

FOR THE ADVERTISER.
Messrs. Editors:—As is usual on the first of May, the young ladies of our village, I would wish to believe, had a pleasant little party, and passed a few hours together, in a most charming and agreeable manner.

The day was fair, and the sun was bright, and beauty was brighter still; and every thing but one conspired to make their celebration entertaining and amusing in the highest degree. I assure you Messrs. Editors, that that one thing wanting, was not the light hearts and buoyant spirits of sweet sixteen—it was not the grace and loveliness of youthful innocence—it was not the overflowing soul, and the desire to dispense the blessings of peace and happiness, and joyous mirth to all around; but it was the presence of some delightful young fellows, some gallant young men, to have called into exercise, and to have been the happy recipients of those grateful charms, which otherwise, would have been lavished on the cold and "idle wind that regards them not." A girl without a boy, a woman without a man, is like the tender flower of May, deprived of the genial influence of the sun—its beautiful tints lie concealed in the bud, and its perfume and its fragrance wastes away and dies without tasting the lovely breath of Spring.

I could not have conceived of a May party without boys—and I think such an invention is truly refined, and worthy of the age. There is something about it rather prudish. I am afraid there are some ancient maidens in our quiet little village; and if there are, as much as I love gallantry, I warn them in time, to beware. "Twere better they had never been born, than to incur the vengeance of my walked wrath." I heard some time ago, of a queer sort of a convention of some of the softer sex in our town, and I feared them, that we were on the eve of a revolution—we now realize the fact. I will say one more word, by way of admonition. If I have the least intimation again of the organization of an old maid society in the broad limits of this village, I will take a torch in one hand & a trumpet in the other, and I will explore every street, and lane, and alley within this incorporation, and I will call forth every thing in the shape of a bachelor, and I will form one of the completest old bachelors' clubs, or anti-old-maid's societies ever read of in history. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

TOUCH ME NOT.

FOR THE ADVERTISER.

Messrs. Editors:—I see, with more than ordinary pleasure, that some of the citizens of our State are making a laudable effort by their example, to induce South Carolinians to embark more generally in the business of manufacturing. I see also, that several manufacturing companies, with considerable capital, have recently been started into existence in the neighboring State of Georgia.

It is the opinion of but too many of our public men, that it is contrary to the true policy of any portion of the South, to encourage its people, either in establishing manufactures amongst them, or in investing their capital in any enterprises of that character. From some unaccountable prejudices, it is contended that the real interest of this section of the country lies solely in the promotion of Agriculture, and in directing all the energies of all classes of the community to that employment alone.

Suppose it were admitted, that at this precise time, we would realize some greater profit from planting, and from raising cotton than from any other occupation in which we could engage—suppose, I say, that this were admitted, and how would it answer for the future? How long will the condition of those of the Southern States, which lie in a higher latitude, be the same as it is at present? Every man of any experience and sagacity whatever, must perceive the necessity of some change in our pursuits, not only in years to come, but even at this very moment of time.

otherwise, I would rather see any other calamity that could befall us. I would prefer that our State should be desolated by foreign invaders. Give us anything under the sun rather than the want of employment; give us famine, pestilence, or bloodshed, or the sorest of the afflictions of Heaven, in the place of a negative evil, so utterly destructive of every thing like human improvement, and so wholly repugnant to the advancement and stability of our institutions, and to the safety and prosperity of a republican form of government.

In passing through this, and some others of the Southern States, a stranger would be completely shocked at the incalculable numbers of heavy, robust young men, who follow no occupation under heaven, but smoking cigars, drinking brandy, and loafing and lounging about the different cities, and towns, and villages. Indeed, it has become so common in this part of the world, for a gentleman of property and education to do nothing, that it is almost disreputable, even for a poor man, to labor for his support. As for a young man of wealth and standing in the first circles, to endeavor by his assiduity and industry to improve his estate, such a thing is scarcely dreamed of. If he were to presume to adopt a course of conduct so absolutely vulgar, he would be shunned and mocked at by all his gay companions. Gentlemen of pleasure, and gentlemen of leisure, with their lily white hands, are the only current stock amongst us, and the only stock that is acceptable at our markets of manhood and beauty. One of our dashing belles would be horror struck at the sight of a pair of sunburnt hands, or of a bronzed, and manly, and noble brow.

