of the State, to the office of its chief executive ther behind and a little below is a similar brush Magistrate, where he will possess more emphat ically the means and facilities of fostering the paramount employment of her citizens. Does it not strike every mind that in persuing this course, there will be a peculiar fitness of things, a felicitous adaptation of means to the accom plishment of an important end; a harmony of purpose, with the agency by which it can be most effectually obtained? And will the Legislature disregard these obviously imposing und moral considerations? Will its members be unmindful of the long and important services of Mr. SEABROOK in the cause of the State? I trust not. The friends of agriculture have a right, under existing circumstances, to expect the elevation of this gentleman to the office of GOVERNOR, and I am sure that they will be grievously disappointed, if their expectations should be defeated.

I recollect no period in the history of the country for the last thirty years, when the depressed condition of the agricultural community, so imperiously called for economy and reform in every department of public administra-tion. Frugality, economy and industry, with plain and unostentatious habits are most emphatically demanded by the discouraging complexion of the times; and he is not a good citizen, or a true patriot, who refuses to give his countenance and example towards the encouragement of these plain but salutary duties.begin with the higher orders of society, among the officers and dignatories of the State. When they set so worthy an example, the hope may reasonably entertained, that its influence will gradually pervade the different classes of the community, down to the humble walks of I regard the election of Mr. SEABROOK as an important step towards the accomplish ment of these objects. AGRICOLA.

COUNTERFEIT BILLS .- "The Charleston Courier of the 16 inst. says: The Teller of the South Carolina Rail Road Bank has shewn us a counterfeit Eight Dollar Note, of the Bank of Georgetown, which as far as the plate is concerned, is well calculated to decieve the commanity. An examination of the signatures however, will shew their character, as there appears to be no attempt at imitation. The name of the President, J. W. Coachman, it written in a bach slope hand in the counterfeit and that of D. L. M'Kay, Cashier, much more cramped than in the genune bill. This, with the fact that the true bills are shorter than the spurious, will readily lead to detection, but the plate itself is so much of a fact simile, that the most experienced might be deceived.

The Annual Meeting of the State Agricultural Society.-We would call the attention of Agriculturists generally, to this convention of our planters, which will take place on the first evening of the meeting of the Legislature, in the Capitol. We understand that the District Agricultural Societies have all appointed delegates, and there will be an interchange of sentiments on many subjects connected with agri The distribution of premiums, fo crops and domestic manufactures, which have already received the encouragement of the local Societies, will no doubt render the meeting doubly interesting to those who have sufficient enterprise to come forward as competitors; and we do hope that there will be no meagre show the rich yields of skilfully cultivated fields, or of the delicate handiwork of industry in the other departments. We have that an enterprising member of the Monticello Planter's Society, exhibited at the Anniversary Meeting of that Society; on last Wednesday, a choice lot of farming imple-ments, which he selected during a recent Northern tour, and we would suggest that a display of Agricultural implements would add o the attractions of the ensuing meeting of the State Agricultural Society. All the im provements, which we confidently predict will out be brought about, in our system of Agriculture must be the result of the aid of improved implements, and when we state that from the use of the sub-soil plough alone, experiments made in an adjoining District have shown that the products on stiff soils have been increased one third without the aid of manure, our readers will not regard this estimate of ours upon good implements as too high. In the North, the thriving farmer strives to obtain the best and most expenditous implement for use; but our system here, is, in many cases, to attempt aking of a crop with just such implements as will answer our purpose, and thus our op-erations are imperfectly performed, and we lose by half ploughing, at least half of the ben-chts of tillage. We have followed the plough handles ourselves, many a day, and can well testify as to the general benefits of a good running plough—therefore, let all those who have i mproved implements, bring them forward, and give the results of the experiments with them. Already have labour saving machines been introduced by our enterprising citizens in other departments of industrial labour, and we see no reason why the first and greatest calling of mankind, should not receive like impulses from tike advantages. Let us have the grain grow er of our mountain districts, the cotton planter of the middle country, and the rice planter of the sea board, all together, and let the citizens of South Carolina know her resources; le them in plain sensible communion, tell each other what they know, and we are certain great and beneficial results will accrue to all who may attend. We have only to point to the recent display of Agricultural enterprise at the New York State Society, as an example, and we are certain our agriculturists will flock to the old State House, and give an earnest of their devotion to the cause of practical Agriculture.-Advocate

MURDER OF THOS. K. FULLER, OF BIBB. BY WM. SEARCY OF BALDWIN .- We regret that we are again compelled to record a most fearful tragedy which occured in our city on the evening of the day of the Presidential election. A young geuleman from Bibb county named Thomas K. Fuller, was murdered by William Scarcy, a resident of this county. The weapon used was a pistol; the deceased was shot in the stomach, and survived but a few moments after receiving the wound. An In-quest was held over the body and the follow-ing verdict rendered: "That Thomas K. Fuller came to his death by a pistol she t fired by William Searcy."
Searcy immediately fled. A reward of $350 has been offered for his apprehension—$150 by the Governor, and $200 by the father of the deceased. We hope that Searcy will be apprehended, and that justice may be done.-Milledgeville Joarnal 12th inst.

