

From the New Haven Courier.

A Mother's love for a Maniac.—Near the easterly base of the West Rock, opposite the place where the ascent commences, may be seen a small rustic cottage, surrounded by a few stunted trees, and standing isolated from the world, by its remoteness from all neighbors. Few evidences of fertility are found in the region.—Sterile it sides and plains where vegetation can find but feeble hold, pervade that Rock, and the chance wayfarer there wonders how the inmates of such a home, can find enough by which to sustain nature. But the wants are few and simple, when reduced to such as are absolutely required to nourish the animal economy, and even upon the desolate heath, and under the shade of the sterile mountain, may be found the means of moderate sustenance and support.

The reader will find in the humble abode to which we have just alluded, but two occupants. In the stillness of that secluded spot strange faces are seldom seen in winter, although during the summer many visitors to West Rock pass it by. But during the long, dreary inclement months none, save the two we have mentioned, are to be found in this isolated abode. And who are they? We commend the reader to go and see. A mother, with her maniac son, and he chained to the floor! None other are. This mother had a prepossessing look. Her costume and address are better than the mass of her sex, in such an unfavorable station, for the development of character and refinement. "She was not lonely," she said, even during the dreariness of winter. She had her son for society. She had him to watch over and care for, and now he was chained, he was secure. He could not get away from her. He had been insane for eight years. Formerly he acted as guide to the "Cave," but his insanity had increased and he often wandered and days would often elapse before he returned. He was subject to fits, but he was now secure in the house, and she had him for society and to comfort her! This is the undying nature of woman's love, of a Mother's affection for her children!

Such was the cheerful response of a self denying parent, when replying to the inquiries of a stranger, whom she accented at the door. We inquired for the son and asked permission, to see him. In a small, dark apartment, to which access was had through the little "spare" room, we found the chained maniac. He lay upon a low bed, with a dim light admitted through an opening in the wall. He occupied in knitting and has kept in repose, seldom having any violent paroxysms of insanity, so soothing even to the disordered mind is employment. Rarely have we seen a face which bore such evidences of character and beauty. None of the usual squalidness of extreme poverty in his looks. None of the fierceness and matted hair of ordinary maniacs! His fine Grecian face and well moulded features pallid from confinement. His dark eye, flashing out unnatural fire. His rich beard and black hair, dropping in ringlets, over his wild and almost supernatural face. These were prominent characteristics of the son when the mother loves, and there he lives, in his darkened apartment, chained to the floor.

Copper in the Human body.—A paper was recently read before the French Academy, to prove the existence of copper in the human body, in its nominal state. It was known before that there is no lack of brass in many human faces, and this copper possibly explains the reason why some are green.

A wet silk handkerchief, tied without folding over the face, is, it is said, a complete security against suffocation from smoke; it permits free breathing and at the same time excludes the smoke from the lungs. It has been effectually tried.

Another Princess.—Victoria is not the only Princess in England, who is "doing the state some service." Princess Christophe of Hayti, aged sixteen, gave birth to a daughter just before the late steamer sailed. She is said to be as "black as the ace of spades."

HYMENEAL.

Commercial.

[BY THE BRITANNIA AT BOSTON]
LIVERPOOL, Oct. 18.
Prices rose about 4d per lb. between the date of our last accounts and the 13th inst; since the 13th the demand both speculative and for consumption has a good deal subsided, and prices have had a downward tendency; which has been confirmed by the accounts from the United States to the 1st Oct. received here this morning.
Sales on the 18th, 3000 bales.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 19.
After business hours yesterday, 1000 lb. changed hands at a decline of fully 4d per lb. To day the market opens with little animation, and we look to prices going lower.

HAVRE, Oct. 14.
The continued favorable advices from Liverpool have created an unexpected activity of demand for Cotton in our market, and prices have advanced materially. The Trade are buying cautiously but speculators have operated largely under the impression that your crop is to be a small one. Should their expectation on this point fail, we may have a complete reaction; every thing therefore depends on the actual yield of your crop."

HAMBURG, November 7.

Remarks.—The stock of Cotton in Hamburg and Augusta, on the 1st inst. was 21,728 bales, of which there were in Hamburg 4,858 bales; in Augusta 16,470 bales, and on board boats and on the wharves 400 bales.—the stock in Hamburg and Augusta same time last year was, 13,564 bales. Total receipts in Hamburg and Augusta, for the month of October last, 32,574 bales, same time last year, 34,929 bales. There were received in Hamburg last month, 11,582 bales, and in Augusta by Rail Road 10,000, and by wagons 10,992 bales, making a difference of receipts above Hamburg of 10,992 bales by rail road and wagons.

Cotton.—The arrivals of Cotton since last Wednesday have been light, as the planters are disposed to hold back for better prices. Owing to the small quantity coming in, and the expectation of Liverpool advices, our market is brisk, to-day at low prices, say 6 to 7 1/4 cts; principal sales 6 1/2 to 7 cts. There seems no doubt among those who know, but that we shall have a short crop this year; most of our planters would now have their Cotton all in, if it was opened; and we understand that there is not very much to open.

Journal.

AUGUSTA Nov. 8.
Cotton.—The receipts have been fair during the week. Up to the 4th inst, there was less activity in the market, but since that time the sales have been very brisk. Planters seem disposed to hold their cotton, and the news by the packet ship Liverpool has probably imparted additional confidence to buyers. The market is firm at the following quotations:—ordinary 6 a 6 1/2; middling 6 1/2 a 7; middling fair to fair 7 a 7 1/2; good fair 7 1/2 a 7 3/4.

Groceries.—We have not the slightest alteration to make in our table of last week. Stock of every description is abundant and the demand general, but rather more limited than at the period of our last quotations.—Constitutionalist.

COLUMBIA, November 9.

Cotton.—This article still comes in rather brisk and active for such a supply, and prices have advanced 1/2 to 3/4 cent since our report of last week. We now quote them, for new Cotton, at 7 a 7 1/2 cents, extremes, though a strictly choice lot would command 7 1/2; most sales at 7 1/4 to 7 3/4 cents.—Carolinian.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 11.

Cotton.—The last weeks receipts of Uplands amount to 8,659 bales:—viz: by Rail Road 3,492, by Water 4,519, and by Wagons 643 bales. Exported in same time 7,427 bales, leaving on hand a shipping stock of 18,094 bales exclusive of 4,989 on shipboard not cleared; of which, 4419 for Foreign and 580 for Northern ports. The market on Saturday last, the first day of our week, proved to be very active—the operations on that day having amounted to 2569 bales, the asking rates of the previous week appearing to be somewhat easier obtained by sellers than a few days before. On Monday, as well as on the three following days, the demand was less active and rather irregular, but without a change in prices; both holders and purchasers being in daily expectation of later news by the Britannia appeared more careless of operating. The daily sales during the four days were as follows: On Monday 846; Tuesday 650; Wednesday 889; and Thursday 1090 bales. Yesterday morning the anxiously expected accounts by the Britannia were received at rather a late hour, from Liverpool to the 19th, and from Havre to the 15th ultimo. From both markets, the advices appeared to be looked upon as more favorable than those previously received, and a pretty active demand, in consequence was met by holders, as we understood from some at 1/2 cent advance on former rates; although others did not claim an advance, but stated to us that they had only realized their asking prices of the day previous to the accounts and which they were enabled then to obtain. The sales amounted to 2121 bales—making the total sales of the week 8165 bales, at prices ranging from 8 1/8 a 8 1/2.—Mercury.