Even in our own little village of Edgfield, (which I believe is unsurpassed in every thing that is manly by any village in the South,) and in all the villages of my acquaintance in the State, of a soft, and clear, and balmy day, when they can bear to expose their tender persons to the air, and to the dangers of the weather, swarms—clouds of these delicate creatures of the masculine gender, are to be seen literally infesting every place of common resort—literally darkening the avenues of the public buildings, and the piazzas of the hotels, merchants stores, and grocers. I will not attempt to disguise the fact—a man cannot pass through the streets of any small village as Edgfield, Abbeville, Laurens, Greenville, Newberry, and Hamburg, and many others that could be named without encountering at every corner, groups of heavy-shouldered young men, who can boast of following no active pursuits in the world, and of doing nothing whatever in the form of business, but eating and drinking, and retailing slander, and telling stale and miserable, and filthy jokes. The very extreme of their enterprise scarcely hurries them beyond a game of whist, or luc, or brag. It would be much better for them if they would gamble a little, and exhibit at least some symptoms of life and spirit. I firmly believe, that even that abominable vice would be less sinful and corrupting to their morals, than for them to while away their time in such perfect stuper and sloth, as now possesses them, and so completely paralyzes all the nobler faculties, both intellectual and physical, with which they have been endowed by a bountiful Creator.

If our people could be induced to take an interest in the establishment of manufactures, and the rearing of manufacturing towns amongst them, it might stir them up to some activity. It might at least, excite in them a spirit of speculation, and that, in my humble opinion would be fully worth an effort. Those who still have industry and enterprise enough to be addicted to play, could play at higher and more deceit games than seven up and furo bank. Even if it should turn out that our State is not adapted to manufacturing purposes, which is not at all probable, the money lost in the speculations and enterprises commenced, would be money well expended, under all circumstances of the case. In the name of God, I ask, what do our young men of capital do with their money? Do they lay it out to any profitable purpose whatever? I cannot for my life, perceive to what use in the world it is applied, but to pamper the sickly appetites, and gratify the licentious desires of the most effeminate, the most indolent, and the most useless set of men on top of the ground. The descendants of the wealthier classes in our section of the country, from the want of some proper incentives to action, almost invariably become, in a generation of two, paupers and beggars; or they become most completely prostrated, as we in mind and body, as in property, character, and reputation. Many of them, for the lack of employment, contract habits of dissipation, that hurry them on to such extremes of degradation, as to make death a pleasing alternative to a life of utter wretchedness. I have no doubt, that numbers of them actually commit the awful crime of suicide. If they do not commit it with the pistol or the dirk, they commit it in another way, that is much more distressing to the minds of their friends and relations, and infinitely more pernicious in its consequences to society, than if they actually shed their own blood with their own hands.

But, I have reserved for the conclusion of this communication, another consideration in favor of introducing manufactures amongst us, which has always struck me as being of much more than common importance. Every individual loves to be independent, and to feel as secure within himself, as his means will allow—independence makes him proud and happy, and gives birth to the noblest feelings and the noblest sentiments that animate the human heart. Independence too, in a state or nation, is certainly the greatest blessing that God in his goodness could bestow upon it; and the more perfect and complete that independence, the more perfect and salutary becomes the blessing to the people. Now it does seem to me, that we of South Carolina and Georgia, ought to be able to furnish for ourselves from the products of our own industry, every necessary article of consumption that we could require. We ought not to depend upon the North, or the South, the East, or the West, for our food or raiment, or any thing we use. Our lands are fertile—our pasturage is good—our climate will raise the products of almost every region—our water courses are clear and bold, and admirably suited for mills and manufacturing establishments, and our country is so situated, as to lay open to us the commerce of the whole world. From our vast and unlimited resources, if we would call forth the energies of our people; we could even live happy without having intercourse with any kingdom or state on earth. With the materials abounding in all parts of these two states, in the very best and richest quantities to be found, we could raise and manufacture every necessary and every luxury of life that the most fastidious tastes could demand. We might be perfectly self-sufficient. We ought to be ashamed to ask a Kentucky for his hemp and hogs—we ought to be ashamed to ask a Tennessee for his horses and cows, or a Northern man for his broadcloths, calicoes, and wooden nutmegs. We ought to be ashamed, any longer, to ask others for articles which we could raise ourselves, and for the obtaining of which, we are compelled to pay a tax that would support a little kingdom, and that would line our states from the mountains to the seas, with the most costly manufacturing establishments that were ever erected by the skill and ingenuity of man. SALUDA.

On Tuesday and the night following we had a heavy fall of rain in this vicinity; and below the Village, in the neighborhood of Reedy River, it is said that considerable damage has been sustained by the crops, in consequence of the torrents of water that accumulated and washed the hill sides.—Green Mount, 1st inst.

