, and therefore it is believed that the loss will be about the same on both kinds of bagging. The question then to be decided by the planter is, whether it be his interest to consume the raw material made by himself, and at the same time encourage his own domestic manufacturers, and decrease the quantity of the raw material to be exported, without decreasing the quantity produced. It will require 18,000 bales of cotton, of the common weight, to make bagging enough for the crop of Georgia, in order to prepare it for exportation. It is then very clear, that the abstraction of 18,000 bales of cotton from the crop of Georgia, must have some influence on determining the comparative price of the raw material in the cotton markets.—Besides this important item in our cotton operations, let it be borne in mind, that the packing of the raw material in square bales, instead of round bales, will add to its value.

Extract of a letter from the Secretary of a Tippecanoe Club, in Connecticut to the President of a Tippecanoe Club, in Georgia.
Dear —; You perceive the elections in this State have gone against us. I am not at all disappointed at the result. Last year was a bad year for Cider, and such is the state of the currency, that we find it impossible to purchase the needful supply of Cousins for the canvass. Withal, a good many of our friends were engaged in taking the benefit of the bankruptcy law, and did not attend at the polls. Let not this discourage our Georgia friends. We shall succeed next year with-out a doubt. Our bankrupts say they will be out of debt next year, and have plenty of money to spend at elections.—Georgia Argus.

OBITUARY.
Died, at Pottersville, on the 10th inst., the infant son of George W. & Julia F. Henderson. The Lord hath said, "suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of Heaven."
Died, at Barwell C. H., on the morning of the 6th June, at the residence of the Hon. Sampson H. Butler, his wife HARRIET A. BUTLER, aged twenty-nine years.
It is at all times afflicting to announce the death of friends, but more particularly so is it in the present instance. Mrs. Butler was in the prime of life, surrounded by kind friends, and a most interesting family of four little children, just young enough not to know their loss, and therefore most needing maternal nurture and culture. On Sunday night at nine o'clock, Mrs. Butler retired to rest with as fair a prospect of life as her friends could desire, on Monday morning at two o'clock she was dead—God in his providence has called her husband and who shall murmur. The grief of her husband is too sacred to be dwelt upon. The loss to her little ones can be better felt than described. She was a member of the Baptist Church of this place, and the grief of her friends is softened by the promise of happiness to those who die in the Lord.

Died, at Summer Hill, S. C., on the 2d inst., after a protracted illness, Mrs. ELIZABETH SPASS, in the 57th year of her age, relict of the late Dr. James Spass.
Patient and firm through life, she possessed an evenness of temper, generosity of heart, and mildness of manner, that made all who knew her respect and love her. Pleased at the happiness of others, and sympathizing with those in distress.—Ever ready in the promotion of virtue, as she could appreciate its assistance through life. She died with the full assurance of the goodness and power of her Maker, and deeply lamented by her friends.