NEW AND IMPROVED COTTON GIN .- The Alahama Moniter says: We alluded a few months ago, to the fact that John it Sherard, Esq., a wealthy and skilful planter of Sumter co., and withal a man of great mechanical ingenuity, had invented and patented a Cotton Gin, s perior to any other now in use. We copy the following notice of it from the Sumter county

Whig of 22d inst: "A few days ago we saw Mr. Sherard's new patent Cotton Gin in full operation, and we can assure those who have not seen it, that it great ly improves the quality of the cotton ginned. and is vory simple in construction and easily The saws are nearly like thos which takes off the cotton from the saws, and carries it over a grate, which entirely removes the remainder of the trash, dirt, &c.; Still forther back is a brush with wings, which blows the cotton through a flue with a tin bottom. perforated with oblong holes similar to those of a tin lantern, through which, should there be any remaining trash or dirt, the whole will This flue has one advantages over all others, it never chokes up, and consequently does not require delay of time in cleaning it.

"The whole is carried by two hands and works most admirably. A fifty saw Gin, the size of that Mr. Sherard now has in operation, will gin four bales per day We would advise every farmer to ivisit Mr. Sherad and judge for himself. Mr. S. has been at great troble and expense in perfecting his improvement, and we have no doubt his efforts will be justly appreciated by the cotton growing interest. We would remark that the improvement may be attached, at small expense, to the ordinary gin; and further, that Mr. Sheraid's new gin will cost but a trifle, if any more, than those

To PREPENT HORSES JUMPING PENCES .-Some years ago, I bought a good horse, which among other fine qualities, was recommended as a great jumper, vaulting with ease "over a fence six feet high." I intended to take care of that part of the business myself. but for a time I found I was overmatched. I tied his head to his fore-feet, but that made no difference-over he went. I put a wooden clog on his fore feet as large as a man's leg, but he carried that over the high fence with him. I "honpled" him, fastening his fore and hind feet with n two feet of each other; but was very much surprised to find him, all chained as before, on the other side of the fence; and it was not till several repetitions of the experiment, that I saw how he did it—which was by drawing his two channed feet closely to his body, and throwing himself over with the other two. And when he chained to be free from all restraint, it was very ften hard to tell where he might be found, as he would soon pass half a dozen high fences to reach some favorite field. To try to catch him was very much like a boy's trying to catch the hawk, -he said he 'did not expect to get him, but thought he might at least worry him." But I have found a simple and efficient remedy. Passa small and strong cord round his body just behind the shoulders, and tie the halter to this cord between the fore-legs, so as to leave a distance of about two feet from the cord to his head. If then he undertakes to jump, he is compelled to throw his head forward, which draws hard on the small cord, causing it to cut into his back, and 'he instantly The cord should not be more than a quarter of an inch in diameter.—Cultivator A FARMER.

A NEW FASHIONED MATTRESS .- We sojourned lately at the house of a country friend. We were treated to the most comfortable mattress it has ever been our good fortune to encounter. At first we thought it was fatigue which had converted an ordinary coucle into a "thrice driven bed of down;" but we soon found that there was a most comfortable peruliariarity about the bed itself, and upon inquiry we found that we had been lying upon a mat-tress consisting of eight or ten blankets quilted together and encased in a linen cover; this mattress rested upon an ordinary feather bed. This hybrid between a feather bed and a maitress, secures all the softness of the one and all the levelness of the other. Moreover, it is an excellent mode of disposing of the blan-kets during the summer. We warrant he who tries it, never buys another hair mattress.-Southern Planter.

Large Potatoc .- We were shown a Sweet Potatoe on Saturday last, raised upon the farm of Mr. Rambo, about four miles from this town, which weighed nine povnds We understand it was intended as a present to the worthy Editor of the "Spirit of the Times," New York. We hope it may arrive safe, and that whilst he is mastigating this delicious Southern vegetable, he will not forget that it grew upon true Democratic soil, that raises the largest kind of Polk stalks .- Hamburg Republi-

Difference of Climate .- At the late convention of silk growers in this city the president observed that when he was in Itally, the eggs of the silk worm were alto the humidity of that climate; and it was not necessary to take measures to prevent the eggs from hatching. But in the United States, owing to the dryness of our climate, the eggs have to be put in ice houses and other cold places, to prevent them from hatching before the mulberry leaf is ready to feed them. He inferred from these facts that this country is most favorable for the production of sifk. In Italy the books tell how to make the eggs hatch-in the United States the books tell how to prevent it .- N. Y. Com. Adv.

Expensive Jewelry-It is stated that the ewelry worn by the Marquis of Westminister at the installation of Louis Phillippe to the order of the garter, was of the most superb character: In the centre of his lordship's badge was the celebrated Arcos diamond, valued at 15,000 guineas: His lordship's sword also displayed a massive diamond one of the largest in the world, weighing 96 carats, and valued at £20,000. The same nobleman has laborers on his estates who have to support themselves, wives, and children on about (wo dollars per week, and -provisions near thirty per cent higher than in this country.

HAMBURG, Nov. 13. Cotton .- On Friday, Saturday and Monday there was but a small quantity arrived. Until Saturday evening our last week's quointions remained steady, but since that time the market has become dult; a large quantity arrived on Tuesday evening and this morning, but purchasers appear unwilling to buy unless at a reduction of from a 4 to 4c from previous quota-tions.