The Wheat Crop in Georgia.—The Helican, published at Marietta, Geo., of the 25th inst. says—"It is gratifying to be able to state that, from the best information derived from our ample sources, the Wheat crop in our Cherokee Georgia has never been known as promising at this season of the year, since the country has been settled, as at this present. If the present prospect should be realized, with some of the best flour mills in the State to manufacture it, we hope to be able to supply the Southern consumers with any quantity equal to the best Baltimore brands, and equally as cheap."

The Charleston Mercury of the 20th ult. says—"We are much gratified in learning the other day that a former and profitable branch of South Carolina enterprise—laid dormant for nearly fifty years is likely to be revived again. We allude to the manufacture of Tar and Turpentine. We understand that a successful commencement has been made by Messrs. J. R. Stoll and Erauld, in the neighborhood of Summerville, and that a part of their production, about 50 bbls., Tar and Turpentine have been received by the Rail Road in this market. Other gentlemen have likewise commenced operations, and we hope to see the day when our heretofore unproductive pine barren will prove a source of wealth to the enterprising manufacturers."

Murder and Robbery.—An inoffensive Portuguese, named Frank de Silva, who kept a small grocery store near the Rail Road, in Wilmington, N. C., was robbed and murdered on Sunday night, by some unknown villains. The skull was fractured in several places, and had the appearance of having been done with an axe.

The Murder of DeSilva.—A man calling himself Thomas Broughton, was arrested in Wilmington on Saturday, on suspicion of being the murderer of DeSilva, the Portuguese who was found dead at his residence in that town a couple of weeks since. Broughton was brought before the Grand Jury, who were then in session, and a true bill found, on which he stands committed for trial at the term of the Court next fall. Some articles found in his possession have been identified as the property of DeSilva.—Chas. News.

A handsome service of plate, has been presented to Mr. J. Hoffman Gallamore, of Boston, by his creditors. Mr. C. failed last year, and was released by the Master in Chancery on the payment of 20 per cent on his obligations. Having since received a large legacy, he summoned his creditors and paid the balance amounting to 20,000, for which honorable conduct his creditors have paid him the above compliment.

A poor mechanic at Baltimore, named Hitchcock, had added to his family, the other morning, three daughters, whom he named Jane Ppk, Mary Florida, and Martha Texas. It is a pity he had not one more, to call Susan Oregon.

"Murder and Lynch law seem inseparably connected with slavery."

So says the Plymouth Memorial, noticing the affair at Nashville. It would be just as true to say, that murder and lynch law are inseparably connected with freedom in the free States. In Charleston a convict is burnt; in Philadelphia, churches are burnt. In Boston, in New England, all over the North, and in Canada, we chronicle atrocious murders; and the free black fiend at Auburn is saved from lynching only by the cunning of the officers who had him in custody. In New Hampshire the mob compelled the execution of Prescott, a mindless creature; and the youngsters who tore down a house, and killed a wife and mother at Kingston, go unpunished. Murder, theft, robbery, counterfeiting, and lynching, also abound in Ohio, Illinois, and Indiana, and are not unknown in the territories of Iowa and Wisconsin. New York city we hardly dare mention, and say nothing of officers of the law shot by anti-renters. With many of the northern anti-slavery writers and speakers freedom seems to mean nothing but a charter for railing against truth; and so far as their morality, that they openly advocate dissension and treason to the constitution of their country, the highest of crimes. Should the southern press publish the atrocities of the free States, with the comment that these things are the natural fruit of free labor and free speech, how false and injurious would it be; yet there are those here who daily attribute to one cause all the evils at the south, notwithstanding they know that the same evils are, and always have been common to all states of society.—Boston Post.

Jayne's Hair Tonic!
We know Dr. Quigley personally, and there is no man in the country whose opinion is entitled to more respect. He is on all subjects honest and sincere, and his high character as a Physician can be attested by the first medical men in the city.—Philadelphia Sun.

Shepherd's Town, Va., Oct. 10, 1843.
Dear Sir.—You inquire of me whether I have used your Hair Tonic, and with what effect.

Several years ago my hair began to fall rapidly from the scalp, and I had the prospect of premature baldness. At length a friend recommended your Hair Tonic. I used three or four bottles, according to the printed directions, and at the end of six months, my hair was thick set, and since, its tendency to turn grey was arrested.

I have never before given a certificate recommending patent medicines, which I do so readily, as they often are, do much injury; but in a case like the present, where I know the article to be beneficial, and that it can do no harm, I have no scruples in stating facts within my own knowledge.—Your's, &c., JOHN QUIGLEY, M. OBITUARY.
Died, on Saturday the 18th of April, JOSEPH A. MOORE, JR., in the 21st year of his age. The peculiar and sudden death of our young friend, excited the deepest feelings of sympathy and regret. In the buoyancy of youth, on Saturday morning he united with his youthful associates in the innocent amusement of a hunting excursion; and ere evening had chilled the icy hand of the king of terrors had chilled his active body in the cold sleep of death. In the active and overheating pursuit of the object of his sport, our young friend ruptured an important blood vessel, which resulted in this melancholy catastrophe. He had, in the Providence of God, almost in infancy, been deprived of the fostering care of an affectionate mother; and not many years after, he was also deprived of the councils and direction of a tender father. In this state of helpless orphanage he became the subject of his grand father and mother's care and love; and through them, he received the advantages of an excellent education, and that moral training which eminent piety and devotion could afford. The subject of this notice had recently assumed a relation to society of usefulness and dignity, and had inspired all his patrons with confidence and esteem for his ability and amiable deportment. The character of the deceased was marked by a nice propriety and amiability in all his intercourse; his affections were warm and undivided; and his social qualities were of the finest order. None can know the communion of the heart, and the cordiality, confidently indulge the hope, that our young friend had a sweet communion with the Father of our Spirits.

PROCLAMATION.
COLUMBIA, S. C. April 21st, 1846.
By His Excellency WM. AIKEN, Esq., Governor and Commander in Chief in and over the State of South Carolina.
WHEREAS, information has been received at this Department, that an atrocious murder was committed on the body of Hector, by Renty, both the slaves of John M. Chisolm, at his plantation on Savannah river, on the night of the 29th March, ult. Now know ye, that in order that the said slave may be brought to legal trial, I WILLIAM AIKEN, Governor of the State aforesaid, do hereby issue this, my Proclamation, offering a reward of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS, for the apprehension and delivery of the said slave Renty into any Jail in this State.

RENTY is about thirty-five years of age, six feet high, complexion brownish black, stoops in walking, of a down cast look, and has a peculiar manner of clinching his teeth while speaking. Given under my hand, this 21st day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-six, and in the seventieth year of American Independence. WILLIAM AIKEN. By the Governor. ROBT. Q. PICKNEY, Secretary of State. May 6 to 15

READ! READ! READ!—Having used HEWES' NERVE and BONE LINIMENT, prepared by JOSEPH T. ROWLAND, I can certify to its good effects. A troublesome rheumatic affection, my right shoulder of three years' standing, was by a few applications thoroughly cured. Fifteen months have elapsed since its use, without a recurrence of the complaint. Several relatives and friends to whom I have recommended it, have also received great benefits from its use. A general knowledge of its virtues would be the source of the alleviation of much pain, and inconvenience. With this object in view, I have without solicitation, authorized Mr. Rowland to make use of this testimonial as he may think proper. THOS. J. HOUPT. 201 North Sixth street, Philadelphia. MR. JOSEPH T. ROWAN.
NO. 370 MARKET STREET, PHILA.
Dear Sir:—I have been for several years subject to frequent attacks of nervous headache, of such severity as frequently to unfit me for business. So intense has been the pain that my hair has become grey over the parts affected. I have never found any thing to afford me any permanent relief till I tried your "MAGIC LOTION," which relieved me almost instantly. I have had several attacks since, which have been overcome in three or four minutes, and I have every reason to believe myself permanently cured. About two weeks since I went to Mannyunk and finding a friend who had been confined to his bed for nearly two months with nervous headache, I applied the "Lotion," and the pain ceased so suddenly that my friend could scarcely credit his own senses, but after waiting a few minutes, and finding that he really had no pain at all, he got up, and the next morning recommenced his usual business. I will further add, that while at Mannyunk, I applied the "Magic Lotion" to two other persons for tooth-ache, both of which were cured in two or three minutes. SAMUEL H. DUNGAN. N. TO THE PUBLIC.
By the last Will and Testament of Alexander Downer, deceased, late of Beach Island, provision has been made for the maintenance and education of a number of indigent orphans of this District, under the age of 14 years—and by an act of the Legislature, Commissioners have been appointed to carry out the benevolent designs of the Testator. They have procured a suitable location at Beach Island, eight miles below Hamburg, and design as soon as they can ascertain the number of beneficiaries, to erect suitable buildings for their accommodation, and to obtain the services of a competent person to take charge of the Institution. The design of this communication is to solicit the co-operation of the citizens generally, but more particularly of the Commissioners of Free Schools, in ascertaining the number of children in their respective neighborhoods entitled to the benefits designed by the benefaction of the Testator. Communications addressed to us through the Hamburg Post Office, will be thankfully received. M. GALPHIN, D. ARDIS, G. B. MILLS, Commrs. April 29 to 14
